Special vote asked to fill Harms post

by JOE SWICKARD

Trustee David Griffin Wednesday called for a special election to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Trustee Alice Harms.

"It is obviously the most open way to select a trustee. It gets down to bottom line of letting the people decide. It would also give the opportunity to air the alleged grievances in Alice's letter," said Griffin, who made an unsuccessful bid for the village presidency in 1975.

Mrs. Harms started the village board Monday by submitting a letter of resignation in which she said the traditional nonpartisan village government was being subverted by Village Pres. James T. Ryan. She also said the administration of Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson was similar to "a form of one-man rule as Mayor (Richard J.) Daley's Chicago."

Griffin, who was endorsed by Mrs. Harms, said a special election could be held in conjunction with the Arlington Heights Memorial Library's referendum on Feb. 24, if the village board agreed to it soon.

"I HAVE SPOKEN with the village attorney and he told me there was time to fill the requirements of notices and petitioning in that time," Griffin said.

He said a joint election with the library referendum would mean the village would save the expense of paying for a separate election.

He said he would formally ask for the special election at Monday's board meeting. The meeting was called to discuss a possible change in form of government for the village, but Tuesday Ryan said he will call for an expanded agenda to discuss the Harms' vacancy.

If the board decides not to go for a joint election with the library, Griffin said a special election should be held before the March primaries.

"THE 24TH MAY be too swift, but we're going to have to come right off the mark Monday," he said. "We should try not to get involved with the primaries where the major parties could overwhelm it."

Ryan could not be reached for comment on Griffin's proposal.

Griffin said if the board votes against a special election, Ryan's call for open meetings to select a replacement should be approved.

"I would suggest we meet right out in the open. Politics is different today. It (the replacement) has to be done openly," he said.

IN THE PAST, the board has filled vacancies after executive session without the names of unsuccessful candidates being made public.

"Before people talked about hurting someone's feelings in an open meeting," Griffin said adding open meetings force people to be more honest in their discussion.

Griffin said he has contacted several fellow trustees who have expressed support for the special election. He declined to say whether a

Beirut under storm as troops sweep foothills

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian forces stormed Beirut's Moslem suburbs Wednesday as two Palestinian army brigades from Syria cut across the country to the foothills of Mt. Lebanon.

The Palestinian armor and artillery columns, halted by the 10,000-foot-high mountain range, were ready to move toward the war-ravaged capital if last-ditch Syrian-mediated truce talks fail.

Christian forces launched a sweeping offensive Wednesday against the Moslem suburb of Naabeh in reprisal for the fall of two besieged Christian towns south of Beirut.

THE VOICE OF Lebanon, the pirate radio station of the right-wing Phalangist party, said Christian militias were uniting under one command to liberate "the entire Lebanese nation from its usurpers."

Fierce fighting raged across the capital and countryside as rival forces attacked and counterattacked in an apparent attempt to grab as much territory as possible before a new cease-fire.

Police estimated more than 200 persons were killed and 430 injured in a climactic 48 hours. The toll in nine months of war rose to nearly 9,600 dead and 30,180 wounded.

Three seek Dist. 25 panel support

Two incumbents and one newcomer have contacted the Arlington Heights Dist. 25 Nominating Committee, seeking endorsement as candidates for the Dist. 25 Board of Education.

Incumbents Edith Jolly and Donald Gibbins and newcomer Douglas-Chidley are scheduled to appear before the committee's screening committee Jan. 31. Board Pres. William Beck has announced he will not seek reelection.

The committee delegates will meet Feb. 9 to make their endorsements.

Last week the delegates voted to admit the Arlington Teachers Assn., the teachers union in Dist. 25, to membership on the committee. Two teachers now sit as delegates on the committee and one has been elected to the screening committee.

This is the first year the teacher's union has sought membership on the committee, said James Modoc, union president. "We thought it would be good to get involved," he said. School board elections "relate to us closely."

THE 420-MEMBER union also recommends qualified candidates for election to the board of education. Its screening committee, the Illinois Political Action Committee for Education (IPACE), is affiliated through the teacher's state-wide union, the Illinois Education Assn. Modoc said the committee has not yet set a date when it will make its recommendations.

The inside story Ford's $394.2 billion budget to Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday laid down a $394.2 billion budget carrying more money for defense and energy programs, a promise of new tax cuts for individuals and businesses, and a scaled-down social program emphasizing aid to the most needy.

Aside from military and energy spending, the emphasis was on reducing federal outlays for domestic needs by consolidation and reorganization of a variety of government programs.

Signing the budget before submitting it to Congress, where the ultimate decisions lie, the President said:

"This represents what we hope will be a very major turning point for the American people. But it does not hold out any promise that the federal government can or will solve every problem."

He said "it reflects on every page the common sense, the new realism" he invoked in his State of the Union speech Monday.

"We will give more money to those at or below the poverty line and cut off those above," Ford told reporters.

Having put his own stamp on the blueprint for fiscal 1977 (his previous budget was worked out largely under Richard Nixon), Ford dispatched top economic aides to Capitol Hill for daylong briefings of congressional leaders and committees to be involved with it.

Among those panels are the new Senate and House budget committees, created to sort out and ride hard on the complicated process of government spending. They could drastically alter the President's formula.

Predictably, most congressional Republicans praised the President while Democratic leaders attacked the effort to cut back on domestic programs.

However, Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and a major force in the budget's move through Congress, urged fellow Democrats not to push for budget increases in view of the "shockingly high" national debt.

Mahon acknowledged that there will be pressures to chip the proposed $8.3 billion increase in defense spending, and that "Congress may very probably fail to adopt" the President's plan for overhauling and reducing domestic programs.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill raised the issue of politics, saying:

"The President's budget priorities are 100 per cent wrong. Its full impact in slowing the economy would be felt in 1977, not in this election year. We have to worry about the future, not just about the election."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said it is "in the interest of the

GOP's Lindberg 'backs' Walker

by WANDALYN RICE
Republican State Comptroller George Lindberg Wednesday "endorsed" Gov. Daniel Walker in the March 16 Democratic gubernatorial primary because Republicans "can crush him on the issues" in the general election.

Lindberg, who has been a persistent critic of Walker's fiscal policies in the four years the two have held state office, told the Palatine Township Republican Organization that as governor, Walker "is a total, unmitigated failure. I'm saying a little prayer at night that Dan Walker wins the primary by about 25,000 votes."

The comptroller, who is unopposed in the March primary and will run for reelection to this current post in November, said Republicans will have more trouble capturing the governorship in the general election if regular Democrat Michael Howlett defeats Walker in the primary.

IF HOWLETT wins the nomination, Lindberg said, a major issue in the general election campaign will be his ties to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

"The number one issue with a man associated with Daley is Daley," he said. "Daley controls the City of Chicago and Cook County, Daley controls the legislature. If we give him the governorship, we would give Daley a dictatorship for his last hurrah."

Lindberg carefully sidestepped the issue of whether he favors former U.S. Atty. James Thompson or businessman Richard Cooper in the Republican gubernatorial primary. He said, "We're really blessed with a great slate of candidates in the primary. Whoever wins, we can't lose."

He also said he believes the presidential primary contest between President Gerald Ford and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan will actually strengthen the party in the March 16 primary.

In the 1972 primary, he reminded his audience, many Republicans voted for Walker in the Democratic primary instead of voting with their own party. "For awhile I was afraid this year would be a 1972 in reverse and all the people who were taken in by Walker then would cross over to try to get rid of him," he said. "Fortunately, this year we have a good, strong presidential primary race and it will keep the Republicans in our primary."

ONCE A REPUBLICAN governor is elected, Lindberg said, the biggest problem will be to restore balance to the state's budget without a tax increase. Lindberg for months has been saying the state is near bankruptcy.

The financial problems, he said, are the result of Walker spending "$400 million more than the state took in in 18 months. I think the evidence is clear — it won't help to call me the Chicken Little of Illinois because the ceiling is caving in on us."

George Lindberg

Lindberg said a tax increase may be "inevitable" in order to restore the state's financial position. However, he said, "I'm convinced there is more than enough in the budget to make up the deficit if we change priorities and eliminate waste."

Cost of living here up 5.3% in 1975

The cost of living increased 5.3 per cent in 1975 in the Chicago region, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics reported Wednesday. The increase was a much milder rise compared to the 12 per cent jump for Chicago area residents in 1974. The 5.3 per cent increase for 1975 was below the national average of 7 per cent, the bureau said.

Walker in Elk Grove today

Gov. Daniel Walker will conduct an accountability session today at 7:30 p.m. at the Elk Grove Village VWV Hall, 400 E. Devon Ave., Elk Grove Village. Sec. of State Michael Howlett also has been invited to attend the session, which is open to the public. Walker is expected to discuss plans for the Busse Woods flood-control and recreation project and the need for legislation regulating private streets and housing developments.

County probe at 'Greens'

The Cook County Dept. of Building and Zoning will investigate 500 alleged building, fire and health code violations at the Greens of Golf Mill apartment complex in unincorporated Maine Township. Comr. William Harris said County Board Pres. George Dunnie ordered the investigation after meeting with officials from the Greens' Tenants Assn. "Wherever allegations are found to be true there will be court action against the owners," Harris said. The apartment management, Littlestone Co., has refused to comment on the residents' charges.

Kissinger, Brezhnev hold arms talks

Soviet restraint in Angola urged

MOSCOW (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger conferred twice with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev Wednesday on ways to budge deadlocked arms limitation talks. A senior U. S. official said Brezhnev gave a positive response.

The official said the Soviet side was trying hard to find a way out of the stalemate and Brezhnev's attitude was encouraging. But he said it was premature to predict an agreement in principle by the end of Kissinger's visit Friday.

The words of encouragement on arms talks came after Kissinger urged the Soviets to exercise restraint in Angola.

The official said the positive Soviet attitude was reflected in a toast by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko at a luncheon in Kissinger's honor.

"I would merely like to say that the Soviet leadership and General Secretary Brezhnev personally express the hope that these discussions will signify a step, and better still, a serious step forward towards the completion of work on the new accord which I have been referring to," Gromyko said.

"It is our very strong desire to see this accord negotiated, prepared and signed."

The official did not specify in what area of the talks Brezhnev's response had been constructive. But observers presumed it involved the Soviet Backfire bomber, which the Soviet Union insists is not a nuclear bomber but which the United States says could be modified to carry such bombs.

The United States reportedly has been urging Moscow to agree not to station the Backfire at Arctic bases or develop airborne refueling capabilities for the plane to eliminate its possible use as an attack bomber.

Kissinger was understood to believe Brezhnev would call a high-level meeting Thursday, possibly of the full Politburo of the Soviet Communist party, to review progress reached so far in the negotiations.

The U. S. official said Wednesday's two meetings in the Kremlin dealt primarily with strategic arms problems although Kissinger raised the subject of Soviet intervention in Angola at the morning session.

He said Brezhnev basically restated the Soviet position that Moscow has merely been assisting the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola as it has in the past.

The official said there was no sign of any imminent breakthrough on the issue which Kissinger has said could undermine U.S.-Soviet detente.

Before their first session in the Kremlin Wednesday, Brezhnev was asked by reporters about Soviet involvement in Angola.

He brushed aside the question, saying, "I have no questions about Angola. Angola is not my country."

Kissinger then cut in and stated firmly: "It will certainly be discussed." The secretary, however, did not enter a sparring match with Brezhnev.

In Lusaka, Zambia, meantime, Soviet-backed troops, who drove Western-supported forces from much of northern Angola two weeks ago, reported a key victory in an offensive against rivals in the south.

The Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola said its Cuban-led army captured the southern town of Ceta, a strategic supply base for South African troops fighting alongside the Western-backed forces.

SOVIET LEADER Leonid Brezhnev, right, says "you look much younger" as he playfully measures Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's girth. The pair are meeting on arms limitation talks in Moscow.

1975 inflation rate lowest in three years

Consumer price figures released Wednesday showed inflation hit 7 per cent during 1975 — the lowest rate in three years, but still historically high. Government experts predicted it would be 6 per cent this year. The average worker's earnings rose only 0.2 per cent faster than the cost of living in 1975. But a federal tax cut gave him an overall 3.8 per cent increase in real spendable earnings. Assistant Commerce Secretary James Pate said the improvement in inflation during 1975 was "a little bit greater than what the administration anticipated." But he cautioned progress will be more gradual in 1976, when inflation will cool to about 5 per cent.

IRS again probes Nixon tax deduction

The Internal Revenue Service again is investigating the $450,000 tax deduction Richard M. Nixon took for his vice presidential papers, it was reported Wednesday. The IRS stopped an audit in 1974, concluding it did not have the evidence to prosecute the former president for civil tax fraud. But the Washington Post and the New York Times reported the IRS believes it may be able to prove Nixon knew about a back-dated deed claiming an illegal deduction when he gave the papers to the National Archives.

$6.7 million in food stamp money missing

The Agriculture Department told Congress Wednesday that nearly $6.7 million in food stamp money is unaccounted for, and the government is losing the interest on another $10.8 million because of late payments. Assistant Agriculture Secretary Richard Felner, in testimony to a Senate agriculture subcommittee, said the department intends to bill the states for the funds that are missing outright and tighten up its collection procedures. The subcommittee is looking into recent reports of widespread "vendor fraud" in the program.

Raging brush fire near Nixon estate

A raging brush fire, fanned by dry winds up to 40 miles an hour, roared out of the Camp Pendleton Marine base Wednesday into the neighborhood of former President Richard Nixon and destroyed or damaged 29 structures. Many expensive homes went up in flames. Dozens of persons were left homeless. Nixon's mansion did not appear in immediate danger since a broad freeway was between it and the fire.

Dems hit GOP economic programs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine said Wednesday that Americans can regain confidence in their government if they will reject would-be leaders who offer "penny-wise and pound foolish" economic programs that provide neither jobs nor better communities to live in.

"We must reject those of timid vision who counsel us to go back . . . to go back to the simpler times now gone forever, to go back on the promises we have made to reach other . . . to go back and give up," Muskie said in a television address billed as "the State of the Union — a Democratic view."

"We cannot go back. We cannot give up. And we will not."

Replying to President Ford's State of the Union and budget messages, Muskie accused the Republican administration of "panicky management" of the economy that has worsened conditions.

"The President says we cannot afford to help Americans find work. I say we cannot, as taxpayers, afford not to," he said.

Muskie said Ford's program offers no new jobs and proposes cutbacks in the existing, limited emergency programs Congress has enacted.

"The President's plans for our economy are penny-wise and pound-foolish," he said. "Under them, America's factories are producing only three-fourths as many goods as they actually could. That means fewer jobs and higher prices."

"We don't need a new system," Muskie said. "What we need is the will to make our system work."

In his main points, Muskie: • Said Americans can have confidence their government will deal with the problems of the economy, crime, education, spiraling health costs, higher energy prices, and abuses of power by corporations and government itself.

• Called for an open foreign policy and defense of "our real interests" and a pledge to "be neither patsy nor bully for the other nations of the world."

• Urged Americans to vote in November and "put the politicians who seek your vote to a stringent test."

Muskie stressed the need for more jobs and said unemployment can be significantly reduced through direct employment programs — such as public service jobs — and through federal assistance to local communities for short-term public works projects.

He also called for an energy policy that keeps the price of oil and natural gas at "reasonable levels," a food policy that gives farmers "reasonable incomes," and a wage-price council "which will make life miserable for any big corporation that raises prices without very good reason."

Ice age is coming, but don't buy heavy coat yet

• Dr. Hurd C. Willett, a meteorologist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology is predicting the world is going to get chilly. But don't buy a heavy coat for summer wear yet. He says it probably will be from 10,000 to 30,000 years before a real ice age. A "little ice age" however, could occur in a 30-year period during the first half of the 22nd century, at the peak of the current 720-year solar activity cycle.

• Kelly Ann Martin, daughter of New York Yankees manager Billy Martin, has been sentenced to three years in a Colombia prison for trying to smuggle cocaine out of that country.

• If you're bored you can always learn to play "Twelfth Street Rag" backwards and upside down on the piano. Mrs. Frances Fairley, 60, of Memphis, can teach you. To demonstrate, the professional pianist pushed the bench back, climbs under the keyboard, reaches up like an athlete chinning bars, and grins out from under the keys as she cuts loose with right hand playing bass and left hand ringing the treble.

• Pierre Salinger, White House Press Secretary under President John F. Kennedy, says the Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba was Kennedy's "most serious mistake," but American public opinion contributed to the decision to launch the plan.

• Chris Evert Tuesday quickly polished off Kathy Kuykendall and advanced to the quarterfinals of the Virginia Slims tennis tournament in Washington. The quick match may have been because of her hurry to meet her escort for the evening — Jack Ford, the president's son.

Beirut under storm as troops sweep foothills

lim Khaddam led a three-man mission to Beirut for urgent peace talks with Lebanese President Suleiman Frangieh.

KHADDAM SAID the talks were aimed at working out "a final settlement" among Lebanon's warring Moslems, Christians and Palestinians to give the latest cease-fire more weight than two dozen truces broken to date.

But escalating military developments led Arab diplomats and military observers to warn that the Syrian mediation may have come too late.

Communications with Zahle and the eastern sector of the country were cut and most information reaching the capital was from army points.

Ford signs, sends $394.2 billion budget to Congress

people of this country to hold very closely" to Ford's formula, but his Democratic counterpart, Mike Mansfield, commented: "We have cut every budget for the last 10 years. Should this be an exception?"

Expected to face particularly rough going in Congress are Ford's call for reduced welfare spending, higher Social Security taxes and smaller Medicare payments.

On the other hand, the lawmakers probably will go along with the President's proposal for new tax cuts when the current extension of 1975 reductions expires at the end of June.

At the budget-signing ceremony, Ford said "We have arrested a spending trend that increasingly threatened the national security and our national stability . . . It's my judgment we have struck a very workable, honest balance. We will be faithful to the promises, with the support of Congress and the American people."

The President told newsmen he would not hesitate to veto any legislation that would break his fiscal 1977 spending plans although he acknowledged that unforeseen contingencies could force him to change his mind.

"We'll have to wait and see how economic conditions come along," he said.

Ford presented almost no new positive initiatives in his budget. Except for energy research and the Defense Department, which would receive a healthy increase, the budget concentrates on cutting back or holding down federal programs.

His only major new initiative was Congress to allow him to set up the new coordinating office.

Ford would cut back federal social programs by combining 50 federal programs into four block grants to states and ordering that the funds be directed at the poor.

He also proposed that Medicare recipients be required to pay more of their own money for hospital and doctor expenses, but be protected from "catastrophic" illnesses by limiting their payments to no more than $500 for hospitals and $250 for doctors.

Ford's tax plans likely will generate the greatest attention during this election year, especially since Congress must take some action before July 1 if current temporary tax cuts are to be extended. Failure to act would mean an increase in tax withholding rates just four months before the election.

Ford proposed not only extending current individual and business tax cuts, but expanding them by about $4.2 billion this year and about $10 billion in future years. Some form of tax cut—although not necessarily Ford's specific plan—is likely to pass.

However, Ford also proposed a series of business tax changes that probably will not see action this year: cutting the corporate tax rate from 48 per cent to 46 per cent, fast tax write-offs for construction in areas with greater than 7 per cent unemployment and a tax deferral plan for those who make long-term purchases of stock.

More controversial will be Ford's plan to increase the Social Security tax rate to 6.15 per cent from the current 5.35 per cent of income from both employee and employer. Since the wage base on which the tax is calculated will rise to $16,500 in 1977 from the current $15,300, the maximum tax rate will rise from $805.05 to $1,014.75 a year.

Normally deficits in the Social Security trust fund are cut down by raising the wage base alone. Raising the tax rate means that everyone will pay extra, including the low and moderate income worker for whom the Social Security tax is a greater burden than even the income tax.

Although it would amount to a 5.5 per cent increase over 1976 spending, the Ford budget would force cutbacks throughout most of the federal system. In terms of real growth, the Ford budget actually amounts to a slight decrease in spending because inflation is expected to erode its buying power by 5 per cent.

The two basic exceptions are the Defense Department and energy research and development.

Saying, "We dare not do less," Ford recommended an $8.3 billion increase in the defense budget.

The $11.1 billion request, Ford said, means an actual increase in spending beyond the boost to cover inflation. He said he would have to ask for more if the arms limitation talks with the Russians were not successful.

For also called for a record $10.3 billion to speed work on solutions to the energy crisis, a 30 per cent increase over this year's $7.9 billion.

Total federal energy spending, however, will be offset by $4.4 billion from the sale of oil and gas leases, royalties on oil produced from federal leases, the sale of electricity by government power agencies and the sale of nuclear reactor fuel. That left $6 billion for tax money to fund.

The new energy spending proposal included major increases for solar and geothermal power development, nuclear waste disposal research and synthetic fuel production.

Lt. Gov. to be 'No. 2 man' in state if Howlett elected

Sec. of State Michael Howlett pledged to make the lieutenant governor "a member of his cabinet and the No. 2 man in state government" if he is elected governor.

Howlett, who is the regular Democratic organization's candidate for governor, offered his pledge in a statement issued for release today.

The statement was the latest effort by Howlett to point to differences between himself and Gov. Daniel Walker. Walker generally has ignored Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan, a Daley supporter, during the first three years of his administration.

Howlett declared Hartigan has a record of accomplishment, even though he has not been treated as the No. 2 man in the state.

Howlett cited Hartigan's work with senior citizens and in Latin-American affairs, as well as his efforts to get a new Illinois airport near St. Louis and to stimulate economic development.

Earlier this week, Howlett took aim at Walker's use of state-owned television equipment, charging the governor has used the Illinois Information Service to enhance his political career.

Howlett promised not to use the equipment, which has been in service since the administration of ex-Gov. Otto Kerner, to bolster his political image.

Officials face subpoena?

The State Senate Fiscal Committee has threatened to subpoena Walker administration officials to produce Illinois financial records next week, unless the information is provided to the panel voluntarily.

Both State Sen. John Graham, R-Barrington, and State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Glenview, predicted the move in recent days, after officials of the Illinois Dept. of Finance and the Bureau of the Budget have failed to offer information requested by the committee on the state's current fiscal situation.

Nimrod predicted the state could end the fiscal year in June with a deficit of $150 million. He and Graham and other committee members have said the information they want is necessary for the legislature to begin work on the 1977 fiscal budget. The committee wants the information before Walker presents his budget in March.

Regner raps RTA shares

State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, released his comments Wednesday on Regional Transportation Authority's year-end report, which shows the Chicago Transit Authority received over 82 per cent of the RTA's grants.

"We predicted the CTA would receive 70 per cent of the funds. I suppose that when Mayor Daley's hand-picked man, (supported by some suburban RTA commissioners) is the chairman, this is what should be expected."

Regner was a member of a group which campaigned against the passage of the RTA referendum.

"The RTA has proven we who opposed the passage of the RTA referendum correct. In fact, by the issuance of grants it's a bigger force for suburban than even we of the RTA group predicted," Regner said.

Glass heads Young bid

State Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Northfield, will serve as campaign director for Samuel H. Young's congressional campaign.

Glass will work with Roger Rainville, Young's campaign manager, to coordinate his effort to win the Republican nomination in the 10th Congressional District.

Correction

The Herald incorrectly reported in the Wednesday edition that voter registration at area township, village and city halls for the March 16 primary closes Friday.

Voter registration at those locations will actually close Jan. 30. Township halls in Wheeling and Palatine townships will not be open tonight.

Palatine Township officials said voter registration will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Jan. 29 and from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Jan. 30.

The Wheeling Township hall also will be open to register new voters during regular business hours and until 9 p.m. Jan. 29.

Operator assistance to cost 50c

Consumers will pay Illinois Bell Telephone Co. 50 cents for each operator assisted local call, starting Feb. 1, under a rate order approved this week by the Illinois Commerce Commission.

An Illinois Bell spokesman said the current average billing for operator assisted calls is 57 cents. The charge includes 30 cents for the first three minutes and 10 cents for each additional minute. The new charge is a flat rate with no charge for additional minutes of service.

The charge will not be levied in several types of service. These include official Illinois Bell business, emergency calls to designated emergency numbers, calls by disabled persons, calls placed after repeated busy signals and calls where assistance is requested due to telephone service problems.

The ICC is considering Illinois Bell's request for a $178 million rate increase. The deadline for the decision is Feb. 4.

Three seek support of Dist. 25 committee on the ballot in Dist. 25 school board elections April 10.

Beck, who is completing his sixth year on the board, said Wednesday he will not seek reelection in April. "People that I would expect to remain on the board are well qualified to do the job" as are many other members of the community, he said. "I guess I would just as soon give someone else a chance to make their unique contribution to the board," he said.

NEWCOMER Douglas Chidley, 211 N. Lincoln Ln., Arlington Heights, said Wednesday he chose to run for the board because this is "a year when a lot of decisions are coming up." Chidley is a civil engineer with Commonwealth Edison Co. and recently completed a master's degree in business administration at Northwestern University.

He said he felt his background in finance would be of benefit to the district. "I thought someone with those qualifications would be of help," as the district is facing financial problems in coming years.

Chidley's wife is a parttime teacher at Park School in Dist. 25. He said he does not think that his wife's employment with the district would be a conflict of interest and he said he would abstain from voting on matters affecting her directly.

Chidley is being sponsored as a candidate by the North School PTA. His daughter attends classes at the school. He has lived in Arlington Heights all his life and attended Dist. 25 schools.

MRS. JOLLY, 1310 N. Mitchell Ave., has served on the Dist. 25 board since 1973. She was a teacher in Cleveland and Columbus, Ohio, before moving to Arlington Heights. She and her husband Robert have four children.

Gibbins, 507 W. Cedar St., was elected to the board to a one year term last year. He is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy and has a degree in nuclear science. He earned a master's degree in finance from George Washington University. He is now employed by the First National Bank of Chicago.

Other candidates interested in seeking the endorsement of the Dist. 25 Nominating Committee may contact committee chairman Hugh Weed, 292-1109. The committee will make its endorsements Feb. 9 when it meets at 8 p.m. at South Junior High School 301 W. South St., Arlington Heights.

Special vote asked for Harms post

majority agreed with his proposal.

If the election is held after the library vote, he said, it could be expanded to include a referendum on the village form of government. He said such an election would force the board to come to a decision on Ryan's proposed district representation.

"This whole thing can be a good prototype. It can show that an election can be held in a short time instead of dragging it out for a year-and-a-half as they do nationally," Griffin said.

Taken were three pearl necklaces, a pearl bracelet, two gold bracelets, a watch, two garnet pins, a diamond pin, two metal cash boxes and about $7 in cash, police were told.

Police said entry to the apartment was gained by prying open the door.

200 drawn to meeting on incorporation

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, urges support for incorporation.

by DIANE MERMIGAS
A crowd of more than 200 Prospect Heights residents met Wednesday night to discuss the community's Jan. 31 incorporation referendum.

Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. officials, who have organized the incorporation vote, presented residents with facts on the costs of forming a city and answered questions at McArthur Junior High School, Schoenbeck and Palatine roads, Prospect Heights. Many residents cast doubt on the association's proposed $538,665 budget for the new city and the sources of its anticipated $605,505 income the first year after incorporation.

"THE INCOME sources we expect, like personal property and motor fuel taxes, are what you already pay to the county," said Richard Wolf, PHIA president. Wolf assured residents there would be no increase in current taxes and that the city could operate with funds from federal revenue sharing, motor fuel taxes and municipal license fees without levying a municipal property tax.

"We already have park, sanitary, school and fire districts established. They tax for services that are adequate for this community," Wolf said.

"The city will not have any effect on these autonomous districts and their boundaries will not be changed after incorporation," he said in answer to other residents' questions.

STATE REP. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, briefly spoke during the meeting, endorsing the incorporation effort.

"You've got nothing to lose and everything to gain immediately you'll pick up a large amount of the tax money that now goes to the county. But you will have a direct voice in how that money is spent when it comes back to your city," he said.

Some residents questioned the reality of the association's tentative budget.

"The proposed budget seems small because it does not include the cost to support services that are provided by our neighboring municipalities, which have several million dollar budgets," Wolf said. "The cost for these services are not included in our budget, but in the budgets of our independent taxing districts for the library, park, and fire."

PHIA officials said Prospect Heights can "no longer remain unincorporated" because of pressures from the county and piecemeal annexation by adjacent municipalities.

Residents will be insured control over zoning and taxes and will receive improved police protection if they vote to incorporate Jan. 31, officials said.

It will take a majority of the people voting to approve the incorporation, which would become effective Feb. 1.

Riding classes to start Feb. 2, 6

Daylight at 9:30 p.m.!

Teacher wants to put more sun in your life

by PAM BIGFORD

George Swanson would like to see the sun shine until 9:30 at night.

Swanson thinks the country would be better off economically and socially if the sun rose later and set later. And he intends to do something about it.

Swanson, an earth science teacher at Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, has formulated a new daylight-savings plan which would keep the sun shining until about 9:30 p.m. in the peak of the summer, almost an hour later than usual.

THE DAYLIGHT-savings plan which has been in effect the past two years has provided an additional hour of daylight in the evening from March through October.

Swanson's plan calls for yet another hour of daylight from May through August. Instead of the sun setting at about 8:30 p.m. in July, it would not set until 9:30 p.m.

Swanson said that not only would most people enjoy an extra hour of daylight on summer evenings, but it would save money in energy use.

Electrical utility officials estimated a savings of nearly 1 per cent a month took place in 1974 when the present eight-month daylight-savings plan took effect, Swanson said. He predicts that under his proposal, annual electrical production would be reduced another 6 per cent, a savings of 18 million barrels of oil a year.

SWANSON SAID that government studies have shown that traffic accidents and crime were also reduced in 1974 and 1975 during extended daylight hours.

Two possible disadvantages of the plan are foreseen by Swanson. One is that clocks would have to be changed four times a year instead of twice, which may be confusing.

Another is that the current time zones across the U.S. would have to be revised so that some areas would not experience mid-morning darkness. Swanson said he believes present time zones are generally overextended to the West.

The idea for the daylight-extending plan began hatching in Swanson's mind when he realized how few people were able to take advantage of the extra daylight hours in the summer.

SWANSON IS promoting his plan by sending it to local congressmen. U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Illinois, who is on a Senate committee studying the advantages gained in 1974 and 1975 by extending the daylight savings time into March and April, has shown the most interest in the plan, Swanson said.

Swanson hopes his proposal will receive even more publicity Friday night when he appears on "Graftiti," a WLS-TV program hosted by weatherman Joan Coleman. The one-hour program begins at 11:40 p.m. and Swanson is scheduled to appear during the latter half.

Swanson, who has been teaching various sciences for the past 10 years, said people have been proposing daylight-savings plans ever since Benjamin Franklin came up with the first one.

Nongraded classes help poor students

Noncompetitive, nongraded instruction at Elk Grove High School is helping depressed students learn, says a school psychologist.

Between 200 and 300 students who are depressed because they are unsuccessful in the classroom are participating in a program of individualized education that emphasizes personal goals and progress rather than class rank.

Dick Bell, Elk Grove High School psychologist, said the young men and women in individualized instruction are not low-ability students. "Some students can do the work but won't," he explained.

FOR THESE students the realization of success in individual instruction can make the difference between completing their education and dropping out, he said.

"Today, the student who gets a C sees himself as a failure. Only students with A's and B's think of themselves as successes," Bell told a group of social service professionals during a meeting Tuesday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Some students in the Elk Grove High School program sign a mock contract spelling out their educational goals, quality of work and the grade they can receive. The contract "allows the student to monitor his own progress. The student takes responsibility for his own learning," Bell said.

Other students in the program, particularly those who are discipline problems, earn tokens for good behavior. The tokens are exchangeable for free time during which students are allowed to talk or play games.

Individualized instruction is frequently just one aspect of a student's curriculum at Elk Grove High School, and not all students need the special attention. But Bell said the philosophy of the program can be extended throughout the school.

"I want to emphasize noncompetitive education, and would like to see the grading system end. We have too many failures in the school system today," he said.

Parking meters All-American in Mount Prospect

by JOE SWICKARD
Oh, say can you see by the dawn's early light if there's any time left on the parking meter?
Commuters in Mount Prospect may be humming that jaunty tune as they feed the meters in the commuter parking lots. Chicagoans may stand straighter when they park on Clark Street, not to mention the visitors to Rapid City, S.D.
Why all the patriotic fervor when it comes to parking a car? Because the Duncan Parking Meter Co., Elk Grove Village, is selling a star-spangled version of their meter in honor of the Bicentennial.
RALPH B. ELSNER, Duncan's vice president of sales, said, "We developed the idea about a year ago. Last April we showed it around the sales meetings and it was pretty well accepted."

Locally, Mount Prospect chose the national motif when it came time to replace the plexiglass domes on the meters in the commuter parking lots along Northwest Highway.
Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said the meters are in keeping with the town's Bicentennial observance which includes red, white and blue stripes for the police cars and the same colors on the water tower.
ACROSS THE nation, such diverse communities as New Orleans and Rapid City, S.D. — home of Reptile Gardens — have the meters, Elsner said.
"They're not garish at all. They're in good taste," Elsner said.
Duncan markets two versions to help celebrate the country's 200th birthday. One version is the complete meter "head," while the other is a replacement dome, such as Mount Prospect installed.
"They were just a few pennies more and we thought they were kind of nice," Eppley said of the decision to go for the Bicentennial meters rather than the standard gunmetal gray ones.

BECAUSE THE domes can be installed or removed in a matter of minutes with just the turn of a few screws, Elsner said some towns plan to use the colorful domes for future holidays after the Bicentennial.
For those citizens who really don't need a parking meter, Duncan sells lamps made from models municipalities have traded-in on newer ones.
The lamps, generally sold as specialty or novelty items, come with either a gold coat of paint or the red, white and blue version.
Elsner admits the gold version sells better because most people get a little tired of having a red, white and blue parking meter lamp.
To put some minds to rest, the American flag does not pop up when the time expires and Eppley said motorists do not have to stand at attention or salute when they put their nickel in the All-American meters.

A SNOW LINE unexpectedly moved through the Northwest suburbs Wednesday morning bringing four inches of new snow and traffic to a crawl as it drifted across highways. Traffic on Ill. Rte. 53 was no exception. (Photo by Dom Najolia)

Electrical company tells record yearly earnings

Gould Inc., a Rolling Meadows-based manufacturer of electrical and electronic equipment and batteries, Tuesday reported record earnings and earnings per share for the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1975.

Chairman William Ylvisaker said net earnings increased 7.3 per cent to $10.2 million compared to $9.5 million for the same period a year earlier. Earnings per share rose 5.1 per cent to $1.04 in the second quarter of fiscal 1976 compared to the 99 cent earnings in the previous year.

Gould's sales reached $196.2 million compared to $205.2 million in the same period a year earlier.

For the first six months of the fiscal year, sales totaled $375.3 million compared to $412.4 million in the earlier period.

Net earnings rose 6.8 per cent to $19.2 million from $18 million reported the previous year. Earnings per share increased to $1.94 for the first six months, a 4.9 per cent increase from the $1.85 reported for the earlier period.

Commenting on the recent quarterly results, Ylvisaker said, "Profit margins continued to improve and with the economy stabilizing and our sales order rate increasing, we believe fiscal 1976 year-end results will exceed those of the prior year."

J. A. trade fair set Jan. 24-25 at Randhurst

Everything from trunk tie-downs to caramel corn will be shown at the Junior Achievement annual trade fair slated Jan. 24-25 at the Randhurst Shopping Center, Mount Prospect.

Some 35 companies from Des Plaines, Motorola, Kemper, Western Electric, Northwest, North Suburban, Union Oil and North centers will sell products during the fair. Show hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 12 noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

"All JA products sell at reasonable and competitive prices," said Barry Blustein, JA executive director. "We insist all our achievers utilize a break-even chart and marketing principles to establish prices. The actual price, however, is really determined by the consumer and laws of supply and demand."

More than 5,000 area high school students participate in JA programs. An attraction at the weekend fair will be "The New Dawns" of Wheeling High School, who will perform at 2:30 Saturday and Sunday under the direction of Phil Stutz.

Lax enforcement aids bias: official

The government's failure to enforce affirmative action standards is a major reason for continued discrimination against women and other minorities, charged Nancy Kreiter, vice chairwoman of the Women Employed organization, Chicago. Speaking before the House Education and Labor Subcommittee Wednesday, Ms. Kreiter said the Treasury Dept. allows Chicago banks to violate federal guidelines.

Problems included promotion policies, the lack of training programs and biased job categories, Ms. Kreiter said. "Equal opportunity laws have been on the books for many years, and we are still hard-pressed to convince bank women that the law works for them," she said.

Hearings on the federal enforcement of equal opportunity employment laws will continue today in Washington, D. C.

Judge candidate dares opponents

An independent Republican candidate for Cook County Circuit Court judge has challenged his five Republican Party-endorsed opponents to "submit themselves to merit selection" before the March 16 primary.

Leonard B. Grazian of Morton Grove said none of the candidates for the newly created suburban judge-ships have replied to his challenges, but fellow independent William R. Jacobs of Des Plaines has agreed with the plan.

The party-endorsed candidates are State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette; Edward C. Hofert of Mount Prospect; George Marovic of South Holland;

Richard Petraro of Chicago Heights and State Rep. Romie Palmer, R-Blue Island. They, along with four candidates to fill other court vacancies have endorsed an amendment to the Illinois Constitution providing for merit selection of judges.

Grazian said he proposed all Republican judicial candidates appear before a group of attorneys selected by area bar associations and citizens from the Better Government Assn. and let that group choose the best qualified candidates. Candidates not selected would withdraw from the race, Grazian said.

Classroom rape try fails

A masked gunman Wednesday entered a first-grade classroom in Chicago, forced the teacher to take her clothes off in front of her students and attempted to rape her.

The man fled with $16 after the teacher resisted.

Timothy G. King, principal at Simon Guggenheim Elementary School, called the 41-year-old teacher a "heroine" for refusing to submit to the rape in front of the 28 young children in her class.

School officials and between 15 and 20 police rushed to the scene.

Suburbs need vote challenge

The Cook County budget will be considered and passed in the next few weeks with the elected representatives of the suburbs having little influence over it.

That state of affairs is at least partly the fault of the Republicans who have been elected to the county board to represent the suburbs.

Last year the six suburban Republicans used a rule that 3/5ths of the board (six members) were needed to approve an item changing the budget for the county assessor's and county school superintendent's office.

It was the first time the suburbs had six votes, given to them because of the "one man, one vote" rule. We felt the new suburban power had not been used in the most constructive way and that it marked the suburban bloc as a power to be reckoned with in the future.

Unfortunately, the Chicago commissioners learned that lesson, too. In October they changed the ordinance requiring 11 votes for budget items so that only a simple majority of the 16-member board is required.

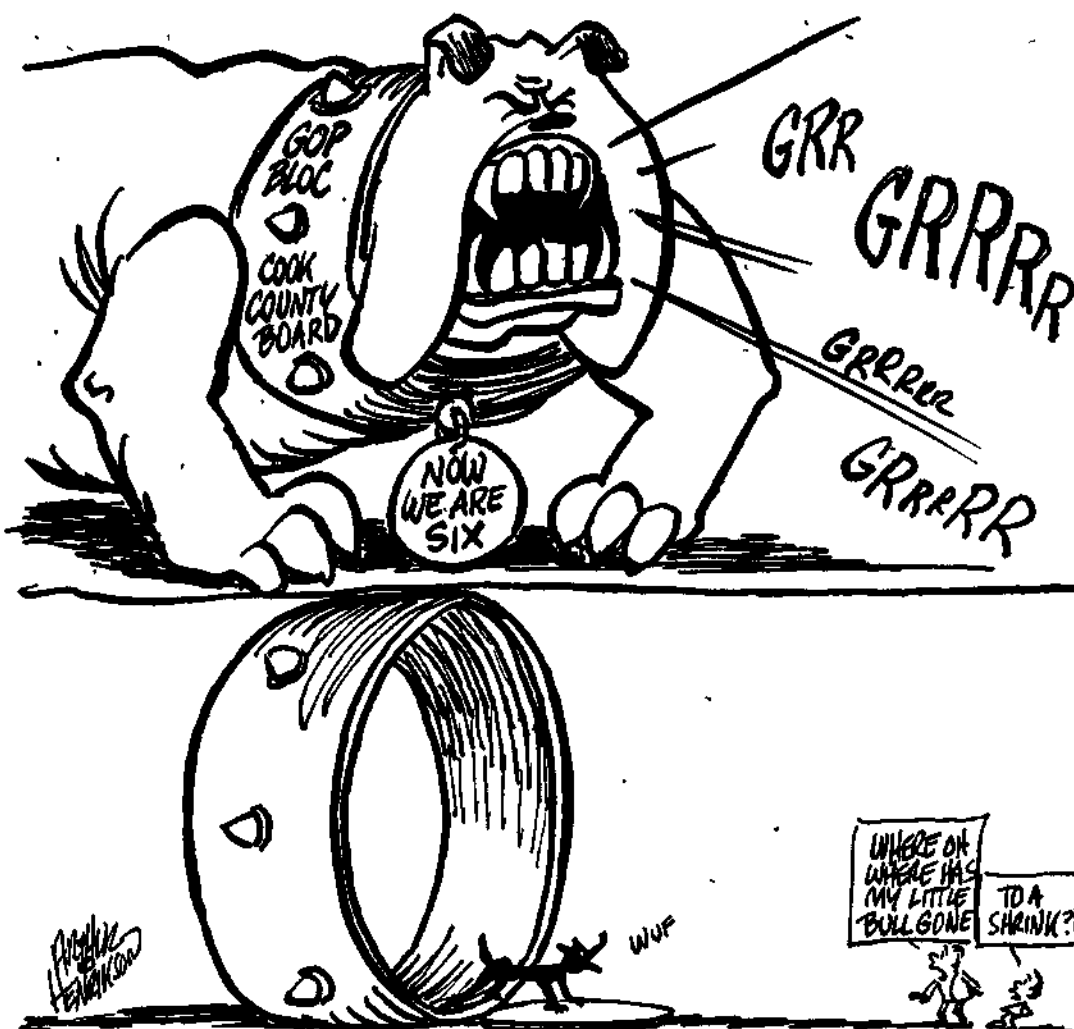

At the time, suburban commissioners Carl Hansen, Harold Tyrrell, Ronald Larsen, Joseph Woods and Mary McDonald protested the move and threatened legal action to regain their veto power.

However, almost three months have passed, and the suburbanites have failed to file the suit. Instead, they have complained about their lack of power and have assured questioners they are "studying" the question of legal action.

The suburbanites might argue that since Comr. Floyd Fulle left the county board the suburbanites cannot effectively use the 3/5ths rule now anyway.

However, it is a sad commentary that the suburban commissioners have made no attempt to win back their procedural power.

It is a delay that can only impress the Democratic board majority with suburban weakness. The longer that weakness persists, the less likely it is that suburban residents will have any real say in the government which affects them.

Reader: 'we have no RTA voice'

Although Bruce Donnelly took a position opposed to mine, I welcome his response. Obviously there are two possible ways to go on this issue; what I hope to do is stimulate everybody who will have to pay for this "service" to express their views. I firmly believe that the results of the referendum that created the RTA did not reflect the wishes of the majority of taxpayers in the six-county area. You will remember that it barely passed. I feel that too many people failed to vote for one reason or another.

I wish that we could have a new referendum; I think it would be overwhelmingly rejected. Remember Prohibition? A "noble" experiment in social control which failed because the people would not support it. Many bad laws enacted, but we don't have to live with them forever if we don't like them.

Bruce proposes that we tell the RTA what we want. Where is the forum and who will speak for us? That is the problem. We have no voice. This RTA-CTA is run by one M. Pikarsky, and he is not about to give us a fair share of our money.

I would like to say that I don't consider my views as negative. I think they are realistic, based on 20 years living in the Chicago area, observing that what Mr. Daley (Dick, that is) wants he usually gets. And what he wants is to build up Chicago and get the suburbs to pay for it. He has stayed in office for all these years by starting out with a huge bloc of sure votes; city "workers" plus all their relatives and friends. His city exists on taxes, euphemistically called subsidies, taken from us by local, state and the federal government.

I commend Bruce for expressing his opinion. He is, no doubt, voicing a view held by many people of his generation, shaped by "the times," his teachers and his contemporaries. I would suggest that the passage of years will temper idealism with realism.

Any pros? Any cons? Let your legislators know either way. We pay them well (more than they're worth) to represent us. While you're at it, tell them what you think about abortion and a return to a system of reward and punishment. Don't let a wailing minority run (ruin) our beautiful country.

Happy 200th and long may she wave!

Judicial plan endorsed

EDITOR'S NOTE: This letter is directed to five Republicans who are running for suburban Circuit Court seats. The author is an independent candidate for the bench.

As a fellow Republican and as a candidate for the same office that you seek (Judge of the Circuit Court of Cook County, outside of the city of Chicago, to fill five additional judgeships) I am delighted to note your public stand concerning merit selection of judges.

I, also, firmly believe that merit selection of judges is the best way to select same. In fact, I feel so strongly about merit selection that I am willing to submit my name along with yours and all other Republican candidates to present ourselves before an impartial group of attorneys, selected by both the Chicago Bar Association, the Chicago Council of Lawyers, all suburban bar associations on a weighted basis, and before a group of impartial citizens selected by the Better Government Association and let them recommend to us whom they believe to be the best five of the group of 11 Republicans seeking the aforesaid office in the March 16 Republican primary. Those not recommended will then withdraw as candidates.

Why should we wait for the day (which may never come) for a law to be passed concerning merit selection of judges, when we can voluntarily do what we believe to be right and correct? I am sure you truly believe in the ideal of putting merit selection of judges into action rather than to give it "hollow words."

I am also forwarding a copy of this letter to the other Republican candidates running for this contested office, requesting that they formally reply. May I hear from you as soon as possible.

Vote 'choice' attacked

As election day approaches there seems to be one question that has received very little coverage. Are Americans going to have the opportunity to choose their government or to register their choice on election day?

Many citizens would say "of course," but are they really right? What kind of choice is it that has already been limited by law to the two political parties who have the same "principles"? The same two parties which have established the requirements and restrictions on all possible competition in nearly every state. In that case is the political process really "open to all"?

In 1974 the party of the working class, the Socialist Labor Party, was thrown off the ballot in Illinois on the justification that its nomination petition, containing 30,000 signatures, didn't include the words "new party" on them. And this is the same Socialist Labor Party that has contested every national election since 1892 with the capitalist class.

In this light, is the use of the adjectives "democratic" or "republic" any more improper in describing the United States than a "communist" country? In the United States and the U.S.S.R., a ruling class seeks to deny the majority, the working class, the right to govern and to own the industries of the land or even to allow the workers the right to the civilized ballot.

In 1976 most workers will again be disenfranchised, however not because the SLP has given up the ballot without a struggle. Remember and think about this when you are asked to sign a petition to help place the Socialist Labor Party on the ballot this year.

Suburban officials wary

U.S. grants scrutinized

by WANDALYN RICE
A news analysis

The teeth of the latest federal gift horse — the U.S. Housing and Community Development Program — are receiving scrutiny these days from Northwest suburban officials.

The program, approved by Congress in 1974, provides grant money for community improvement programs to municipalities over 50,000 population and to "urban counties" such as Cook County for distribution to smaller cities and villages.

THE PROGRAM is expected to bring between $7 million and $10 million directly to the Cook County government this year, depending upon how many suburbs agree to take part in it. In addition, Des Plaines is eligible for $330,000, and Arlington Heights agreed Monday to apply for $134,000 in funds.

Local officials have hesitated to get into the program for two basic reasons — fear of federal "strings" attached to the program in the area of low and moderate income housing and, in the case of the smaller communities, suspicion about participating in a program run by the Democrat-dominated Cook County government.

The City of Des Plaines has so far been the most decisively opposed to participation in the program, having voted in November not to apply for its $330,000 grant. Last year, the city turned down $135,000.

In Arlington Heights, the issue of whether to apply for the available funds has provoked a heated debate on the village board. On Monday night, however, the board approved an application for the funds.

SMALLER NORTHWEST suburban communities have until

Feb. 1 to decide whether to be a part of the community development program administered by the county. Under that program, the county, depending on its analysis of grant applications, will receive the money and distribute it to various communities. Last year Hoffman Estates, Buffalo Grove, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village and Inverness all took themselves out of the county program.

The biggest roadblock toward speedy approval of the program in many communities is the requirement that to receive money a community must have a housing assistance plan which calls for subsidized low and moderate income housing. Arlington Heights and Des Plaines would have to have their own plans, while smaller communities would be part of a county-wide plan.

The feeling of some local officials was summed up bluntly by Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behr, who said the housing plan is "a touchy area as far as our people are concerned. A good portion of our people moved out of the central city because of housing programs that invite minority groups."

THE HOUSING PLAN requires a village or urban county to determine how many persons need subsidized housing either because they are paying too much for rent compared to their income, live in dilapidated housing and cannot afford to move to better housing or need housing they cannot afford because of job opportunities in the community. The plan then must propose ways to meet the housing needs.

The concern of smaller communities of being dominated by Cook County was summed up last week at a Northwest Municipal Conference meeting where suburban officials grilled Terry Hansen, an aide to County Board Pres. George Dunne, on the county's plans for the program.

At one point, Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said, "Let's talk about power. The basic issue is that the suburbs do not believe the county is in their best interests. You're dealing with nervous people who don't think the power structure will work for them."

HANSEN SAID the county has committed itself to work with the suburbs in administering the program and in drawing up a housing assistance plan. "You won't have low and moderate income housing shoved down your throats in return for the money," he said.

Hansen also said the county will work with the suburbs because "we don't have one dollar to spend without the municipalities participating."

Another problem, rarely touched on when the debate over the community development grants gets hot, is that even if a large village applies for funds or a smaller community joins the county program, there is no guaranteed funding because there will probably be more applicants for money than there is money available.

Some officials fear the public may become overly enthusiastic about the possibility of getting a financial windfall from the program.

MOUNT PROSPECT Village Pres. Robert Teichert said he believes when all grant applications are processed, money will go to needier communities and "I don't see a dollar coming to our communities because this program isn't geared to our kind of community."

Rips computers

At Monday night's (Jan. 5) discussion on Universal Pricing Code systems, there wasn't much concern about the computers taking over another phase in our everyday lives. Giving big computer companies a foothold on another business which enables them to recruit more employees into their evergrowing army until they will program every phase of our lives from the time we are born until we die. Please bend, fold or mutilate.

"So you're one of the fellas who have been depicting me as clumsy, eh? — OOPS!"

Will 12-month terms really save money?

Schools ponder year-round plan

by JUDY JOBBITT
Last of a series.

Caught in a money crunch, many school districts are searching for ways to cut costs. One idea receiving increased attention is year-round school — a system in which schools are open 12 months of the year instead of the traditional nine.

Many view year-round schools as a way to save money and prevent the three-month waste of space, time and energy during the summer break.

But the year-round approach means a drastic change, and though it's been studied in the Northwest suburbs, it has received a cool reception here.

TO CHANGE so much in a community, the district must be able to say the change is either substantially better educationally or an emergency situation," said Frank Whiteley, superintendent of Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

Whiteley said the "societal shocks" on the community would prevent his district from going to a year-round plan.

A year round school results in students rotating in and out of school, staggered vacations, and full use of all facilities regardless of the season.

In the more than a dozen school systems operating year-round in the United States, four basic plans are followed:

- The 45-15 staggered plan, in which students attend school for 45 days and then have a 15 day break. Only three-quarters of the student body attend school at any one time.

- The 45-15 block plan, in which students attend school for 45 days followed by the 15 day break. All students are in school at the same time and schools are closed during the break.

- The quarter voluntary plan, in which the year is divided into quarters and students select the three quarters they will attend. Students may attend all four quarters in high school and graduate early.

- The quarter mandatory plan, which is similar to the voluntary plan except students are assigned three quarters and may not attend all four. Only three-fourths of the students are in school at a time.

THE YEAR-ROUND system has saved school districts money, but only under certain conditions — conditions that are rare in the Northwest suburbs today.

Converting to a year-round plan can save on construction and renovation costs. Districts that are growing rapidly can cut back on the number of schools needed by one-fourth since a quarter of the students are always out on break.

Districts facing massive renovation on antiquated schools could instead close older schools and not replace them because less space is needed under the year-round plan.

Teachers also have a financial incentive for working in the system because their paycheck is based on a longer school year.

YET WHEN THE concept was studied locally five years ago when most districts were building schools to meet enrollment increases, administrators discovered financial disadvantages with the year-round system.

"We found if you go into all the accounting it's not so rosy," said Marvin Plate, High School Dist. 211 director of research and information.

Districts might spend more money with a year-round program, Plate said, because there would be additional heating, air conditioning and lighting costs in operating schools all year. Savings might also be lost because teachers would be paid for working a full year.

Dist. 365 finds success in extended school year

Summer comes and schools close — that's the American way. But scattered school districts in Illinois have started a new tradition — year-round school.

Valley View Dist. 365 in Romeoville and Bolingbrook is one that threw out the "old-fashioned" nine-month school calendar five years ago and started using the 45-15 Continuous School Year Plan.

Students in southwest suburban Dist. 365 attend school for 45 days and are then off for 15 days, and only three-fourths of the student body attends school at a time.

VALLEY VIEW WAS forced into the system in 1970 when school building needs outgrew the district's finances. Voters consistently approved bond referendums to build new schools, but the district reached its maximum bonding limit in 1970 and money for new construction ran out.

The district had three alternatives, said James Gove, assistant superintendent. It could go to half-day sessions, increase class size to 60 students or try a year-round system to get maximum use out of the buildings.

The first two options were rejected by educators and residents. The year-round program appeared to be the best option available.

Roderick McLennan, High School Dist. 214 assistant superintendent for instruction, said year-round school might cost more money than operating a nine-month program and summer school.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS get extra state aid for summer school and pay teachers less for summer courses, he said. The year-round school loses summer school state aid. One of the major obstacles to converting any Northwest suburban district to a year-round system is the number of school districts in the area.

McLennan said one of the reasons the system was rejected in Dist. 214 was the problem of coordinating a high school district on a year-round schedule with seven feeder elementary districts that might remain on a nine-month calendar.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, one of the few local districts that might benefit financially from the system because of its soaring enrollment, also rejected the idea because of its ties with Dist. 211 and Dist. 15 which also feeds into Dist. 211.

DIST. 54, WITH 17,000 students and 29 schools, has tentative plans to build 16 to 18 more schools before enrollment stabilizes.

Marvin Lapicola, Dist. 54 assistant superintendent for finances, said although his district might save in building costs, the problems of coordinating schedules with Dist. 211 and Dist. 15 are too massive.

ADMINISTRATORS in school districts with declining enrollments do not see any financial benefits to a year-round system because those schools do not need the open space the system would create.

But even if the year-round system was financially practical, administrators are unanimously opposed to the possible uproar in their districts if a year-round school system was proposed.

McLennan stated it simply: "Parents like the idea of a summer vacation."

The district designed student schedules so that youngsters in the same family are off at the same time and whole neighborhoods of students are in or out of school together.

The system gives teachers the choice of working the nine-month year, following their class's schedule or working a full year — about 240 days.

THE 45-15 PLAN has received mixed reactions from teachers.

Elementary teachers are enthusiastic about the system now that some of the initial problems have been worked out, said William Jenkins, assistant principal at Ridge View School.

When the 45-15 plan was started, some youngsters had a different teacher for each quarter and teachers had to face a new group of students every 45 days. Now a system has been worked out for the elementary schools so a youngster has the same group of teachers throughout the year.

High school teachers are less excited about the year-round program. Many complain that the system makes teaching too impersonal and doesn't give teachers enough time to plan new programs.

One English teacher said in a normal high school, a teacher is assigned to about 125 students a year. Under the 45-15 plan, a teacher sees 160 students each quarter, or up to 640 a year.

DAVID CARLSON, assistant principal at Romeoville High School, said one problem with the system has been a drop in student participation for extra-curricular activities. Students are allowed to return to school to participate in sports and other activities while they are on break.

Despite the reservations, the system apparently has been accepted by the community. Gove said very few parents have objected. He said vandalism also has dropped in the community since the 45-15 plan was adopted.

The business community has shown its support by offering high school students jobs throughout the year, with the students working during his or her 15-day break periods.

Gove questioned whether the community would have accepted the year-round plan if a crisis hadn't existed. With residents' support, the system has succeeded.

In Valley View, year-round school has solved the district's space problem and prevented the district from building too many schools — a problem Northwest suburban districts are facing today.

And if enrollment drops, Dist. 365 can always go back to the old-fashioned calendar Americans have known for so long.

Will attitudes change?

Suburbs skim surface of needed rape reformby BARBARA LADD
(last in a series)

"One of the reasons that men continue to rape is that they continue to get away with it."

—Author Susan Brownmiller

At least one rape occurs in the United States every minute, or so members of the 1974 Illinois Rape Study Committee estimated after compiling available evidence.

One rape every minute... It is a frightening statistic for women living in a civilized society. And the FBI reports rape leads the violent crime list in the rate of increase.

In the past, victims of rape were humiliated not only by the experience but by the insensitive treatment that followed. Their moral character was impugned by police, hospital personnel lawyers and often, unfortunately, their family and friends.

Several years ago concerned persons, primarily those involved in the women's movement, began working to improve victim services, to educate the public about rape, to initiate change within the criminal justice system and to press state legislatures for changes in laws relating to rape.

THE EFFECT IS BEING felt here.

• A Rape Crisis Line was formed three-and-a-half years ago in Chicago to counsel victims through the experience.

• Last year the Chicago Hospital Council formalized the hospital procedure for rape cases, a procedure adopted by area hospitals, including Lutheran General, Northwest Community, Holy Family and Alexian Brothers. So far, it seems to have helped eliminate confusion in treatment and aided police in their investigations.

• Also last year the State of Illinois made it illegal for hospitals to refuse emergency treatment of rape victims. Previously, the Rape Study Committee established it was difficult for some police forces to find hospitals where they could take victims for treatment.

• The state legislature also made it illegal in 1975 for accident and health insurance policies to exclude emergency rape treatment from their coverage.

MORE SUBTLE EFFECTS concerning rape are evident. Linda Swanson, an Arlington High School physical education instructor, teaches a course on self-defense for junior and senior girls. Rape is a central focus in her teachings.

When she started the course five years ago, Ms. Swanson said

MANY EXPERTS on rape prevention argue that self-defense techniques are of limited value. However, interest in karate and other self-defense courses has grown among area women. These women are taught tactics which range from breaking holds to gouging the eyes of their attacker.

she did not use as violent an approach as she now does in her instruction. Previously, she said she taught the girls to break a hold and run. "Now we are talking about dislocating the attacker's knees and gouging his eyes," she said.

Mrs. Swanson also informs her students on what to do after a rape and how to avoid rape situations before they happen.

The Maine Dist. 207 schools all have health courses which provide information on rape procedures. Prospect, Forest View and Buffalo Grove high schools in Dist. 214 also have specific courses dealing with rape procedures or self-defense. Other schools report the subject comes up in courses like human relations, but no rape topics are structured into the curriculums.

THE RESULTS from including rape procedure information in classes have been positive in one instance, at least. Jackie Carrier, director of ambulatory services at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, said a young girl who had been raped was brought to the emergency room.

"Her attitude was one of knowledge of what was happening and she told us her school had taught rape procedures in health class," Mrs. Carrier said. "She was psychologically better off than many her age because of it."

Another approach area women are taking involves commercial self-defense classes. Last autumn a chain of karate studios in the Chicago area offered a free six-week course in rape defense. Both Arlington Heights and Hoffman Estates studios reported having about six women enroll. The majority have continued their instruction after the six weeks ended.

Kathie Gammie, Palatine, is taking karate lessons for self-protection, although she enrolled before the rape course began. She said she had a "scare" once on her way to work as a dialysis technician in Chicago.

"If a guy attacks you it's hard to use power, especially if he's six-foot-something and 200 pounds. Here they teach you to be calm and use your head," she said.

MS. GAMMIE, a slender 19-year-old of average height, has learned to defend herself against attacks involving up to four men.

Adult education courses in the various districts offer self-defense or karate in night classes.

According to the report from the Rape Study Committee, "Self-defense is not a solution to the problem of rape, but some female witnesses speculated that many rapists could be stopped if women were not socialized to be passive, and discouraged from fighting back."

In addition to self-defense instruction, a film has been circulating around the high schools and area hospitals. The film, "How to Say No to a Rapist and Survive," features Frederick Storaska, executive director of the National Organization for the Prevention of Rape and Assault. In the film he gives advice on what to do if ever in a rape situation.

HOWEVER, in other areas, progress has been slow.

A Mount Prospect police officer said his force treats rape "just like any other crime." There are no special courses or training in the handling of rape calls for all police officers. Some investigators have had training in "sex offenses," which also includes prostitution.

The Illinois Rape Study Committee established that, at least in DuPage County, inept police reports or interviews were a primary factor in acquitting rapists who had all other evidence pointing to their guilt.

Not all police have women on the force to question victims who may be uneasy about talking to men about their rape experience. The Cook County Sheriff's Dept. has four investigators — none women. While local forces also lack women investigators, many — including Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine — have women who could be called upon to assist in the questioning.

AND PROGRESS has been made changing attitudes of police officers. With one exception, all police officers contacted by The Herald expressed serious concern for the rape victims they have dealt with.

This attitude hasn't been as prevalent elsewhere — in Chicago, for example, where more than a thousand rapes are reported each year.

A training bulletin used by the Chicago Police Dept. was rewritten a few years ago. Older bulletins had emphasized the goal of disproving the victim's charges. The newer version encourages assistance to the victim and apprehension of the assailant.

Although it is illegal for hospitals to refuse treatment of rape victims, victims are still the ones to bear the financial burden. Some hospitals charge up to $75 for treatment and collection of evidence that might be used in trial. The State Department of Public Health might pick up the bill if a victim is impoverished, and health insurance will cover the treatment, but if neither of these is an option for the victim, she must pay, even though no other crime makes the victim pay for trial evidence.

ALSO IT IS STILL permissible to bring out the past sexual conduct of rape victims in trial. On the other hand past sexual offenses of the accused rapists are not allowed.

A bill currently before the Illinois General Assembly would make sexual conduct of the victim inadmissible as evidence for the defense.

Other bills before the legislature, which are a result of the Rape Study Committee in 1974, include:

• Amending the Illinois Police Training Act to require techniques of rape investigation as a part of the minimum curriculum for police training schools.

• Redefining rape to include anal penetration.

• Expanding the definition of threat of force.

• Limiting the defense's use of consent if the victim fails to scream or offer physical resistance.

Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, who chaired the Rape Study Committee, said he expects these amendments to pass this year.

From fear to rage and reform

by BARBARA LADD

I know the fear — of dark places, empty parking lots, deserted streets. The fear perpetuates itself with advice from others: don't go out alone after dark, don't get into an elevator with a strange man, don't park far away from building entrances. Most females know and understand this fear, I believe. The fear is rape.

But the fear is replaced by rage in Susan Brownmiller's book "Against Our Will: Men, Women and Rape" (Simon and Schuster, $10.95). Hers is a rage of the place rape has taken in society. She backs up her conclusions with a grueling 400 pages of statistics and testimony from rape victims.

"From prehistoric times to the present, I believe, rape has played a critical function. It is nothing more or less than a conscious process of intimidation by which all men keep all women in a state of fear," she writes.

SHE STATES, "Man's discovery that his genitalia could serve as a weapon to generate fear must rank as one of the most important discoveries of prehistoric times..."

She believes monogamy began as a political maneuver between men and women: protect me from rape and harm by other men and I will be yours.

Women became viewed as property of man in many cases through abduction, forcible rape or purchase. In fact, rape entered the law in the 18th century as a crime against man's property. During slavery in this country those rules were stretched. After all, the slave's body — all parts — belonged to her white master, therefore rape of slaves did not "exist."

Brownmiller believes rape is a means to oppress and overpower women and it is fed by the "mass psychology of the conqueror" — man can and will triumph.

IN WARTIME, says Brownmiller, rape becomes "pretty SOP — Standard Operating Procedure." Through history she proves her point, concluding with Vietnam, where rapes were for all practicality, unreported. There was "an unspoken military theory of women's bodies as not only a reward of war but as a necessary provision, like soda pop and ice cream, to keep our boys healthy and happy," she writes.

Brownmiller rings of militant feminism but her reforms seem sensible. She lashes out against pornography and prostitution which portray the women as objects to be used. She attacks the law enforcement agencies for having so few women on the forces. She rages at the legal system for:

• Prejudicing facts with gender, which excludes homosexual rapes and puts women on an unequal basis in court.

• Making rape penalties extremely high so that few judges are willing to convict (in some states rape sentences are as high as death or life imprisonment).

• Making rape between husband and wife non-existent.

• Allowing facts about the victim's past sexual conduct to be permissible in court.

Brownmiller's rage seeps through to the reader, just as it seeped through to her over four years of steady research. But just as the book outrages, it also can offend with her be-with-me-or-against-me attitude. The questions arise: Are her examples too pat? Are her testimonies too stereotyped? Has she lost all objectivity concerning rape?

REGARDLESS, her book is brilliantly written and has armed women with reasons for rape reform. Brownmiller advocates that women fight back with force, both physically and emotionally. She wants to change the system, in attitudes and in power imbalance. After reading her book, others will want these things, too.

In a supposedly civilized and free society it is unfair that half the population should be afraid of the other half just because of dark places and empty parking lots. Brownmiller helps us understand our fear. And, she helps us to direct our rage.

Lawyer advertising issue heading for the courts?

Illinois lawyers have opted for a showdown with the U. S. Justice Department over the issue of advertising.

The state bar association's public relations officer, David Anderson, concedes it "looks that way" after last Saturday's 66 to 20 vote "strongly opposing" advertising by individual lawyers.

As our continuing coverage of this issue has indicated, the Justice Department has declared it considers advertising bans anti-competitive and the Federal Trade Commission has already gone after such ethical restrictions in pharmacy, optometry, and other professions.

Seeing the writing on the wall, committees of the American Bar Association and the Illinois Bar Association drafted proposals striking down the legal profession's advertising ban.

But now, the rank and file in Illinois have rejected that escape hatch, and in so doing have ensured that Illinois delegates to the American Bar convention next month will also vote "no" on this issue.

But regardless of either vote, Anderson observed, "Our restriction could not stand if the Justice Department decides advertising bans are not in the public interest and that becomes the law of the land."

Let them appear to be disinterested in the public interest, the lawyers Saturday decided that they favor the "organized bar communicating the availability of legal services to consumers."

Such advertising, according to Anderson, would not promote the experience or fees of individual lawyers. The advertising committee, he said, favors making law lists available to the public — lists of attorneys, their experience, their education.

Such profound information, is, of course, already available in an awesome volume called Martindale-Hubbard Legal Directory in your public library. The bar association, we are told, may engage in advertising to let us all know that we can trot down to our library and peruse Martindale-Hubbard. Wonderful.

On the other hand, Anderson said, the bar might consider compiling directories of its own — presumably limited to particular localities — which might possibly include some basic fees. It would be a start.

Considerably more baffling than the vote on advertising was the vote on specialization. Anderson emphasized that the bar assembly "endorsed the concept of specialization," but they soundly rejected a specific plan for implementing specialization.

The plan would have created 22 specialties and a commission appointed by the state supreme court to oversee them. Requirements for specializing would have included five years' experience in that field and 45 hours continuing legal education.

Mysteriously, bar members balked at the 45-hour requirement, but defeated an amendment to delete it. In addition, despite a survey showing that 65 per cent of the state's lawyers oppose certification of specialties by testing, they defeated a motion to forbid testing.

"You can understand our confusion at this point," said the vice chairman of the specialization committee, Lawrence Elger. His committee must now go back to the drawing boards with the specialization issue, but they have no idea what direction to take with it.

"We'll have to sound out members on whether they want certification. We may have misgauged — we thought they wanted something less stringent. But the committee has favored certification from the start."

Certification would formalize the de facto practice of specialization and provide some protection to the public against incompetence.

But what good will it do if the public can't readily find out who's a specialist in what — and approximately what kind of fees they charge?

Advertising by individual lawyers would most certainly lead to all manner of scandalous deception and vicious hucksterism, we are told by the lawyers.

Why is it members of this exalted profession have so little faith in themselves and their colleagues, not to mention the law itself, which now stringently regulates advertising at every level of government?

Curious about carbohydrates

Please tell me how many carbohydrates a day a person should consume. I am a female, 35 and counting calories and carbohydrates to maintain my weight.

To avoid the chemical imbalance of the body called acidosis you should have at least 50 grams of carbohydrate a day. For a good sound diet you need more than that. The bulk in fresh leafy vegetables, carrots, whole cereals for bran and what fiber there is in raw fruit is quite important to your normal digestive functions.

Then the vegetable, cereal and fruit foods are a major source of many important vitamins. Milk which contains lactose sugar is our major source of calcium in the diet. Everyone should have a half to one quart of fortified skim milk a day unless they have lactose intolerance. Cottage cheese, buttermilk and yogurt can be used for part of the calcium. If you limit your carbohydrate intake by eliminating or severely limiting milk or milk products you will be calcium deficient. That can even lead to poor teeth, bone loss and a host of serious problems.

To answer your question, the amount of carbohydrates you need each day is the amount you find in the important foods needed for a healthy balanced diet. While I applaud your efforts to avoid obesity I must tell you the best way to do this is with a well-balanced diet that won't harm your health, combined with a sound exercise program.

Those who want more information on a sound weight losing diet can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

My husband who is 59 had a heart attack about 10 years ago. He recovered after six months and returned to work.

Since then he has had a slow pulse. Twice he has had to be hospitalized because of this. The one time his pulse was 38, the other time it was 40. There was no further damage to his heart but it takes a while to recuperate. What could be causing this and what could be done to prevent further attacks?

A slow pulse in a young individual in good physical condition is merely a sign of good fitness. In these individuals the rate can increase at once if the heart needs to increase the amount of blood it pumps.

A heart attack and some other forms of heart disease may damage the electrical bridge between the top and bottom of the heart. This condition is called AV block. When this happens, the heart may beat slowly, but unlike the athlete's heart, it cannot speed up enough to increase circulation if that is needed. That is why the patient gets into trouble. Often there is not enough blood being pumped to the brain and fainting or even convulsions can occur.

Yes, this can be treated. In some instances the problem can be managed with medicines. In still others a simple pacemaker can be installed that will enable the heart to beat faster and provide enough circulation to prevent problems.

Americans consume too much sugar

Dear Dorothy: I became alarmed when one of your readers suggested adding sugar to vegetables. While this may enhance flavor, it could contribute to other problems. What about those people who have low blood sugar problems, like hypoglycemia? In 1900 the average per-capita consumption of sugar in the United States was about four pounds. Now, it's about 105 pounds a year! A squeeze of lemon juice also perks up the taste of vegetables. —Hellen Scruggs

Excellent point. The amount of sugar we consume, all of it wasted calories as far as I can learn, is unbelievable. Even a pinch of sugar adds up when one uses many pinches.

Dear Dorothy: Your advice to Mrs. Makczek on how to prevent her new sofa from fading did not go far enough. The only solution is the plastic tinking that various firms use to coat windows. These tints come in a variety of shades, including clear and there is a special formula to screen out fading rays of the sun. Tinted glass will not work. Only plastic coating keeps the damaging rays out. —Karen P. McCrystal

Dear Dorothy: Here's a hint to help others. When I have lots of vegetables to clean and cut up (but not chop) I put a good-sized band-aid on the fleshy part of my thumb. I now clean radishes, onions and make carrot and celery sticks, and never have a cut or rough thumb or finger. —Mrs. Wilma Medley

Dear Dorothy: When garbage disposals develop odors, put in three tablespoons or more of dry baking soda and leave overnight. The odor will be gone by the next day. —Indy Roberts

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 288, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60005.)

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Warren

Karen Schroer - William Warren

The pearls worn by her grandmother at her wedding many years ago were worn Dec. 28 by Karen M. Schroer when she became the bride of William A. Warren.

Karen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Schroer, Arlington Heights, and her bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Warren, East Rochester, N.Y., were married in Faith Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights, in a 5:30 p.m. candlelight, double ring service.

The newlyweds are residing in East Rochester where Bill, a '74 graduate of Wittenberg University, teaches music in East Rochester High. Karen completed her college work in December and will receive her degree from Wittenberg in June.

HER SISTER, Kathryn, was maid of honor and the groom's sister, Tracey, was bridesmaid. The girls were in emerald green and carried red carnations with baby's breath. In white with red and green plaid trim, was Karl Schroer, 6-year-old cousin of the bride from Excelsior, Minn. who was flower girl.

Karen's gown was of satin with pearl beading. A fingertip veil and a bouquet of orchids completed her bridal ensemble.

Best man was Martin Porter, South Charleston, Ohio, and groomsmen was George Posin, Columbus, Ohio. Ushers were Todd Smiland, St. Paul, Minn., and Tom Indiana, East Rochester.

Mikania plant her newest 'find'

Have you ever heard of the mikania plant? It wasn't exactly a household word around my house, until this winter when I grew it for the first time. I can't say enough good things about mikania. It is a prolific grower, perfect for hanging basket treatment in a cool, sunny room, it makes a big show, tolerates abuse, and is very frilly, feminine and graceful. Frankly, I'm nuts about my latest "find."

Judging from the fact that I couldn't find it featured among the common houseplants mentioned in the half a dozen or so everyday houseplant books I consulted, I'd guess it hasn't come into vogue as the popular numbers like wandering Jew, Swedish Ivy, Boston fern and that ilk. Personally, I find it tiresome to grow hanging plants that everybody else grows. I'd be willing to trade five "old-hat" spider plants for a lanium, a Bermuda buttercup, a rhipsalis, or a single mikania cutting, any day.

THE MIKANIA is an Oriental-looking, trailing plant that can be trained to climb. It propagates easily by taking three-inch cuttings. A native of South America and some parts of North America, it grows faster than wandering Jew (if that is possible!). Established plants prefer full sun and even moisture. When the plant is quite dry, it will wilt badly — to the point that the grower is panic-stricken. But a quick drink, and the plant perks up again even more beautifully than before. It takes about six weeks to get a real showstopper out of a newly-planted basket of mikania. So far this winter, I've succeeded in getting about 15 gardeners hooked on growing this fantastic hangup.

YOU CAN ASK AT your local greenhouse, if they have or can get this daisy-family (compositae) plant for you. I've picked up baskets of mikania and rooted cuttings from Hermann Pigors, owner of the exotic Oak Hill Gardens on Binnie Road, in Dundee, who refers to mikania as "the plush vine" — and plush it is! Hermann used to be the top orchid grower at Hausermann's in Elmhurst until he left to go into business for himself a few years ago.

For a real winter-time treat and an opportunity to see some beauties that are not commonplace, perhaps a visit to Hermann's greenhouse is in order. Besides mikania, Hermann grows Spanish moss, bilbergia, fatsia, vriesia, fidularium, stagbhorn, maiden-hair, and bird's nest ferns, ming aralia, the new dracaena marginata tri-color, and orchids galore among his benches.

ALL YOU NEED ARE a half-dozen slips of mikania to get enough plants for a full hanging basket. The purplish-green slips root well in vermiculite and sand or in water. Pot rooted cuttings in a loose, airy mixture of two parts potting soil, one part leaf mold and one part vermiculite with good drainage (pea gravel in bottom of pot). Established plants produce yellow-white flowers in clusters similar to eupatorium, to which mikania is closely related. Clusters are vaguely reminiscent of mikania's cousin, gynura, "the velvet plant," in shape and form, except that gynura produces orange-brown flowers, which contrasts strangely with its purple-green foliage. Mikania is much more delicate and lacy-looking than the angular-leaved velvet plant, which turns me off because of its tendency to curl under its leaves.

Hermann Pigors classifies mikania as slightly difficult for beginners, but the community of us that grows it finds mikania a cinch to raise if grown cool (60 at night, 65 degrees during the day).

With the accent of a purple and white yarn macrame hanger you can make yourself, here is a stunning, choice addition to your collection. Come summer, you can hang mikania outdoors on the patio.

Sectionals sideline MSL volleyballers

by PAUL LOGAN

The Mid-Suburban League's two sectional qualifiers were eliminated from the Glenbrook North Tournament Wednesday night ending their quest for a trip downstate to the girls' volleyball finals.

Schaumburg was sidelined in the first match by defending state champion New Trier East, 20-13, 21-19. Libertyville ousted Forest View in the second contest, 11-20, 20-15, 20-1.

The two winners will meet for the Glenbrook North sectional championship Thursday night at 7:30. The survivor of that game will advance to the Rolling Meadows Super Sectional Tuesday night against Barrington, winner of the Buffalo Grove Sectional.

Schaumburg thwarted

In the opening match, New Trier East broke quickly from the gate with 10 straight points to take a 14-2 command. Schaumburg gamely battled back to trim the deficit to 15-10 before New Trier rejected the rally to capture the game, 20-13.

The second contest was a tense battle in the opening stages before the Indians again assumed control. New Trier opened a 15-7 lead before the Saxons again staged a dramatic comeback.

Schaumburg pulled within one, 17-16 before an illegal hit thwarted the rally. The Saxons refused to concede, though, and tied the score at 18-all before New Trier halted out the thriller, 21-19.

Mary Maher, Schaumburg's coach, praised the hard-hitting style of New Trier's Lauren Goebel, the only returnee from the Indian's state championship outfit of last year. "She intimidated us."

"She probably hits harder than anybody on our team," Indian coach Bonnie Beach agreed. "But I wouldn't say she's the whole team. I thought the games were okay, but they were not two of our better games."

Schaumburg, which will have five starters returning next year, finished with a 10-7 record while New Trier hiked its record to 10-5.

Forest View edged

The first game saw Forest View jump to a 9-1 lead behind the serving of Cathy Del Guidice. The Falcons enjoyed a 14-3 advantage before the Wildcats made their move, cutting the margin to 15-10.

The Falcons received the momentum they needed on a combined block by Debbie Brinkman and Bonnie Rogosch which padded the score to 16-10. From there, Forest View rolled to a 20-11 victory.

The second confrontation was very evenly matched. Libertyville broke a 13-13 deadlock before pulling away to a 20-15 triumph to set up the third and deciding contest.

The momentum Forest View enjoyed in the first game drained away in the second and completely vanished in the third.

The Libertyville Wildcats coasted to their 16th win in 18 starts by forcing Falcon mistakes.

Libertyville's Lisa Hoogesteger and Jeanne Yingst led the way in the deciding game with strong spiking and dunking. The Wildcats raced out to an 18-0 lead.

One of the Wildcats' few mistakes — a return into the net — provided Forest View with its only point off the service of Kim Smid.

"We didn't miss very many serves," said Libertyville coach Gretchen Hausmann. "I think there were just two all night."

"I don't think we ever played a solid game like that before. We kept the ball in play and waited for them to make mistakes."

Forest View head coach Denise Van Huele said her team had not been beaten that badly in one game all season. The Falcons finished with a 21-4 record.

Veck's style takes White Sox tour from champagne to beer

The head table wasn't set. There were no chairs.

When the guests filtered in, they sat at any of the many small tables they cared to choose. Each grouping had a head-table type person.

After dinner, every celebrity spoke. Then the man they had all come to see and hear took over... using the head table's edge as a chair.

That's Bill Veck's style — casual as a can of beer. It was the 10th annual White Sox press tour. It was also the first chance for media people outside Chicago to meet the baseball club's new owner.

Monday was the first of a seven-city, two-state ChiSoc bus caravan. These annual January tours were started by Veck in 1960. Although ill health forced him to sell the club in '81, this public relations project continued.

However, the previous seven I've attended were more formal. A champagne version. All the dignitaries sat at the dais. It was plastic, distant.

Last year's Sox dinner was a sickening affair. Chuck Tanner viciously attacked announcer Harry Caray as his group to come to dinner, but Hemond ignored the calls in order to finish.

Ralph Garr, a bona fide batting champion, came to the Sox on that final trading day. As far as Garr is concerned, it was the greatest thing that's ever happened to him. He's as happy as Hemond.

"Some people were talking about how cold it is up here, but the people are really nice," he said. "I hope Mr. Veck will make a difference. It ain't as much fun (playing ball) as it used to be."

Veck is a five-letter word for fun. He's been saving ideas on scraps of paper over the past 10 years. "I've got 1,000 or 1,700 notes," he said. "Some of them will work." Fans who have seen him in action know almost all will be successful.

"We hope to avoid being dull this summer," he continued. Veck's been called a lot of things over his 50 years in the game, but never dull.

As soon as possible, a work crew will be tearing up what Veck referred to as "that horrible abortion... the concrete grass."

If a speedy, defensive outfielder is found before opening day, the center field barrier will join the artificial grass in the dump.

Although Comiskey Park is old, Veck loves the charm it and other ancient parks have. The fans are close to the action. He recounted the World Series of how Boston's Fenway Park had "30,000 participants instead of 50,000 spectators" as was the case in Cincinnati's new stadium.

However, to make Comiskey more attractive, it will be cleaned and painted from top to bottom.

Minnie Minoso, one of Sox' most famous former stars, will "be visible," according to Veck, possibly meaning he'll be coaching first or third base. (Maybe the Cubs will see this and wise up, returning Ernie Banks to Wrigley Field as a coach, too.)

"We're going to revitalize the scoreboard," Veck promised. He initiated the exploding variety in 1960. Lord knows what new ideas he has in mind.

Someone asked if he had talked to Stachel Paige about coming to work for the Sox. "Just casually," said Veck. "He's warming up in his basement."

Bill Veck's just beginning to warm up, too. When this master of baseball starts pitching for real, he again will dominate the major leagues.

In past years, Tanner would be quick to say that his team was the best he'd ever taken to spring training, was a definite contender or some other facsimile. When Veck was asked when the Sox would finish this season, he simply said, "In Chicago!"

Until he bought the club, Sox fans had the feeling their team would finish in Seattle.

Baseball happiness is returning to the southside again. Maybe a pennant isn't too far behind.

Tennis superstar faces a different kind of pressure

by PAUL LOGAN

Chris Evert, Billie Jean King and Evonne Goolagong know what it's like to be one of the top tennis players on the Virginia Slims Circuit. It's super, but...

Besides the huge pots of gold waiting at each tour stop, there are those "other things" that go along with wearing the mantle of No. 1. Just ask Martina Navratilova, the circuit's newest superstar.

"I think, tennis-wise, I'm ready this year," she said. "But this press thing gets to me."

Martina relaxed in the Berkley Racquet Club lounge in Arlington Heights after putting on a brief exhibition Wednesday. It was the second stop at a Chicago club. Flying by helicopter, she had been to the Right Club in Schaumburg earlier in the afternoon.

Minutes later she would take off again for the last stop on her whirlwind promotional junket for the upcoming (Jan. 26-31 at the Amphitheatre) Virginia Slims Tournament in Chicago.

Meeting the media (she was cornered by all three television networks at her first stop) wasn't the only challenge that comes from being a star. The 19-year-old from Czechoslovakia also found it trying at times to satisfy the crowds of autograph seekers as well as bouncing around from place to place for promotions.

And then there are still other things like the two days she spent earlier this week competing in the Superstars competition.

"The Superstars is not an easy competition," she said between drinks of orange juice. But she advanced to the finals by winning rowing and bicycling.

Martina wished to point out that reports were wrong about the reason she left her country and applied for American citizenship. "I wasn't asking for political asylum, I was just asking for residential asylum."

Although she misses her parents, she prefers the states to her native country because "it fits my lifestyle."

Her fellow Americans who turned out in large numbers (close to 300 at Berkley) to see her were obviously pleased by her choice. Despite the pressures of this day, she wore a smile as she hit with Beth Wagner, 13, of Arlington Heights, and Tom Tranter, an assistant pro for Rick Legue, owner of Berkley.

At the Right Club, Martina also hit a few minutes with Danny Weiss, 12, of Schaumburg. Weiss is a national indoor doubles champion.

Right Club owner Hardy Wenner presented a membership to Martina that was good forever. However, just before leaving, someone asked if she'd be back: "I won't," said the talented Californian. "It's too cold."

Despite the weather, Martina will be one of the stars to beat in the tourney next week. Her best friend and doubles partner, Chris Evert, will be passing up the Chicago stop.

"It sure helps to be No. 1," added Martina. "It gives you a lot of confidence."

Today she's at a Cleveland press conference. Maybe, in time, she'll even be No. 1 at those, too.

Mustangs welcome Hinsdale challenge

No breather for Meadows gymnasts

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Gymnastics Editor

The Rolling Meadows Mustangs will have a breather from Mid-Suburban League gymnastics competition Thursday, but they will be far from idle as defending state champ Hinsdale Central comes to town for the first of two meets in three days against MSL teams.

The rest of the conference will be at work with Prospect at Schaumburg, Hersey traveling to Arlington, Fremd hosting Wheeling, Conant at Hoffman Estates, Buffalo Grove at Palatine and Forest View entertaining Elk Grove. All meets begin at approximately 8 p.m.

Hinsdale will be at Prospect Saturday, but the Red Devils will have to contend with a Rolling Meadows team tonight that is aching for some stiff competition.

"Our last couple meets have been like practice for us," said Meadows' coach Vic Avigliano. "We love competition and we haven't really had any."

The Mustangs are already pointing for their league showdown with Elk Grove on Feb. 5 and Avigliano said, "If we can do something against Hinsdale I think it will really help us against Elk Grove."

"This team loves a good fight. (Keith) Linsweird is the type of performer who would work if he had two broken arms and (Guy) Owsiany really gets pumped up for the big meets."

Owsiany fired an 8.2 on high bar in the Mustangs' 139.17 to 80.02 dual meet win over Schaumburg to grab the third place spot on the conference Honor Roll. He was the only Mustang to make the list but the team exhibited exceptional balance, especially on free ex where Mike Illingworth (8.15), Chris Hirth (8.06) and Glenn Dahl (7.75) were working.

The Arlington-Hersey crosstown rivalry will feature a duel between three of the league's best trampoline specialists.

Bob Barut and Ray Peters of Hersey have been growing sharper every meet and placed 1-3 on the Honor Roll with their scores of 8.3 and 8.2 in a win over Fremd last week.

Arlington's Chris Smith took the third place Honor Roll spot with an 8.0 showing against Buffalo Grove.

Hersey set a couple goals for themselves, the first a score of 141.50 and the second an all-around score of 8.04 for Danny Muenz.

"We were shooting for 140 as a team and an average of 8.0 for Danny," said Hersey coach Don Von Ebers.

"But we're still a long way from what we think we can score. Hopefully, we'll be in top form by the end of the year."

Von Ebers has been working his second and third level performers hardest in practice recently and all the attention paid off last week.

"Peters (7.35) looked 100 per cent better on free ex," he said, "and Don Dean on rings, Bob Siwik on trampoline and Ed Weinberg on side horse all showed improvement."

Arlington hit 125.42 against Buffalo Grove, the best Cardinal showing in weeks. Ken Hogrefe dazzled the competition with the league's best side horse score of the week, an 8.4.

Elk Grove will be strengthened by the return of Jim Schwartz and Mike Hadley for their dual meet with Forest View tonight. The Greens edged Prospect with 144.68 points last week.

Elk Grove's high bar team is the class of the conference as Matt Damore (8.8) and Gene Christensen (8.75) placed 1-2 on the Honor Roll and Tom Balla just missed with an 8.05.

Christensen, who should battle Hersey's Danny Muenz for the league all-around title, also made the Honor Roll at free ex (1st with 8.75), P-Bars (2nd at 8.35), still rings (tied for 1st at 8.35) and all-around (1st with 8.21).

Prospect, with Hinsdale waiting Saturday, will face off with Schaumburg tonight after hitting 136.75 in a losing effort to Elk Grove last week.

Doug Zahour and Dave Schelble broke into the Honor Roll. Zahour, who finished with a 6.29 all-around av-

Bill Veck

"a liar 90 per cent of the time..." Many quotes were unprintable. Unfortunately, Caray wasn't there to defend himself.

Veck more or less became judge and jury in this feud between the club. He disposed of Tanner and rehired Caray. That move alone gave Sox fans a lift.

Meeting and talking with Veck was thoroughly enjoyable. You come away wishing you had known this man sooner and looking forward to a time when you can get to know him better.

Noland Hemond, last year's general manager and this year's vice president, knows him well and he appears to be a happier man because of it.

Hemond used to be Tanner's boy, his yes man. Now he seems liberated and much more enthusiastic about his job.

When he was asked about the whirlwind dealings that took place at the winter baseball meetings, he answered the question with the excitement of a little boy recalling his favorite Christmas.

Hemond helped Veck hustle these dramatic 11th-hour trades last month which made baseball headlines. For 10 minutes he recalled the minute details of event. Twice a waitress asked

Sports world

TAILGATING. Simon says skate to the left. Simon says the Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers should tie and they did, 3-3, Wednesday night on Phil Esposito's last-minute Ranger goal.

Late Ranger goal steals Hawk win

Phil Esposito scored a goal with only 20 seconds remaining in the game to give New York a 3-3 tie with the Chicago Black Hawks in new Ranger General Manager Coach John Ferguson's home debut. Esposito scored on a Wayne Dillon rebound shot after the Rangers had pulled their goaltender in the final minute and Dillon had missed twice from in close. His second shot rebounded out to Esposito, who drilled home his 17th goal of the season. Pit Martin scored 44 seconds into the third period to lift Chicago into a 3-2 lead.

The Hawks forged ahead in the first period when penalty killers Cliff Koroll and Stan Mikita scored in a shorthanded situation. Mikita stole the puck from the Rangers' Rod Gilbert at the right point and passed to Koroll, who went in alone on Ranger netminder Dunc Wilson. In the second period, Darcy Rota drilled a 30-footer at 3:41 after being set up by Dale Talton to put Chicago up 2-0.

The Rangers narrowed the margin with a power play goal by Steve Vickers, who scored after a scramble in front of Chicago goalie Gilles Villeneuve. Martin's goal opening the third period increased the margin to 3-1, but Dillon scored to cut the deficit to 3-2 at 15:10.

Bulls waltz past Jazz as Van Lier tallies 27

Guard Norm Van Lier scored 27 points to lead the Chicago Bulls to a 102-93 NBA win Wednesday night over the cold-shooting New Orleans Jazz.

Van Lier racked up 11 first-quarter points and the Bulls took advantage of a 27 per cent first-quarter shooting performance by the Jazz as they rolled up a 29-15 lead in the period.

A crowd of 19,223 set a new season attendance record of 215,490 for the Jazz with more than half the home season left to play.

Nate Williams led the Jazz with 21 points and teammate Henry Bibby brought in 15. Tom Boerwinkle had 14 rebounds for the Bulls including eight in the first quarter and Van Lier had 11.

"Pistol" Pete Maravich, the Jazz sparkplug, hit 3 of 15 shots from the field for the game and scored only 10 points. He had been averaging almost 23 points per game.

Sloan might be out for season

Chicago Bulls' star Jerry Sloan had the lateral cartilage in his right knee removed Wednesday and will be lost to his team "a minimum of two months," according to a team spokesman.

Bulls' director of public relations, Mike McClure, termed the operation a "success" but said he didn't know when or if Sloan will return to the Bulls' lineup. "A lot is up to the individual after an operation like that," McClure said. Sloan will be at Passavant Memorial Hospital in Chicago for the next four or five days.

The initial knee injury occurred in training camp and has forced Sloan, the only original member of the Bulls, to the sidelines three times this season. The loss of Sloan will deal a serious blow to the Bulls' hopes of reaching the playoffs.

When Sloan returned to the lineup about three weeks ago, the team responded with revived play, though they still were only playing .500 ball. Sloan had been playing below 100 per cent efficiency because of the severe pain and had to ice pack his knee after each game.

Roberts, Lemon 'Hall' favorites

Robin Roberts and Bob Lemon, a pair of "Thinking Man's Pitchers" who posted 20-victory seasons 13 times between them from 1948-56, are expected to be elected to the Hall of Fame Thursday by a vote of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Roberts, who won 20 or more games six consecutive seasons, and Lemon, a seven-time 20-game winner, must be named on at least 75 per cent of the ballots cast by members of the BBWAA in order to gain admittance to the Cooperstown, N.Y., shrine. Roberts finished second and Lemon was third in the voting last year when Ralph Kiner was the only player elected.

There are 32 eligible candidates for the Hall of Fame this year, but Roberts and Lemon are the only clear-cut favorites. The late Gil Hodges, a slugging first baseman for the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers during the 1950's, was fourth in last year's voting but was 84 votes shy of election. It's unlikely that he can make up that many votes in one year.

Others who figure to get a goodly number of votes but not enough for election are Enos Slaughter, Pee Wee Reese, Eddie Mathews, Duke Snider, Phil Rizzuto, George Kell and the late Nelson Fox.

In order to be eligible for election, a player must have been retired for five years. After that, a player's name can appear on the BBWAA ballot for only 15 years. Then his name comes under the jurisdiction of the Oldtimers Committee.

Players' vote to decide Pro Bowl

Ed Garvey, head of the National Football League Players' Assn., said Wednesday it will be up to a vote by the players to decide if Monday's Pro Bowl will go ahead as scheduled. . . . Bep Guidolin, upset over the refusal of Kansas City Scout's officials to send a player to the minor leagues, Wednesday resigned as head coach of the National Hockey League team. . . .

Kelly Ann Martin, 23, the daughter of Yankee baseball manager Billy Martin, has been given a minimum sentence of three years in jail and a fine of about $150 for trying to smuggle a pound of cocaine from Colombia to the United States. . . . Clutch shooting by Clemson reserves Greg Coles and Stan Rome paced the Tigers in a second-half surge Wednesday night which carried them to an 82-77 upset over No. 3 ranked Maryland in an Atlantic Coast Conference college basketball game.

erage, placed second on free ex with a sparkling 8.7 routine. Scheible made the list on side horse with a mark of 8.3.

Russ Klingaman picked up his team's best scores at still rings (7.9) and all-around (6.99).

After winning a close meet with Forest View last week Hoffman Estates will find themselves in another tight affair when they host Conant.

The Hawks hit 102.55 against the Falcons, the first time they have been over 100 points this year.

"The guys were dynamite," said Hoffman coach Willie Vrba. "The 100 score is kind of a stumbling block with a lot of teams but it's a real ego builder to finally get there."

Conant had the week off and haven't worked since their invitational Jan. 10. Jeff Worst continues to improve as an all-arounder, but the Cougars haven't been able to get over that 100-point stumbling block.

showing 98.12 as their best effort in conference action.

Buffalo Grove and Wheeling, who long since left the 100-point level behind, will engage Palatine and Fremd respectively in conference action.

The Bisen trimmed Arlington for the first time in three years last week with a mark of 128.32. Dennis Mazur is shooting for better things.

"We'd like to hit 135 by the end of the season," he said. "The meet with Arlington was close, within two points all night. We got a lot of help from our all-arounders, though. (Dewey) Deal and (Lee) Battaglia both hit really well."

Wheeling's Dale Brungaber threw a routine, for him, 8.3 on the rings to take second place on the Honor Roll. All-arounder Jeff Vanyek put together a career best with an average of 6.39.

Insurance rates skyrocket for designer liability

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Architects, particularly those in New York and Chicago, are the latest profession to protest the high cost of liability insurance.

On a nationwide basis, the architects haven't been hit as hard by rising insurance rates as the physicians, says Edward Petrazio at the Washington headquarters of the American Institute of Architects.

"But the national rise is still enough, 72 per cent last year and another 15 per cent to take effect March 1."

However, for big architectural firms in New York and Chicago, the sky may be the limit, said Richard Dickens, chairman of the insurance committee of the association's New York chapter. He said one New York firm had the premium for its multi-million dollar policy jumped at one crack from $85,000 to $235,000. Dickens said other New York architects had seen rate boosts of 300 to 500 per cent.

THE PHYSICIANS have been protesting bitterly over medical malpractice insurance rate hikes of 100 to 400 per cent in the past two years.

Frank Barley of CNA Financial Corp. of Chicago, a leading underwriter of liability insurance for architects and engineers, said he believed the average architect carries a basic policy of $500,000 or thereabouts. Dickens said many New York firms carry much more and usually the rate for surplus coverage over $500,000 is not the standard rate but must be negotiated at a higher level with the insurance company. Major carriers of architects and engineers liability insurance in addition to CNA include the Kemper Group's Sequoia Insurance Co. and Sears Roebuck's Northbrook Insurance Co., both in Chicago.

Professor George Melcher of New York Institute of Technology also said he believed architects liability insurance rates, at least in the New York area, have gone up more than medical malpractice rates.

However, Barley, Petrazio and Dickens all agreed that comparing the cost of architects and engineers liability coverage with medical malpractice insurance is dangerously like comparing apples and oranges. "They don't work the same way," Barley said, "and the claims are seldom of the same type or on the same ground. The architect is responsible for so many things other people do."

BARLEY SAID there have been increases in both the frequency of claims against architects and the amount of damages courts tend to award in individual cases.

The most dramatic current claim is the one against the New York firm of I. M. Pei and Partners involving alleged faults in the many glass windows in the John Hancock Tower in Boston. It is reported to be around $10 million.

Asked why the frequency of claims has mushroomed, Barley said: "I wish I knew the answer to that."

Petrazio said he thought the answer lay simply in the increasingly litigious climate of the day.

Dickens agreed with that, saying "If a workman stumbles and stubs his toe in a building, he sues the architect, the building owner and the contractor who erected it."

Dickens also was inclined to put some of the blame on what he called "fee hungry lawyers."

Home shoppers urged to avoid emotional buy

by LEA TONKIN

"For sale: Gingerbread, schmaltz and a sparkling clean appearance."

This appeal may not sell a house in the Northwest suburbs. Yet a considerable number of home buyers are influenced by emotions, said three area brokers. They advise homeseekers to scout for a home as an investment and an enjoyable place to live.

"Unfortunately, it's certainly more of an emotional purchase than it ought to be," said Bob Griffith, sales manager of the Quinlan & Tyson Inc., Realtor office in Buffalo Grove. Griffith said suburban home buyers should be aware of the construction quality and other factors that influence the value of a home.

FOR EXAMPLE, a four-bedroom house loaded with air conditioning and other extras might cost $65,000 in one area community, while a similar model carries a price tag of $95,000.

"You have to evaluate the quality of the home and the quality of the neighborhood," Griffith said. "The unguarded buyer really isn't going to be able to respond to that."

Be concerned with home location, the realty sales executive said. The quality of surrounding homes, the neighborhood and the community will influence the price you should pay for the house and its resale value.

If you buy a house which is located next door to a gas station or a busy highway, the selling price is generally lower than the price for similar homes in quiet neighborhoods.

"A gas station at the back door — a problem like that is worth $2,000 to $3,000," Griffith said.

Subjective choices between an older home and a new house will be made by the home buyer.

Griffith said buyers who want to make sure they're buying value in addition to charm should ask a real estate broker to show them the selling price for similar homes in the area. He said home values in the Northwest suburbs increased 6 to 10 per cent during the past year.

JIM BLAESER, broker-owner in the Palatine firm of Holding O'Connor Blaeser Real Estate Inc., said home buyers can expect their investment value to increase 10 per cent during 1976 and a smaller increment in 1977. Location and other factors which influence value should be checked, he said, noting that many area buyers sell the home within three to five years.

"Home buying is almost always an emotional occasion," Blaeser said. He advised potential buyers to visit as many homes as possible before they make a choice to ensure a knowledge of value when the decision is made.

Blaeser said buyers should buy as much house as they can reasonably afford, once they've decided to make an investment in a home.

When a buyer has a 20 per cent down payment, the purchase price of the house generally should not exceed two-and-a-half times the buyer's gross income and the monthly payment should not top 25 per cent of the buyer's income.

MOST BUYERS look for a house or condominium unit that is priced at the maximum limit they can afford, said Jerry Bouschard, sales manager at the Arlington Heights Office of Rich Port, Realtors. That's why it's important to know the basics of local home values before you sign on the dotted line, he said.

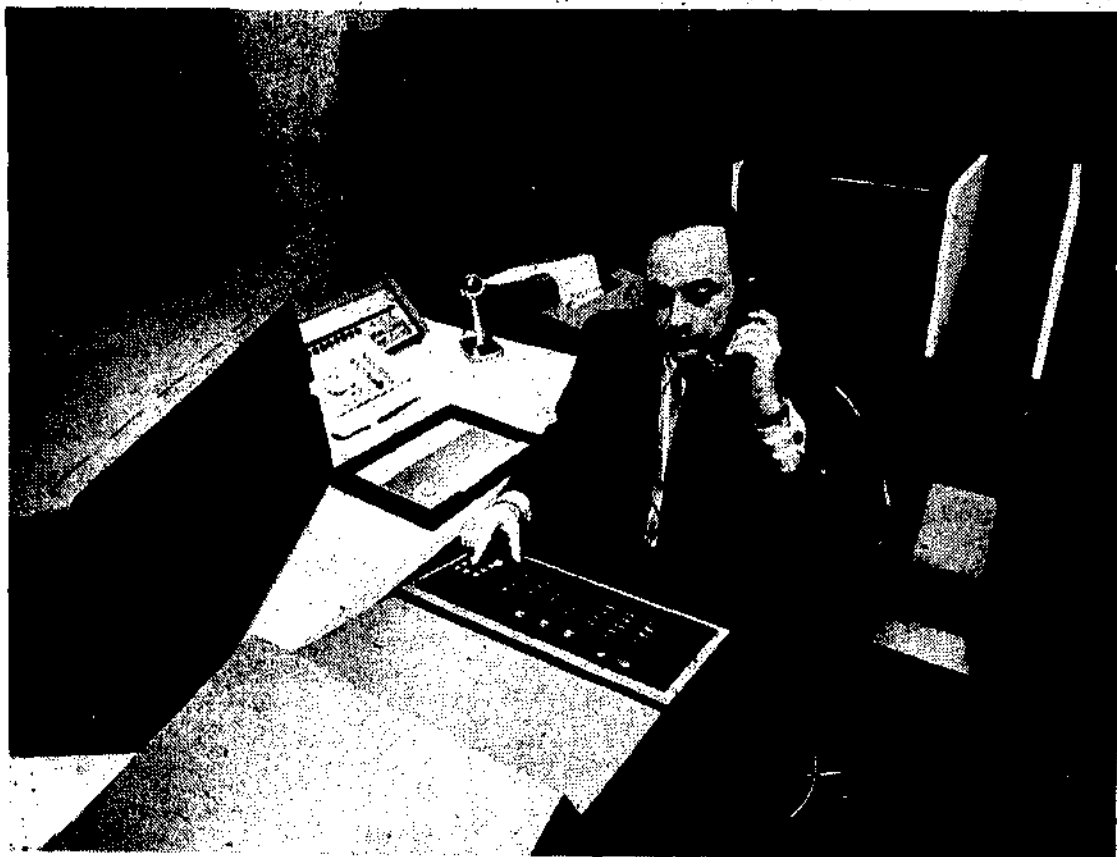

"You should look emotionally and logically," Bouschard said. "It's definitely an investment along with a nice place to live." Check the age of the house, the neighborhood and the zoning on any nearby vacant land, he said.

Consider resale value, Bouschard said. "Most people don't think of it, but it's vitally important."

The do-it-yourselfer can look for a lower-priced home, which can be fixed up and later sold at a higher price.

"But nobody makes a killing even on repossessed homes," Bouschard said.

Northwest suburban homes generally increased 8 to 10 per cent in value for each of the past three years, Bouschard said. Strong demand for area homes will continue to buoy resale values, he said.

A CENTRAL CONTROL system and the enthusiastic support of plant employees contributed to a 32 per cent reduction in energy use, said Harvey Stein, supervisor of plant and engineering for Honeywell Inc.'s commercial division plant, Arlington Heights.

Awareness key to fuel conservation

Energy awareness means a savings in fuel and money for building operators. That's the opinion of Paul Moe, manager of production engineering at the Honeywell Commercial Division manufacturing plant in Arlington Heights.

"Top management on down is dedicated to energy conservation," Moe said. Plant personnel were recently honored by the Federal Energy Administration for a 32 per cent drop in energy use between July 1974 and June 1975.

The drastic curtailment of electric power and natural gas use provided a financial bonus, Moe said. He estimates the total savings for the period of 1973 through 1975 amounted to $350,000. The Honeywell plan could be used by other companies modified to suit their needs, Moe said.

Harvey Stein, supervisor of plant and engineering for the local Honeywell division, said several steps were taken in the conservation program:

- Lighting levels were lowered inside the building and on the building exterior. Unneeded lights were turned off by central controls or personnel.

- Thermostats were set to provide heating levels of 68 degrees and cooling levels of 75 degrees.

- A Delta building management system of automated controls, produced at the Honeywell plant, was used to control heating, air conditioning and ventilation systems.

- An enthalpy control system which automatically makes the best use of recirculated air, was installed.

- Preventive maintenance ensures efficient operation of heating and cooling systems.

"In addition to energy conservation achieved by our central control system, and individual controls, our 32 per cent savings also can be credited to the enthusiastic support of all personnel at the plant," Stein said.

Management and employee understanding of the conservation program is essential, Moe said. He said energy use at the Arlington Heights plant will be reduced another 10 per cent during 1976.

Year after year
more people save more money in passbook accounts than any other kind of savings account.
There has to be a reason why.

There are. Passbook accounts, more than any other kind of account, provide the saver with a record of accomplishment. Page after page, as the balance grows and the interest compounds, the pride of savings satisfaction increases. But there's more, lots more. A First Federal Savings passbook is designed for the undecided. If you want funds quickly, they are there, with no loss of earnings.

First Federal pays 5 1/4% annually on every dollar, every day it is on deposit. Passbook savings means easy access when you need the money without penalty.

A record of accomplishment. Maximum flexibility. Easy accessibility. High earnings paid from the day of deposit until the day of withdrawal. Insured safety. And above all First Federal Savings pays postage both ways on all transactions. You should have a First Federal of Des Plaines passbook. After all, it's the reasonable thing to do.

termination to offer our customer the best possible service available. # Fund lack no handicap to home buyer

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Please tell me if it is possible to buy a house without money. Don't throw my letter in the wastebasket. I am not a crank.

For the past 15 years I have worked as a secretary to a wonderful man. During that time, I raised three children on my own. Although I have made a decent salary, raising three children has left me with no cash.

My employer owns a house which he is willing to sell. It's not in the best condition, but it meets my needs. He is willing to take $20,000. It's worth more, but I have no cash.

He tells me that if you can come up with a sensible idea on how to accomplish this, and at the same time protect him, he is willing to give me the house. Please search your bag of tricks and tell me. —

IS IT POSSIBLE?

No necessity to search my bag of tricks. I can suggest two standard methods which are common in situations like this.

The first would be for your employer to sell you the house for $20,000 and take back a $20,000 mortgage. Thus, he would be protected, because if you did not pay he could take the house back.

Another way is a lease-purchase agreement. Under this arrangement you pay rent, but the agreement provides that the property becomes yours for $20,000 after enough equity has been built up so that a mortgage can be obtained. It works as follows:

Suppose the agreed rent is $250 per month, and parties further agree that $100 of the rent is applied each month as equity. Thus, at the end of one year, you have built up $1,200 in equity.

At the end of four years, you have built up almost 25 per cent of the purchase price in equity. Then you obtain a 75 per cent mortgage and settlement is made, with ownership transferred to you.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I am a retired military officer in comfortable circumstances living in Florida. We have a home in Pennsylvania. It is occupied by our only daughter and her family.

We consider ourselves Floridians and will probably never move back north again. My daughter's husband is a fine fellow, but he doesn't earn much. My wife and I would like to give them the house. It's rather modest and is probably worth about $28,000.

My question to you is, shall we give it to them now — or shall we leave it to them in our will? —

GRATEFUL FOR A FINE DAUGHTER.

Since you are in comfortable circumstances, and apparently don't need the house in Pennsylvania, or the money it represents, as part of your retirement funds, I recommend that you take the following action.

Give the house as a gift to your daughter and her family at this time.

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

is located on a half-acre lot. The pool we are contemplating will cost about $9,000 installed, with accessories.

The question I am going to ask requires a frank answer from an expert. What has been the experience in cases like ours relative to the value increase brought about by the installation of a pool?

The salesman says our $60,000 house should be worth $70,000 with the pool installed. If that be the case, we are ready to go ahead. We have worked hard for our money and don't want to make a mistake. —

TWO CAREFUL PEOPLE.

If you consider a pool as an investment that will increase the value of the house by the amount of money spent, then I recommend that you don't do it. Here is what I have found to be the case in situations like yours.

I would estimate that your $9,000 pool will increase the value of the house by about $5,000 at most. There is even a possibility that the increase in value could be about half of that.

Unless it is a special situation, the possibility of a dollar for dollar increase in value is remote.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: In my house I cannot seem to get the temperature above 66 degrees. The heater just doesn't work right. But I have a certification from a plumbing and heating company, which I was given at settlement, saying that the heating system is in good operating condition.

When I asked the owner of the company to make good on the certification, he replied that he was not responsible, because he had inspected the property in July. The temperature at the time was over 90 degrees, so naturally he didn't turn on the heater. Does this mean it's my problem? —

I WANT HEAT.

Tell your heating man that even if it be the month of July furnaces are still tested during the summer for their operating efficiency before a reputable contractor gives a certification.

The direct answer to your question is, therefore, no. I recommend that you keep after the contractor until he makes good on the certification, even if it means some legal persuasion from a fighting attorney.

Now may be best time for renovation costs

Owners considering home improvements couldn't find a better time to let a contract or obtain financing.

So advises President Frank J. Kinst of Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association. He stated:

"Lumber, a basic material for many jobs, is destined for an appreciable rise in price.

"Carpenters and other mechanics currently are in plentiful supply, as is most construction material, thus permitting earlier completion, less inconvenience and important dollar savings."

Also, Kinst said there is plenty of FHA Title One no-money-down financing available.

Terms are for as long as 12 years, and for up to $10,000. And, amounts to $7,500 require no recording fee.

Larger institutions, such as Lincoln Federal, have specialized home improvement departments where pre-job information and literature can be obtained.

Lincoln Federal maintains a list of contractors who have done satisfactory work for other customers, and this information is available at its four offices, Berwyn, North Riverside (Columbia), Hoffman Estates and Alton.

Home owners planning remodeling also can check their local building commissioner or neighbors for potential craftsmen.

Or, they can buy their own materials and either do the work themselves or hire needed laborers, while acting in a general contractor's role.

Having a home mortgage at Lincoln Federal or similar institution is not a condition for obtaining no-money-down improvement financing. A family can have its mortgage with another institution, or have none at all.

When an owner deals with a Lincoln Federal approved dealer-contractor, the latter takes the customers application, and phones in the credit application for approval.

When the job is finished the contractor provides the lender with all necessary papers including customer's sales contract, note and completion certificate. Check is made out to the contractor.

In such a situation it is rarely necessary for the customer to visit the financial institution.

When an owner acts as his own contractor or deals with a contractor not on the approved list, he brings in labor and materials estimates to Lincoln, at which time he fills out necessary papers.

Upon approval, he receives a check for the full amount of the loan and disperses monies to mechanics (on completion) and to suppliers.

He is advised to make pay outs to sub contractors only upon their presentation of waivers of lien from any other contractors or suppliers who provided services or materials for the job.

Among the outdoor improvements eligible under Title One are siding, gutters, roofing, painting, tuckpointing, landscaping, garage construction and porches.

Indoor tasks include room additions, recreation rooms, kitchens, bathrooms, central air-conditioning, heating, insulation, rewiring, carpeting, replastering and decorating.

Then too, there's the face-lifting and heat-saving addition of new double-thickness picture windows.

Unless a home owner has had some experience in remodeling or one of the light construction trades, Kinst cautions against becoming his own general contractor. He declared:

"Ability as a handyman often leads to over-confidence in tackling too big a job... sometimes with disastrous consequences."

Record growth set in '75 at Bell S&L

"Assets, savings, and reserves have reached all time highs during 1975 at Bell Federal Savings and Loan Assn.," announced president Roland J. Barstow.

Bell's assets totaled $1,068,708,703 on Dec. 31, 1975, an increase of $137,792,788 above the $930,915,915 reported twelve months prior. Savings deposits rose a record $133 million during the year to a total of $934,926,700.

Mortgage loans increased $965,657,693, a gain of $127,523,798 in the past year.

Bell Federal paid $73,040,846 in interest to savers during 1975 and added $4,340,182 to general reserves and undivided profits which now total $94,740,268.

"One of the main reasons for Bell's record growth," said Barstow, "is our ability to serve customers at 3 loop locations as well as Park Ridge and Oak Lawn offices."

"Another definite plus toward Bell's future growth is our association with Jewel Food Stores in the implementation of electronic transfer terminals. When fully implemented, Bell Federal customers will be able to deposit funds, cash checks, or make withdrawals at any of the approximately 160 Jewel supermarkets in the Chicago area," said Barstow.

Your home by Carolyn Murray

THERE IS A PROFUSION OF IDEAS AROUND. We see them every day in room settings at stores, in model homes and apartments, in publications. The problem really lies in trying to evaluate the ones that can be translated into our lives.

Want a lesson in learning how to see? Take a pencil and pad into any room in the house or the local department store, even a neighbor's home. Jot down all the things in the room that you'd classify as "ideas." You know, a new way of using paint or a grouping of framed prints or a special piece of fabric or furniture.

Then ask yourself how many of those ideas can be translated for use in your home or apartment. The translation need not be a carbon copy. Sometimes the way a friend hangs a collection of copper molds might inspire you to display some great old teapots or cooking utensils.

Play the game right now with today's illustration. How many ideas can you isolate? Don't include architectural design like the pitched roof, just the things that are accomplished within the basic shape.

I can spot seven obvious ideas:

- The raised platform for the sleep area of this remodeled attic.
- The platform bed with its foam mattress and bolsters.
- The storage space left under the bed (great for toys and even junior's ski equipment).
- The picket fencing used above the bed as a headboard.
- The picket fencing hinged to the windows as shutters.
- The storage bins along the wall behind the bed.
- Plastic cubes and half-cubes, with and without drawers, as a change from the usual chest of drawers.

Then there's the use of self-stick shag carpet squares from Armstrong called "Place 'n Press Floor Tiles"; the charming cardboard tree sculpture, and a potpourri of colorful accessories. It seems to me that almost every idea might easily be interpreted somewhere in our homes.

While the total effect in this bedroom is perky and young, the same concepts could have added sophistication for elder occupants.

HOLD ON! If your first instinct upon seeing a bedless bed, above, is one of withdrawal, take another look. There's really nothing sensationally new about his kind of sleep solution. It's just that you and I have been accustomed to clambering up onto a four-legged platform!

Yes, any bedstead is just a platform on legs. The reason some early carpenter or home owner put the platform on legs is simple: field mice and other varmints were beginning to invade the privacy of the snoozer.

Some of the earliest knock-down concepts were devised for generals in the field. Thus the campaign bed was created. Poles were connected by sideboards, heavy rope was slung and a mattress rested atop the ropes. The Napoleonic campaign bed is one example, and it's one of the earliest of metal types.

The drafts in castles contributed to the proliferation of raised and canopied beds. And Thomas Sheraton created some for his clients, using a Ming Dynasty bed from China as the inspiration. So the Chinese had also solved the problem of getting bedding up off the floor.

Twentieth-century houses are better heated and ventilated. We also tend to have carpeted floors and are capable of having cushioned and carpeted platforms on which to rest our sleep accessories. So we can have a "why not?" attitude about where and how we choose to sleep.

THE 15 MILLION FAMILIES who receive Sears Spring catalog will find a new approach to merchandise descriptions beneath a cover reminiscent of days of old. The company has removed unnecessary puffery and reorganized product copy as a reflection of "the way consumers want to shop and their demand for more pertinent product information."

'Wish book' of old gives way to new 'easier-to-understand' version'

In a move that has been compared to writing a new translation of the Bible, Sears, Roebuck and Co. has changed the entire merchandise description style of its "wish book."

Beginning with the Spring/Summer '76 catalog now being distributed, the company has removed unnecessary adjectives and reorganized the vital product information into short, easy-to-read segments. Only the headlines will glamorize potential uses and benefits of most products. The result, according to a brochure that comes with the catalog, makes "Sears catalogs easier to shop from than ever before... easier to read, easier to understand and easier to decide which products suit your particular needs."

For example, the copy accompanying a women's casual shoe in the previous Fall/Winter '75 catalog begins with: "This is the way we like to see the wedge heel slip on — done with high vamp and crisply detailed with trim top-stitching, created for those on the go..."

The identical shoe in the Spring/Summer '76 catalog is simply "a raised-stitch slip-on" with the description including straight factual information about construction, colors, sizes and ordering information.

"AT FIRST glance," said John B. Kelly, Sears vice-president for catalog merchandising, "it might not seem like a very significant change at all. Yet this concept strikes at the very heart and soul of advertising — that is, the ability to communicate in an understandable and believable way."

"It is certainly not designed to satisfy the creative urges of our copywriters in the traditional way, nor will it do big things for our egos. Its only purpose is to better serve those who shop from our catalogs and those who sell from them."

Kelly explained that the new format, which the company is calling "SPeC" for "Segmented People-oriented Copy," reflects the way today's consumers want to shop and their demand for more pertinent product information.

Kelly pointed out that most of the company's catalog shoppers — 60 per cent of last year's catalog sales of $2.7 billion — place their orders on the telephone and want to have full understanding of merchandise when they order it. The customers don't want to waste time asking a sales representative to explain product differences and benefits.

This little house on the prairie is a fuel experiment

by DON BEMAN

On the prairies of Nebraska is an experimental home equipped with the best that a University of Nebraska professor, a waterbed manufacturer and a heating-cooling company can come up with in the way of an answer to fuel shortages.

Heart of the home's heating-cooling system is the heat pump, developed by Lord Kelvin for just that purpose but most widely known for its use in the reverse refrigeration and air-conditioning application.

The refrigerator is a good example of the principle. The heat removed from the interior of the box in order to provide cooling is exhausted into the room where it can be felt. The heat pump in other uses similarly takes heat from water or the atmosphere, and discharges it in a desired location.

Improved to extract the sun's heat from even the Nebraska winter cold without freezing up, a problem in the past, the pump as used in the Nebraska house offers a system which anyone can afford, according to its sponsors.

A major problem with existing solar systems is cost. Electronic collector components alone can run as much as $120,000 and, although one researcher thinks he can reduce that to $1,200, the cost of sunpower at this point is beyond the reach of most.

The Nebraska system is a combination of heating-cooling equipment and the latest in home insulation.

Tom Arkfeld, a Lincoln Electric System engineer, said, "We have high hopes for this and interest is beginning to build." Lincoln Electric is a municipal utility which put up the money and located the experimental home on land that also is the site for an emergency generation plant reserved for peak-operating days.

The system still uses electricity, although not very much. Its principal designer estimates the annual bill, based on prairie prices, at $100 for heating and cooling the two-bedroom, single-story house.

The home, built over the summer, is being lived in by a young Lincoln Electric engineer, Jerry Ellis, his wife and their 9-month-old son. Ellis says even though they have lived in the house only a short while, he is sold on it.

"We've been extremely comfortable," he said. "For one thing, it's not a dry heat — a big problem in Nebraska."

The best thing about the experimental home, Ellis said, is that he could own one just like it. Richard Osbourne, a Nebraska assistant professor in the architecture and engineering college and principal designer, said a family of moderate means was just what he and his students had in mind when they started.

If Ellis wanted to, he could take the plans to any builder, the sponsors said. The builder would not need special technicians and, once built, maintenance could be handled locally.

Lincoln Electric put up the $28,000 needed to build the home while Carrier Corp., of Syracuse, N.Y., anted $2,000 in equipment. The American Public Power Association has put up another $12,500 to collect technical data on the system.

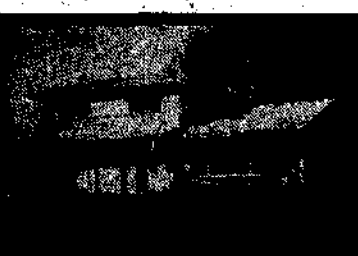

Although improved technically so they would work in cold climates, the heat pump still used electricity at all the wrong hours from the standpoint of supply — during the day when it is hot and at night when it is cold.

Osbourne and his students attacked that problem and found a solution in the waterbed.

Water can be used to store heat and cold by raising or lowering its temperature. The home that was finally built has a 1,680 gallon, bigger than king-sized, waterbed beneath it. Thus, the heat pump, located in the attic, can operate during nonpeak hours, gleaming heat during daytime hours for night use in winter and storing cold during the night for use during the day in the summer.

The attic has a glass fiber panel which faces to the south to concentrate heat during the winter and vents which open in the summer to help collect the cold.

The storage water is run through a set of coils. A conventional fan, kicked on and off by a conventional thermostat, pushes air over the coils and through conventional forced air system ductwork.

Auto insurance rates may be on the rise

by LEA TONKIN
Watch out, motorists. The auto insurance premium increases you've received during the past year may be repeated, thanks to the high cost of auto repairs.

A study by the American Mutual Insurance Alliance in Chicago shows that the cost of fixing a new car damaged in a collision jumped 20 per cent during the past year. That means greater costs for insurance companies and in turn, insurance rates.

Heavy cost increases due to fender benders are one reason for increased premiums, said three Northwest suburban insurance representatives. Frequency of claims, medical costs and other factors are also named as culprits in the rising consumer cost for insurance.

"THE AVERAGE REPAIR cost for collision damage on 1975 model year automobiles runs $598 — a $101 increase over the $496 cost for repair of collision damages on new models during a comparable period in 1974," said Timm Kett of Palatine, AMI public relations manager. "The average cost of repairing a 1975 subcompact is $600."

"Between 60 to 70 per cent of the total insurance premium paid by owners of late model cars is for coverages that pay for vehicle repair or replacement," Kett said.

In a recent alliance journal, auto repair costs are billed as bad news for the economy-minded motorist. "As the cost of these vehicle repairs increases, pressure on the insurance claims dollar also increases," the article said. "The end result is a rise in premiums which ultimately must be paid by the policyholder.

"Disproportionately high prices charged by auto manufacturers for replacement of crash parts are cited as the major reason for repair cost hikes.

"Prices on crash parts — grilles, radiators, water pumps, trunk lids, bumpers and other parts most often damaged — rose more than 47 per cent from July 1, 1973 to July 1, 1975. In the same two-year period, the consumer price index rose less than half that amount, 20.7 per cent. Showroom prices for new cars including all their parts moved up only a little more than 14 per cent."

BILL VASEY, a State Farm Insurance agent in Mount Prospect, said the cost of parts required to fix a wrecked car is a major contributor to rate increases.

"There's a monopoly on all the crash parts. If you buy a Chevrolet, you have to buy all your parts from Chevrolet," he said. "If you could buy parts from different manufacturers, the situation would change." Repair charges, the age and cost of a car are among the factors which influence insurance premium costs, Vasey said. He predicts that there will be no further rate increase by State Farm in early 1976.

Medical costs as well as repair costs cause higher consumer insurance costs, said Roy Bickler, a Des Plaines insurance agent. He advised motorists to increase deductibles as a means of cutting insurance premiums.

The savings are substantial for the

The high cost of driving is going even higher, motor officials say

The high cost of driving a car is moving up a notch, said Chicago Motor Club and American Automobile Assn. officials.

The motor club said a recent study shows that it costs American motorists an average $3.25 a day to own a car, even if the car is never driven. Chalk up another 64 cents for every mile the car is driven. For the motorists who drives an average 10,000 miles a year, that tallies up to $1,831 or 18.3 cents a mile.

Two categories of costs were included in the motor club study. Fixed costs reflect the charges paid by a motorist whether or not the car is driven. Variable costs reflect costs for actual mileage.

A 9 per cent hike in fixed costs from 1974 figures was shown in the report. The tab is an average $1,186 a year or $3.25 a day compared to $2.99 a day in 1974. The annual charges include fire and theft insurance, $53; $100 deductible collision insurance, $141; property damage and liability insurance, $189; license and registration fees $30 and depreciation, $733. Depreciation costs increase $32 for every 1,000 miles in addition to 15,000 annual miles.

Among the variable costs are gasoline and oil, 4.82 cents a mile, routine maintenance at .97 cents a mile, and tires at 66 cents a mile.

The gas and oil cost is based on the purchase of unleaded fuel at 62.9 cents a gallon. For every 10 cents a gallon increase in gas prices, the cost per mile increases by 1 cent if the car averages 10 miles per gallon, or .5 cent if the car averages 20 miles per gallon. Variable costs increased 13 per cent since 1974.

The cost figures are based on the use of a 1975 intermediate Chevrolet Malibu Classic equipped with an automatic transmission, power steering, power disc brakes and a radio.

motorist who increases collision or comprehensive deductibles, said Gary Petrie, a personal lines underwriting manager for the Ungard Insurance Group, Arlington Heights. A deductible is the payment by a policyholder when a claim is filed. "For example, if you increase your deductible from $50 to $100 you could save 10 per cent of the premium," Petrie said.

Labor charges, auto parts costs and other factors are reflected in rising insurance costs, Petrie said. He noted that small cars are damaged more than full sized cars in an accident, and the number of claims for small car owners is greater.

THERE'S MORE bad news for the subcompact car owner, according to the AMIA. "Repair costs for subcompacts are not only higher than those reported for other classes of automobiles, they are also rising at a much faster rate," the alliance said. Compared to the 20 per cent hike in repair costs for all classes of new cars during the past year, subcompact repair bills increased a whopping 44 per cent.

The alliance seconds the notion that small cars are generally damaged more than full size cars during an accident. "The damage typically involves more high cost components such as grilles and radiators, and the physical deformation is greater than that which would occur on a larger car involved in a similar crash," the report said. The impact of rising repair costs is magnified by rising number of collisions, rising 11 per cent during the past year.

Will '76 be a bumper year for small American cars?

by EDWARD S. LECHTZN

DETROIT (UPI) — Imported autos built their reputation on low cost and good fuel economy.

Detroit has been chipping away at the fuel economy side and can now boast some models that will equal their foreign counterparts. Inflation and higher production costs overseas have pretty well taken care of the other attribute.

That is why few import executives expect the foreign models to come even close this year to matching the record 18.3 per cent share of the U.S. market they garnered in 1975, although total sales should equal the 1.6 million cars they sold last year.

What worries the foreign auto executives is where Detroit is swiping the sales.

GENERAL MOTORS' Chevrolet and the new Ford Fiesta, along with Chrysler and American Motors subcompacts due on the market in the next two years, could take a big chunk of the small car sales that accounted for 52 per cent of the market last year. The really small cars accounted for about 15 per cent of all sales last year.

"The U.S. market is really getting to be interesting," Guido Foggioli, president of Fiat of North America, said. "The imports will have to give up some of the economy market to American makes and that's why we're moving into more expensive models."

The Italian automaker has an economy model in its Fiat 128 sedan prices starting around $3,000 but plans its greatest sales effort this year on the 131 sedan prices starting at $4,000 and its Lancia models — $6,000 - $7,000 compact-sized cars.

Most importers figure that is where the real market will be in the next few years, with the foreign models that now sell from $6,000 up increasing their sales while the economy models increase in price and drop in sales.

MERCEDES-BENZ, whose luxury models cost as much as $20,000, set a new sales record last year. While the economy models increased their sales, it was the mid and high-priced models that set sales records.

Winter is ideal time to plant large trees

Although most landscaping activities come to a halt in winter, it's an ideal time to plant trees, according to the Theodore Brickman Co., landscape architects and contractors, Long Grove, Ill.

Using special hydraulic equipment, the company can dig and transplant trees up to 40 feet tall with trunks 6 to 8 inches in diameter, and can guarantee their survival. In addition to the equipment, by using specialized tree crane and digging methods, trees from 8 to 24 inches can be transplanted.

"Winter is a good time to do this work," explained Dick Brickman, president of the company. "The tree is dormant so there's little shock to it. Then, once it's dug, we allow the rootball to freeze, protecting the roots. In addition, because the ground is frozen, we can use our heavy equipment without damaging the turf."

To do the job, transplanting trees up to 8 inches, the company uses a Vermeer tree digger mounted for highway travel. The machine has four hydraulically-powered blades that can dig into earth frozen hard in winter. The machine first digs a hole where the tree is to be planted, removing the dirt without a mess.

Then the machine is backed up to the tree to be planted, and the digging frame is placed around the tree. The blades dig into the earth and join under the tree, forming a giant "flower pot" 4 feet deep and 5½ feet across. Hydraulic power lifts the tree and the entire earth-mass surrounding the roots in one motion, keeping the earth mass intact. The machine is then driven to the planting site.

Here the procedure is reversed. The digger lowers the tree and earth mass into the hole, after a slurry of peat moss, soil, and fertilizer has been put in to insure air-free planting. The unit disengages and drives away.

"We can also transplant trees from one place to another on the same property," Brickman said. "For this purpose we have a Vermeer tree digger mounted on a crawler tractor for greater maneuverability."

The Vermeer machine requires no manual labor and costs substantially less than conventional methods, he said. More information is available from Theodore Brickman Co., Long Grove Rd., Long Grove, Ill. 60047.

A TOTAL OF 17 International vehicles, Scout Travelers or 100-inch Scout II sport compacts, above, will serve as official U.S.

Ski Team vehicles for the 1976 season of competition. All of the units feature distinctive red, white and blue designs with the official Ski Team shield and are equipped with four-wheel drive, two-speed transfer cases, automatic transmission and bucket seats.

By International Harvester

U.S. skiers pick scouts

The U.S. Ski Team has selected the International Scout as its official vehicle for the entire 1976 competitive season including all world cup races in Europe and North America, the Winte Olympics in Innsbruck, Austria and the Holmenkollen in Norway.

A total of 17 vehicles was delivered by International Harvester for use by the Alpine and Nordic teams. These include ten 118-in. wb. Scout Traveler station wagons and seven 110-in. wb. Scout II sport utility compacts. All 17 units carry the Ski Team logo and feature a distinctive red, white and blue design. They are equipped with four-wheel drive with two-speed transfer cases, automatic transmission, V8 engines, bucket seats, ski racks and AM-FM radios. Ten of the 17 have front-mounted winches.

The Scouts will serve as ground transportation for the team members and coaches to training and competition sites. Six of the Scout Travelers will be located in Europe; the other vehicles will be used in the United States and Canada for Ski Team training camps in locations such as: Cooke City, Montana; Thunder Bay, Ontario; and Mission Ridge, Washington; and for competitions throughout the U.S. and Canada.

According to Dick Andrews, vice president and general manager of the U.S. Ski Team, the Scout's four-wheel drive capability combined with its load capacity and durability were major factors in its selection as the official vehicle.

"Getting a large number of people and their gear to training sites or a race often means driving relatively long distances over the highway then having to negotiate snow-covered roads or trails. The Scout answers our requirements perfectly and having 17 vehicles at our disposal will greatly aid our team's mobility," Andrews stated.

The U.S. Ski Team receives no financial support from the government and relies on individual and corporate contributions to finance the extensive training and competition of the National Team. Unlike the other Olympic teams, the Ski Team is in operation continuously throughout the year, and may number up to 80-100 men and women on its roster of skiers and coaches.

"The team has excellent prospects for the Olympics and 1976 season," Andrews noted. "We think we have a first class team and we're pleased that International Harvester has come forward to provide us first class transportation."

W. W. Johnson, Light Truck Marketing Manager for IH stated, "We are pleased to be in a position to assist the U.S. Ski Team with their transportation requirements. We feel that since the Scout is a dual-purpose vehicle, on and off-highway travel in snow would be an appropriate use of its capabilities."

Response of the team and the coaches to the Scouts has been enthusiastic. John F. Bower, Director of the Nordic Team, stated, "After returning from a cross-country skiing training session in Cooke City, Montana, I was very impressed with the quality of ride and handling on the highway. The Scout I drove cruised easily and economically for the 1,100 mile trip. It started easily in zero degree weather, and at the training site, made the trip up a mountain road which had two feet of unplowed snow with no problems whatsoever."

On two occasions, Scouts with winches have been used to rescue stranded motorists in a storm, Bower added.

We Thank Both Old and New Depositors for Growth in Assets to a Record 22 Million!

This growth was achieved without dangling "carrots" of silverware, radios, china or household utensil premiums which can be purchased and serviced at local retail outlets not in the savings and loan business.

Instead, we offered our customers what we believe a savings and loan association should:

The highest interest on passbook accounts and savings certificates allowed by law.

— Helpful personal advice to customers planning for retirement, education of their children, vacations, purchase of new homes and "rainy day" emergencies.

— That old-fashioned philosophy of not trying to be the biggest frog in the financial pond, but always trying to assist in saving safely and easily.

THUS, WE ENTER THIS BICENTENNIAL YEAR OF 1976 PROUD TO BE AT THE SAME ADDRESS WE HAVE MAINTAINED FOR 18 YEARS ACROSS FROM THE NORTH WESTERN RAILROAD DEPOT IN MOUNT PROSPECT. WE PLEDGE TO CONTINUE BEING OURSELVES, EARNING THE CONFIDENCE OF OUR LOYAL SAVINGS ARMY OF DEPOSITORS.

In apartment living

A few golden rules to a happier life

Being a good tenant and neighbor isn't something that happens automatically the moment you sign or renew an apartment lease.

Actual happenings like the tenant who gave his motorcycle a gasoline bath in his tub, the chap who painted his bedroom black with white footprints across the ceiling, and the fellow who tried to cure meat in his storage locker prove the point.

Although bizarre incidents like these are rare, even little infringements of existing rules and regulations, though unintentional, can make apartment living unnecessarily unpleasant for all concerned.

"Most people follow the rules because they know they are designed to make life pleasant for themselves, their neighbors, and the landlord," said Betty Jo Elliott of Baird & Warner, Inc., resident manager of Country Lane Apartments at 1460 Fairlane Drive in Schaumburg.

"But a review of the golden rules of apartment living is sometimes helpful, especially for people moving into rented quarters for the first time, or from one type of building to another, or after living in a house for a number of years."

So here are her nominations for the most important rules to observe, beginning with the move-in:

- Check with the management to find out when the apartment will be available and where and when you can pick up the key. Sometimes, but not always, you can get into the apartment a few days early, but you have to work this out with the manager.

- Find out what entrance you must use to move in furnishings. If the apartment building, like Country Lane, has elevators, it's still necessary to contact the manager to reserve an elevator.

"Right now an elevator can be reserved most any time," said Ms. Elliott. "But during peak moving periods, like around May 1, the moving traffic can get hectic. Whether you are a do-it-yourselfer or working with professionals you must reserve elevator time and try not to exceed it because you'll throw the party behind you off schedule."

Another moving tip: Make sure the furniture you plan to move in will fit the elevator and your apartment.

- Don't be your own decorator. In most cases, your new apartment will be freshly decorated by the time you move in. Most building managers will offer you a choice of light colors, because these are the easiest to paint over.

If you decide to do custom decorating, such as applying dark colors, wallpapers, or other unusual treatments, you'll be expected to restore the apartment to its original condition when you move, or else pay for the restoration.

"Removing wallpaper and painting over a dark surface can be expensive, so we advise against such treatments unless you're willing to pay for the restoration," Ms. Elliott said. "The fellow who painted his bedroom black with white footprints had quite a bill to pay."

- Garbage disposal needs special attention. If you live in an older apartment with garbage cans on the back porch, just make sure the lids are on tight. If you live in a building where you have to carry the garbage down the hall, make sure the refuse is tightly wrapped to avoid soiling the hall floor.

Incinerator chutes are meant for burnable materials only, such as paper, cardboard, and food waste. Non-burnable items, such as bottles, cans, and aerosol containers, should be put into the garbage cans next to the chute. Never throw an aerosol container into the incinerator; the can might explode. And, to prevent fires, don't throw lighted matches, cigars or cigarettes into garbage cans.

- If you own a washing machine or dryer, better forget about installing them in your apartment. Most building managers won't allow it, because they consume too much water and are a noise nuisance. You're better off using the laundry room in the building. Country Lane, for instance, has 14 washers, 6 small dryers and 4 double dryers in its laundry room.

"By the same token, don't wash anything in your apartment that doesn't belong there," said Ms. Elliott. "In an actual incident, a tenant was discovered washing his motorcycle with gasoline in the bathtub. He and his motorcycle were asked to leave."

- Speaking of flammables, don't store any dangerous fluids or chemicals in your apartment or storage locker. Nor should you use the storage locker for anything besides storage of your own goods. Don't be like the man who tried to turn his locker into a meat curing room and created a horrible stench throughout the entire building.

- Know where your circuit breaker or fuse box is, and don't overload the circuits. Overloading can cause your lights to go out, your appliances to be damaged, and can lead to fires.

- For TV sets, check with the building about a master antenna service which may entail a small charge for hook-up. Don't put up your own outside antenna without the building manager's permission. Many buildings don't permit individual tenant antennas because they damage the roof and the landlord has the right to remove them.

- Before you hang anything on the walls, have the manager tell you what kind of wall fastenings are permitted. This will depend on what kind of walls you have: plaster, drywall, brick, pyrobar, concrete or whatever. The point is to avoid cracking or damaging the wall.

"Most managers say that if you leave a hole that can be spackled over by the painters, that's OK," the Baird & Warner manager said. "But if more extensive repairs are needed to patch holes and cracks that you create, you'll be held responsible."

- Respect your neighbor's privacy. That means observing the building rules as well as common sense rules for playing the radio, TV, stereo, or musical instruments, and holding parties down to a quiet roar.

"If you find your neighbors are disturbing you, ask them to quiet down first," she advises. "If that doesn't work, call the manager. And if that doesn't do the trick call the police. Don't take matters into your own hands."

- Get to know who your neighbors are as a matter of security, and never let anyone into the building or your apartment whom you don't know or who doesn't have proper identification.

"Particularly when entering or leaving a building, never hold the interior security door open for someone trying to get in if you don't know that person," Ms. Elliott said. "Report any suspicious persons to the manager."

If the building has a party room and social functions, it's a good idea to attend some just to get familiar with neighbors, she advises.

- Don't do anything illegal or improper in your apartments. Illegal includes such things as raising marijuana, as one tenant did, or holding a hot dog roast in the bathtub, as another family did.

- If you have children, teach them the rules and a respect for property.

- Finally, make sure your rent is paid on time. Your landlord depends on prompt payments so he in turn can pay his obligations promptly. If enough tenants hold back on their payments, the owner may get into trouble which can only lead to a cutback in services.

"Being a good tenant isn't all that difficult," Ms. Elliott said. "Knowing the rules and following them can make apartment living more pleasant for everyone."

Truly fine living in a home designed and built for you.

Winter casualty loss deductions worth a check

Along with the blustery arrival of winter come tax-angled casualty losses from the tragic to the commonplace, says Commerce Clearing House. But a broad range of casualty loss deductions can ease the burden of taxpayers.

A casualty, says the Internal Revenue Service, is "the complete or partial destruction of property resulting from an identifiable event of a sudden, unexpected or unusual nature."

Deductions have been allowed a motorist whose car fell through ice while he was ice fishing, another whose car was damaged due to an icy road, another whose car motor literally froze up, and a taxpayer whose garage wall collapsed because of an unusual freeze-and-thaw pattern.

Other taxpayers have won deductions when pipes burst, and when asparagus plumosus ferns and a tropical plant collection were chilled to extinction.

Further on down the casualty loss deduction road are eaves collapsing from ice and snow accumulation, ceiling and floors damaged through thawing of collected ice and snow, and the death of fruit trees and ornamental trees, shrubs and bushes by winter's wrath — all of which have won tax deductions for taxpayers.

CCH noted, however, that certain rules are involved in claiming a casualty loss deduction. For one thing, it is allowable only to the person who owns the property, and he may take the deduction only in the year he sustains the loss, no matter when he repairs the damage, or disposes of the salvage also, he has to be able to prove he actually sustained the loss, and the amount deductible.

To claim a casualty loss deduction successfully, the taxpayer should be able to show the nature of the casuality and when it occurred; that the loss was the direct result of the casualty; that he owned the property; the cost or other basis of the property including improvements; and the depreciation allowed or allowable, if any.

Marriage not for Zohra Lampert

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Zohra Lampert moved to Hollywood last year to costar with George Peppard in "Doctor's Hospital" only to see the show canceled before the season was half completed.

Now that she has made her permanent base in California, Zohra plans to stay.

She played Dr. Norah Purcell in the short-lived series and regrets NBC-TV failed to give "Doctor's Hospital" a second chance.

A native of New York City, Zohra felt it was time for a change anyway. She lost her mother last year and decided a move away from the East Coast would be the best thing for herself and her 86-year-old father.

ZOHRA, A FORMER art student, settled into a large, six-room apartment in West Hollywood.

Zohra is 5-feet-8, 125 pounds, with dark brown hair and eyes. She is reclusive and shy, totally dedicated to acting and painting.

It is difficult to believe, but she doesn't have dates. Not that she isn't asked, but Zohra refuses to complicate her life with romance.

"I don't date at all," she says. "I'm afraid of going out on dates and the relationships that develop. Relationships are either serious or frivolous. I don't believe in wasting time."

ZOHRA DOESN'T sit alone home at nights either. Her friends are generally involved with her work. When she goes out to dinner it is generally with a couple she's known for years.

When she's not studying a script or cleaning house, Zohra can be found most often at her easel painting.

The solitary life suits her fine. "I have no marriage plans because I can't figure out how truly and sincerely you can be responsible for somebody else and still be true and responsible to your work," she says.

"When I find the answer to that, I may change my mind about marriage."

A search for proper king

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Take a look at the bidding of today's hand. It starts out simply enough. South has a very good one-spade opening and North a rather minimum three-spade response.

South's Blackwood four notrump is the obvious rebid and North responds five hearts to show his two aces.

Then South bids six clubs.

Has he gone crazy? Why didn't he bid five notrump to ask for kings?

No, he hasn't gone crazy! He didn't bid five notrump to ask for kings since he was interested in just one king. The king of trumps!

North and South were an expert partnership and were using a variation of the Culbertson grand-slam force as an adjunct to Blackwood.

South wanted to be in seven if North held the king of trumps in addition to his two aces and the six-club bid said, "Partner, bid seven if you hold two of the three top honors in trumps."

Celebrate The Year of The Dragon

The year of the Dragon begins Jan. 31 for the Chinese, but everyone could plan a dinner in celebration.

Chicken is an important ingredient in many Oriental dishes. These Chinese inspired recipes were winners several years ago at the National Chicken Cooking Contest.

Canton Style Fried Chicken

- 1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in parts
- 1 teaspoon flavor enhancer
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- ¼ cup flour
- ¼ cup corn oil
- 1 ½ cups chicken broth
- ¼ cup dry white wine
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon corn starch
- ¼ cup water

Sprinkle chicken with flavor enhancer. Brush each piece with soy sauce, then dust with flour. Pour corn oil into large heavy fry pan. Heat over medium heat. Add chicken; saute 8 to 10 minutes or until golden brown. Drain excess oil. Add broth, wine, salt and pepper. Cover; simmer about ½ hour or until chicken is tender. Stir in onion. Mix together corn starch and water until smooth. Move chicken to one side, stir corn starch mixture into liquid in skillet. Bring to boil, stirring constantly, and boil 1 minute. Makes 4 servings.

Oriental Chicken

- 2 broiler-fryer chickens, cut in parts
- ½ cup soy sauce
- ½ cup sake (rice wine) or unsweetened grapefruit juice
- ¼ cup corn oil
- 1 teaspoon flavor enhancer
- ½ teaspoon grated fresh ginger root or ground ginger

Place chicken parts in bowl or dish. Stir together soy sauce, sake, corn oil, flavor enhancer and ginger. Pour over chicken. Turn chicken parts to coat both sides. Cover and marinate in refrigerator, turning occasionally, several hours. Remove chicken from marinade and place in large shallow baking dish. Bake in 325 degree oven; basting frequently with marinade, about 1 hour or until fork tender. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Green and White Jade Chicken

- 2 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, boned, skinned, cut into 1-inch pieces
- 1 tablespoon corn starch
- 1 teaspoon dry white wine
- 1 pint corn oil
- 2 green peppers, seeded, cut into small pieces
- 2 thin slices ginger root
- 1 green onion, sliced
- ½ cup whole unsalted cashews
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon flavor enhancer
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ½ cup water

Place chicken pieces in mixing bowl. Add corn starch, wine and 1 teaspoon of the corn oil. Mix well. Pour remaining corn oil into large heavy deep fry pan. Heat over medium heat to 375 degrees. Add chicken mixture; quick fry. When pieces separate and turn white, chicken is done. Take out; quickly drain and put in large bowl. Pour corn oil from pan, leaving 1 tablespoon. Add pepper, ginger, green onion, cooked chicken and cashews. Stir in salt, flavor enhancer, sugar and water. Turn heat to high, quick fry no more than 3 minutes. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Note: Strain corn oil, cover and refrigerator for later use. If cashews are salted, eliminate salt.

Chicken Toast Appetizer

- 6 slices white bread
- 1 whole broiler-fryer chicken breast, boned, skinned, finely chopped
- 4 egg whites
- 5 tablespoons water
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon flavor enhancer
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon garlic salt
- 2 tablespoons sesame seed
- 1 pint (about) corn oil

Trim crusts from bread and cut each slice into 4 triangles. Place bread triangles on cookie sheet in 300 degree oven 5 minutes or until dry but not browned. Remove from oven. Mix together chicken, 1 of the egg whites, 2 tablespoons of the water, paprika, flavor enhancer, salt and garlic salt. In a small bowl thoroughly mix remaining 3 egg whites with remaining 3 tablespoons water and sesame seed. Spread each triangle with 1 teaspoon of chicken mixture, dip in egg white mixture coating completely. Pour corn oil into large heavy fry pan to depth of ½ inch. Heat over medium heat to 375 degrees. Add coated bread, a few pieces at a time. Fry 2 minutes on each side or until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot. Makes 24.

Note: Chicken Toast may be cooked, cooled and frozen until ready to serve. To reheat: place on baking sheet in 425 degree oven for 7 minutes or until heated through.

Meat's slow-cooked goodness impresses family and guests

by LOIS SEILER

It was a difficult decision to choose three favorite recipes, said Marcia Norwell, Arlington Heights, so with assistance from her family, she decided on those featured today.

Her Beef Burgundy is an excellent choice for the winter months. Marcia combined several recipes to achieve a hearty dish with abundant flavor.

Any lean beef, such as stew meat, may be used, and after a lengthy baking period in wine and a well-seasoned beef broth, she adds mushrooms and onions. Even better made a day ahead, Marcia recommends serving Beef Burgundy with parsley-battered new potatoes or buttered noodles, a tossed green salad and French bread.

For dessert, she suggests Rum Pudding with a Raspberry Sauce. The creamy pudding is laced with rum. The raspberry sauce adds tang. Served in individual dessert glasses, it is pretty in appearance and complements almost any meal. A crisp sugar cookie may be served on the side.

The whole family, including husband Rod and the four children, enjoys skiing. Often on ski trips or for weekend breakfasts at home, Marcia prepares Puffy French Toast, a family favorite.

She uses day old bread for this recipe. The bread is dipped into a batter made from Bisquick, eggs and milk. Fried until crispy and golden brown, it puffs up like a fritter. Heartier than regular French toast, it may be served hot with butter and syrup, powdered sugar or jam. Sausage or bacon completes this tasty meal.

In addition to cooking and skiing, Marcia's hobbies include sewing, needlework and tennis. She is a member of Northwest Covenant Church Women's Fellowship.

BEEF BURGUNDY

- 1/3 pound bacon
- 1 tablespoon cooking oil
- 3 pounds lean beef, cut in 2-inch cubes
- 1 medium carrot, sliced
- 1 thick slice of onion
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 3 cups dry red wine (Burgundy or Chianti)
- 2 1/2 to 3 cups canned beef broth
- 1 tablespoon tomato paste
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme
- 2 cloves garlic, mashed
- 1 bay leaf, crumbled
- 18 to 20 small white onions, fresh or frozen
- 1 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
- Slice bacon into pieces 1/4-inch wide and 1-inch long. Sauté until lightly-browned. Remove with slotted spoon and set aside. Add oil and heat.
- Dry beef cubes in paper towels. Brown a few pieces at a time on all sides. Set aside with bacon.
- Sauté onion slice and carrot slices in pan. Return beef and bacon. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, mix. Sprinkle with flour and toss again to coat meat. Place in 450 degree oven for 6 to 8 minutes to brown flour. Remove and reduce heat to 325 degrees.

- To beef mixture add all remaining ingredients except small white onions and mushrooms. Return to oven and bake at 325 degrees for three to four hours, covered, until meat is fork-tender.
- Meanwhile, cook fresh onions (with skins) 40 to 50 minutes in water. Drain and remove skins. If frozen onions are used, cook according to package directions. Sauté fresh mushrooms. Add to stew when done. If made ahead, skim off any excess fat before re-heating. Check seasonings. Serves 6.
- Prepare the following Raspberry Sauce:
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen raspberries, thawed
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons water
- Dissolve cornstarch in water. Add raspberry juice and enough water to make one cup liquid. Cook over low heat until thick and clear. Add raspberries and chill. Just before serving, spoon over pudding. Serves 6.
- PUFFY FRENCH TOAST
- 1 cup Bisquick Buttermilk Baking Mix
- 2 eggs
- 3/4 cup milk
- 8 slices day-old bread
- Oil
- Remove crusts from bread; cut slices in half. With rotary beater, beat Bisquick, eggs and milk until blended. Dip slices of bread into batter until well-covered on both sides. Leave slices on a plate for five minutes.
- Meanwhile, heat about 1/4 to 1-inch of oil to medium-hot in a large skillet. Fry about four slices at a time, two to three minutes on each side or until slices puff up and are a crispy, golden brown. Drain on absorbent towels.
- Serve hot with butter and syrup or powdered sugar, jelly or jam. Serves 6.
- RUM PUDDING WITH RASPBERRY SAUCE
- 1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
- 1/4 cup cold milk
- 1/2 cup hot milk
- 3 egg yolks
- 6 tablespoons granulated sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons light rum
- 1 cup whipping cream
- Soften gelatin in cold milk. Dissolve in hot milk, stirring.
- Beat egg yolks and sugar together in a small, deep bowl until very light and fluffy. Add salt, rum and the milk-gelatin mixture and blend well. Chill until partially set. Whip cream and fold into pudding. Spoon into six individual dessert glasses and chill.

For older people

Your food basket costs about $44 each month

By THE EDITORS OF CONSUMER REPORTS
(Last in a series)

Here are some tips on how to plan your food shopping:

Store brands are usually a good deal less expensive than brand-name items. White bread, peanut butter and canned and frozen vegetables are just some of the products sold under a store label at lower cost, but with about the same nutritional value.

Avoid shopping when you're hungry or tired — and likely to make uneconomical food choices.

USE A SHOPPING list and stick to it. Impulse buying increases your shopping bill.

Now let's talk about what older people should buy to eat nutritiously for less. Following is a suggested shopping basket — for one person. Remember, this food basket meets the nutritional needs of an older person for about one month at relatively low cost. If the budget allows, an older person may want to buy a few extra food items to add variety to the meal plan.

Not every food Consumers Union includes in the monthly shopping basket may appeal to you.

REMEMBER, we're not recommending that you shop for all your food needs at once. Some foods, like fresh meats and produce, should be bought once or twice a week.

If you shop often, make sure you keep track of what food you have on hand. In that way, you won't buy too much or too little of what you need.

The cost of this food basket will depend on a number of things, including where you live, the season, and the state of the economy. We last priced it in August 1975 in a supermarket a few blocks from Consumers Union in Mount Vernon, N.Y., a city of about 75,000 just north of New York City. Our shopping basket at that time cost about $44 per month, or just over $10 a week.

(c) 1975 by Consumers Union of United States, Inc., Mount Vernon, N.Y. 10550.

If you'd like a copy of the 88-page booklet, "Eating Right for Less," by the Editors of Consumer Reports, send your name, address and zip code and check or money order for $1.75 plus 25 cents mailing and handling for each copy ordered to "Eating Right for Less," care of Padlock Publications, P.O. Box 489, Dept. D, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Allow three weeks for delivery.

Mollusks help trace mans' past

by H. J. HELLER

Our cavemen ancestors were not the tidiest diners, often throwing the inedible remains of their meals on the ground.

These trash heaps, or middens, in later times became treasure-troves for archaeologists. Not only have scientists discovered valuable clues to the eating habits of early man but by extension to the climate and geography of the time.

Ms. Peggy Cooper, of the American Museum of Natural History, in a recent interview noted that early man included a large variety of seafood in his diet. Amazing amounts of clams, oysters, snails, conches and related shellfish disappeared down his gullet.

Almost any kind of mollusk can be eaten, said Ms. Cooper, who noted that mollusks also include species which do not have shells, such as squids and octopuses.

After eating the soft portions of the mollusks, the shells were thrown away and, in time, the floors of the caves, which were deserted and reoccupied innumerable times, rose by four or five feet, representing perhaps thousands of years accumulation of trash.

ACCORDING TO Ms. Cooper, a comparison of shell refuse with bones of animals can demonstrate the proportion of shellfish to animal foods eaten by cave dwellers.

A change in the types of shells found in the middens over a period of time, said Mrs. Cooper, "may reflect a change in climate or changes caused by the replacement of sea water by fresh water. A cooling of the climate during a given period would be followed by a change in the types of mollusks found in the middens."

Middens dating back to 4,000-5,000 B.C. have been discovered all over the world, indicating a possible geological change during that period, such as the sea becoming shallower or some other phenomena which enabled people "to gather a lot of mollusks and make them a more significant portion of the diet than previously," Ms. Cooper said.

That does not mean that major changes did not happen previously, she emphasized, but it does indicate that great changes occurred during that period.

Private labels

Private label food still is cheaper than nationally advertised brands, but the price difference is smaller than it was 10 years ago. Cornell University's Cooperative Extension service says the price difference this year on a sample of products in New York City was only 13 per cent, compared with 20 per cent in a national study a decade ago. The price difference is greater for some products than others. Private label frozen orange juice concentrate offered a 45 per cent saving in the recent study.

Saving money on weekly grocery purchases is easy at the Budget Food Store. Because you'll not only save on basic food needs with warehouse prices . . . you'll save on non-food items as well. And that's good news, since the weekly cost of non-foods like health and beauty aids, for example, can take such a chunk out of your grocery dollars.

So, to help you obtain total savings, all health and beauty aids sold at the Budget Food Store are discounted in price, too. It's a fact! You'll notice substantial savings on your favorite aspirin, toothpaste, shampoos, and more. Why, even popular Velvetch nylons are discounted in price — pantyhose, knee hi's, everything!

Remember — the same store that offers warehouse food prices also discounts prices on all brands of health and beauty aids, too. And that's the Budget Food Store, of course!

Methods improve 'proofing'

What recipes usually read is, "Place dough in warm place to rise." I have a neat solution to finding a warm place for the dough to rise that beats even the old-time overnight method of placing it in bed with the children. Of course, if you're going to bake only once in a blue moon, this may not have much appeal. But when you become hooked on baking, and you will, you will rather have your doughs undelayed by a cold snap in the weather. It is also frustrating to find the dough has become too warm on the bottom and not warm enough on the top, or vice versa, from sitting on assorted radiators and stove tops or in the sun.

This is my system: Give up a cupboard, preferably in your kitchen and preferably one in which you store seldom-used items, and have it wired for the installation of a light bulb, placed low in the back of the cupboard. An on/off switch outside the cupboard is a convenience, though my first one was on a cord which I plugged into the appliance outlet above the counter. A small hole in the cupboard allowed the wire to go through (took off the plug, then reconnected it), so the only installation required was in mounting the fitting to receive the light bulb.

THE SIZE OF your cupboard will determine the wattage of the light bulb you use. The cupboard which I converted to a "proofing" (rising) cabinet is 23 inches deep, 16 wide and 20 in height. A 150-watt bulb works beautifully. Depending on the size of your cabinet, you will want to experiment with bulbs of 100 to 150 wattage to maintain a 95 to 105 degree temperature inside the cupboard.

I found and installed a couple of surplus oven shelves from an old out-moded stove (refrigerator shelves will do too). The top shelf, at least, should be removable so you can put in the bowl for the first rising, and later put in the bread pans. Dough should be covered with wax paper or a sheet of plastic for both risings.

Equip your proofing cabinet with a thermometer so you can maintain a 95 to 105 degree temperature inside the cupboard by turning the light on and off once or twice during the rising. Between baking days, this cabinet is a fine place to store all your bread making utensils and such.

Now you're ready for the first rising, which takes place in the bowl after you have kneaded the dough thoroughly. When you are ready for the second rising, which takes place in the bread pans after you have molded the loaves into shape, replace the top shelf in the cabinet to allow more shelf space.

A REFINEMENT of this simple cupboard proofing cabinet involves the installation of a small humidifier (we used to call them "croup kettles"), to be set below the bottom shelf of the cabinet. A humidifier eliminates the need to cover the dough to keep it from drying and causing a crust during rising. Such crusting slows down the rising process as well as inhibiting a good oven-spring during baking, to say nothing of detracting from eating pleasure later. However, if moisture is used in the cabinet, a glass protector must cover the light bulb for safety reasons.

How do you know when the dough has risen enough? Assuming that you have not only lightly greased the top of your dough ball but covered the bowl suitably as well, you'll need the application of a little judgment to determine when you think the dough has doubled in bulk. Take into consideration that the dough has spread out, that the bowl is usually smaller in circumference at the bottom and your eye will tell you when you're there. Approximate is good enough.

A reassuring and additional test is to plunge your middle finger to the knuckle into the risen dough, then observe that it is very, very slow to fill in the hole you created. On the other hand, if, upon plunging in your finger, the dough collapses and falls ignomi-

By-products of shrimp have uses

Science and industry have found uses for the part of the shrimp that doesn't go into the cocktail.

These shrimp by-products were discussed at a conference hosted by the Sea Grant College Program at Texas A&M University, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Marine Commodities International, Inc.

Shrimp heads and shells contain chitin, which is being used as transparent film for food wraps and thickening baby foods, among other things.

Science has known about chitin for more than a century. It is the main component in shrimp shell and birds the shell into a functional unit that offers rigidity. It also is found in other crustaceans, such as crabs, lobster and crayfish.

Recognition of its potential led to establishment last year of a chitin pilot plant in Brownsville, Tex.

BASICALLY, chitin is a long chain of sugar molecules hooked together in such a way that it chemically possesses unique properties. Chitin can be changed to another useful compound called chitosan.

Chitin has been tested as a transparent film for treating wounds and burns, for clearing sewage waste water or organic matter, removing harmful radioactive materials left after fission reactions in nuclear power plants, thickening food, coating herbicides and insecticide pellets for long-term release, and increasing the wet strength of newsprint, diapers and shopping bags.

The presently discarded shrimp heads represent about 40 per cent of the weight of the shellfish and are an excellent potential source of chitin.

In the future shrimpers might be offered a market for heads at prices that make it worthwhile to bring them ashore. The same could be true for other crustaceans such as crabs and nonedible varieties of shrimp.

Perfect proof for bread

nously to the bottom of the bowl, you have grossly overdone things — worn out the yeast, over-softened the gluten in the flour and generally fouled it up. I'll tell you how to save doughs that have been neglected and some remedies for mistakes later on in this column series.

But for now, how do you know, after the dough has been molded and panned, when to put it into the oven? Once more, the loaf you have made up must double in bulk. If you let it rise too high the picture-book loaf you were anticipating will have become an enormous balloon, or spilled over the pan at the top, or become squarish and sunken on top, large-holed and loose-textured inside — any or all.

WHAT I referred to as overspring is a last jump the dough takes after it's in the oven, so we must allow for this to happen by letting it rise only about an inch above the rim of the bread pan. Besides bringing about a fairly even texture inside the loaf (and I don't mean the extremely fine, silky plastic foam texture of so much store-bought bread, which I deplore), you should have brought about that most appetizing and attractive break along one side of the loaf above the top of the pan, known in baker's parlance as "the shred."

The shred is plain evidence that you used the right proportions of ingredients, that your dough was kneaded enough, you put it into the oven at the right time in a pan of the proper size for the amount of dough in the loaf, you let it rise just enough, and the oven was at the right temperature. You have a little leeway on all those factors, so don't be intimidated. And I'll fill you in with more tips as we go along.

Once you nail down some of these prerequisites, a quick look is all you'll need to tell you when to bake. In the meantime, a light pressure on the top of the risen loaf with the tip of one finger should not leave the slightest dent. If the loaf appears to have doubled, and there's no dent from the finger test, into the oven with it, but gently.

Bread prices

Increases in processing and distribution costs have more bearing on the price of wheat than the price of wheat does. Consumer Education specialists at Cornell University say a bushel of wheat provides flour for about 70 one-pound loaves of white bread.

About books

Good cooking the American way

by PATRICIA HARRIS

For those of you who think America's major contribution to international cooking is fast food and the gelatin salad topped by a marshmallow, there's a big boost for your national pride coming up.

Three new cookbooks that may prove intriguing enough to move from your bedside reading table to the kitchen will remind you of our proud culinary heritage.

The author of "Cooking American," Sidney W. Dean, (Noonday Press, $4.95) is a died-in-the-wool Yankee. While many of the dishes he presents originated in New England, recipes from west of the Mississippi and south of the Mason-Dixon line are well represented in his 421-page magnum.

INTRIGUING CHAPTER headings such as "potatoes and their possibilities" and "tripe in various disguises" point the way to new ways of expanding one's repertoire in the kitchen. The chapter on cooking out-of-doors includes information on how to prepare a New England clam bake, a Midwestern fish fry and an authentic Western barbecue.

Especially intriguing is the section of shell fish and soups. One of the author's featured recipes is his mother's specialty, clam short cake — a combination of fresh clams in a white chowder sauce, poured over homemade biscuits.

The author's personal comments and tips on the history and preparation of the dishes make this an especially delightful book to read as well as work with.

"American Gastronomy" (Henry Regnery Co., $10.00) by Louis Szathmari, owner of Chicago's restaurant The Bakery, presents an interesting but sketchy historical overview of American foods, cooking methods, chefs and dishes.

CHEF SZATHMARI reminds us of those dishes that are uniquely American — for example, the pancake, the mashed potato (without lumps, please) and eggs Benedict (the invention of a traveler named Benedict). He tells of the origin of the potato chip, the Caesar salad, how pizza, "that great Italian delicacy" was invented in New York, and chow mein and chop suey were first concocted in San Francisco's Chinatown.

The book, however, is primarily a collection of recipes drawn from old-fashioned American cookbooks. All are characterized by a reliance on typically American ingredients and represent a cross-section of American life. There's also a helpful section on how to convert old-fashioned recipes for today's use.

Gastronomy is made visually interesting through the liberal use of black and white etchings from America's culinary past.

EVAN JONES' "American Food," (E.P. Dutton & Co., $16.95) subtitled "The Gastronomic Story," is a handsomely set up, absorbing account of American culture viewed through the kitchen.

What makes this book stand out among most 'cooking-through-history' volumes is its crisp writing, anecdotal style and its insights into the development of the American palate.

Jones, for example, attempts to explain the American penchant for finger food, discusses the kitchen-centered American lifestyle of yesterday, accounts for our gastronomical chauvinism in the 19th century, and notes that Ben Franklin insisted his English cook learn to bake cornbread.

The recipes represent solid American cookery and reveal the American imagination and ingenuity in such goodies as Avocado Ice Cream, Fiddleheads (boiled ostrich ferns) and a lasagne made with ham and spinach.

FDA regulates labeling of fats

Cholesterol counters and weight watchers could benefit from a new regulation recently issued by the Food and Drug Administration.

The FDA said the labels on all foods containing fats or oils will now have to list the kind of oil or fat involved so consumers will know what they are getting.

For example, the phrase "vegetable oil" may still be used but it will no longer be enough. It will have to be followed by an explanation — like "corn oil," "soybean oil" or whatever it really is.

"Consumers will now be better able to follow doctors' orders to restrict certain kinds of fats and oils in the diet," said FDA Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt. "They will also be able to select the fats and oils they wish to consume for health and religious reasons and personal preference."

SOME FATS AND oils are considered more likely to lead to a build up of cholesterol in the arteries, increasing the danger of heart attacks.

Schmidt said consumers "have a basic right to know the source of fats and oils in the foods they eat and have overwhelmingly requested that the labeling of fats and oils be more specific. This is a major addition to the agency's policy of providing more informative food labeling."

Currently some oils are listed only as "shortening," with no indication as to whether they come from animal, plant or marine sources, the agency said.

Apartments to be probed by county

by JOE FRANZ

Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne has ordered an investigation of alleged building, health and fire code violations at the Greens of Golf Mill apartment complex, 8884 Stevens Dr.

A spokesman for Dunne Wednesday said the county board president ordered the investigation after meeting with officials from the Greens Tenants' Assn.

The tenants' group, formed recently to fight for better living conditions at the apartment complex, Tuesday presented Dunne with a list of 500 alleged building, fire and health code violations.

Comr. William Harris of the county department of building and zoning, said Dunne turned the alleged violations over to him for investigation. He said he will meet Friday with officials from the county health department and state's attorney's office to discuss the matter.

"WE'RE GOING to review the apartment complex and check out the allegations made by the tenants' association," he said. "Wherever the allegations are found to be true there will be court action against the owners."

Harris said he is familiar with the Greens apartment complex, and knows some violations exist.

"I don't have any reason to believe the tenants' complaints are unfounded," he said. "They no doubt have some violations there."

Besides the alleged building, fire and health code violations, residents of the complex have complained about maintenance, water quality, security and rising crime in the 127-building complex northeast of Dempster Street and Potter Road.

OFFICIALS FROM the Littlestone Co., the firm managing the complex, repeatedly have refused to comment on the charges.

Patton Feichter, vice president of the tenants' group who attended the meeting with Dunne, said he hopes the county will take action insuring correction of violations at the complex.

"He (Dunne) promised quick action in looking into the 500 complaints we presented to him," Feichter said.

IN ADDITION to receiving the complaints, Feichter said Dunne was giving en a letter signed by the mayors of five nearby suburban communities supporting the Greens residents.

The letter was signed by Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel, Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase, Park Ridge Mayor Martin Butler, Glenview Mayor Edward Patten and Morton Grove Mayor Jule Bode.

Keith Marvin, president of the tenants' group, said the organization has not ruled out the possibility of a "legal rent strike," adding officials will wait until the county completes its investigation before making a decision.

Beirut under storm as troops sweep foothills

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian forces stormed Beirut's Moslem suburbs Wednesday as two Palestinian army brigades from Syria cut across the country to the foothills of Mt. Lebanon.

The Palestinian armor and artillery columns, halted by the 10,000-foot-high mountain range, were ready to move toward the war-ravaged capital if last-ditch Syrian-mediated truce talks fail.

Christian forces launched a sweeping offensive Wednesday against the Moslem suburb of Naabeh in reprisal for the fall of two besieged Christian towns south of Beirut.

THE VOICE OF Lebanon, the pirate radio station of the right-wing Phalangist party, said Christian militias were uniting under one command to liberate "the entire Lebanese nation from its usurpers."

Fierce fighting raged across the capital and countryside as rival forces attacked and counterattacked in an apparent attempt to grab as much territory as possible before a new cease-fire.

Police estimated more than 200 persons were killed and 430 injured in a climactic 48 hours. The toll in five months of war rose to nearly 9,600 dead and 20,100 wounded.

8.6% pay increase in 1-year pact

Dist. 207 teachers OK contract

A one-year contract calling for an 8.6 per cent salary increase was approved overwhelmingly by teachers in High School Dist. 207 Wednesday. The agreement was reached after 10 months of negotiations.

All teachers will receive a 6.1 per cent salary increase in addition to a 2.5 per cent increase for an additional year's experience. A beginning teacher with a bachelor's degree and no experience will receive $10,220 compared to $9,690 last year.

The top pay in the district for a teacher who has 64 hours of graduate credit beyond a master's degree and more than 20 years of experience is $23,125. The salary package will cost the district about $700,000 more than last year.

HIGH SCHOOL Dist. 211 contract this year offers a base pay of $10,255 compared to $9,650 last year. High School Dist. 214 is in the third year of a three-year contract. Dist. 214's base pay is $9,836 this year.

Helen Dobbins, union president, said Dist. 207's agreement also was put into contract form for the first time this year. She said she is pleased with the contract because "It's the first step on our way to a full contract. We definitely made some gains this year."

The contract was reached last week, following two months of mediation. Teachers declared an impasse in November after a stalemate declared over salaries was reached.

TEACHERS were asking for a 10.5 per cent salary increase, including the 2.5 per cent for an additional year of experience. The board was offering a 7.5 per cent increase including the 2.5 per cent increment.

Board members on the negotiating team could not be reached for comment. The board will vote on the contract at Monday's board meeting.

Other items in the contract include:

- Improvements in the grievance procedures. A separate file will be kept for teachers involved in grievance procedures. Previously, grievance items were kept in a teacher's personnel file.

- Increased major medical coverage from $10,000 to $100,000.

- Increased extracurricular pay. The extra duty pay increases depend upon the assignment.

- Increased summer school pay.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday laid down a $394.2 billion budget carrying more money for defense and energy programs, a promise of new tax cuts for individuals and businesses, and a scaled-down social program emphasizing aid to the most needy.

Aside from military and energy spending, the emphasis was on reducing federal outlays for domestic needs by consolidation and reorganization of a variety of government programs.

Signing the budget before submitting it to Congress, where the ultimate decisions lie, the President said:

"This represents what we hope will be a very major turning point for the American people. But it does not hold out any promise that the federal government can or will solve every problem."

He said "it reflects on every page the common sense, the new realism" he invoked in his State of the Union speech Monday.

"We will give more money to those at or below the poverty line and cut off those above," Ford told reporters.

Having put his own stamp on the blueprint for fiscal 1977 (his previous budget was worked out largely under Richard Nixon), Ford dispatched top economic aides to Capitol Hill for daylong briefings of congressional leaders and committees to be involved with it.

Among those panels are the new Senate and House budget committees, created to sort out and ride hard on the complicated process of government spending. They could drastically alter the President's formula.

Predictably, most congressional Republicans praised the President while

Democratic leaders attacked the effort to cut back on domestic programs.

However, Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and a major force in the budget's move through Congress, urged fellow Democrats not to push for budget increases in view of the "shockingly high" national debt.

Mahon acknowledged that there will be pressures to chop the proposed $8.3 billion increase in defense spending, and that "Congress may very probably fail to adopt" the President's plan for overhauling and reducing domestic programs.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill raised the issue of politics, saying:

"The President's budget priorities are 100 per cent wrong. Its full impact in slowing the economy would be felt in 1977, not in this election year. We have to worry about the future, not just about the election."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said it is "in the interest of the (Continued on Page 3)

Ford's $394.2 billion budget to Congress

Expanded routes fail to attract patrons

Intracity bus ridership declines

Ridership on three intracity bus routes in Des Plaines has declined since the expanded system went into operation in December while ridership on the other route increased, little change.

Statistics released by the North Suburban Mass Transit District were based on a study between Dec. 8 and Jan. 10.

The new bus system consists of the following routes: north (Route 31); south (Route 30); west (Route 32); and southwest (Route 33).

Daily ridership on the south route averaged 57 riders per day the week of Dec. 8, but showed a steady decline to 42 riders per week the week of Jan. 5.

RIDERSHIP ON the west route averaged 107 the week of Dec. 8, decreased to a low of 43 the week of Dec. 29, and increased to 60 the week of Jan. 5.

The number of riders on the southwest route averaged 30 the week of Dec. 8, hit a low of 13 the week of Dec. 22, and increased to 25 the week of Jan. 5.

Ridership on the north route showed a slight increase from 23 riders a day the week of Dec. 8 to 29 per day the week of Jan. 5.

Robert Bourne, operations assistant for NORTAN, attributed the low ridership on some days to cold weather, snow and the Christmas holidays.

"WHEN YOU HAVE snow and zero weather, people aren't going to go out and wait on a street corner for a bus," he said. "The Christmas and New Year's holidays also hurt ridership."

Bourne said the bus system will have to operate longer before NORTAN officials are able to reach any conclusions.

"We want this thing to work, but it'll have to be in operation about three months before we'll get any kind of a trend," Bourne said.

Joseph DiJohn, executive director of NORTAN, said bus routes would have to average about 20 riders an hour to become self-supporting. The intracity service operates from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The system needs 200 riders each day on every route to break even.

ALD. GEORGE Olen, 2nd, chairman of the city's special transportation committee, said recently the bus service is a "use it or lose it proposition" for the city.

NORTAN, Regional Transportation Authority and city officials will review the intracity bus system later this year to determine if changes are needed and if the service should be continued.

The bus routes begin and end in the vicinity of the Chicago and North Western Ry. station in downtown Des Plaines. The fare is 45-cents and all routes are designed to bring bus service to within six blocks of most homes in the city.

The buses run at 30 minute intervals during rush periods and one-hour intervals at other times. They can be used to make connections with regional NORTAN routes that go to O'Hare Airport, the Jefferson Park train station in Chicago and other locations in the North and Northwest suburbs.

Dist. 26 finance study to get under way Tuesday

The River Trails Dist. 26 citizens' financial committee will begin work Tuesday on an in-depth study of the school's current budget.

Thirty-four district residents, including former board members Harold Haney, Marsha Lupton, Michael Sheyker, Clark Robinson, Hugh Stubbs, Ray Johnston and Charles Morey, attended Tuesday night's board of education meeting to organize the citizens' panel temporarily headed by Idyll Nipper.

Haney was elected to lead the group in future meetings.

Charged by Board Pres. Leora Rosen to find "solutions to our problems," the group plans to have administrators tell them why the district faces bankruptcy by 1977-78 before it begins studying solutions to the district's financial plight.

BOARD MEMBERS learned in December the district would reach its $900,000 limit of legal indebtedness in two years unless state and local taxes increase.

Enrollments have declined in the last six years and are expected to continue to drop until 1980, causing a decrease in state aid. At the same time, teacher and staff salaries are rising, eating up rapidly decreasing revenue.

"We know we can look to an increased tax rate, class sizes, or consider consolidation or curtail services," Mrs. Rosen said.

"We do not have any preconceived notion at this time. Whatever we end up pursuing must be a total community project," she said.

In a two-hour brainstorming session, members of the citizens' committee expressed interest in studying the pros and cons of:

- Raising local taxes through a referendum.
- Consolidating Dist. 26 with another elementary school district or with a high school district.
- Cutting teachers and administrative staff.
- Increasing class size and reorganizing the district into primary, intermediate and junior high schools.
- Seeking additional finances from state and federal programs.
- Closing a school and renting it for income.
- Increasing fees for books and bus service.

The group will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. at River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect.

Bigger drop in Dist. 59 rolls seen

Housing statistics from the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 1975 spring census show fewer children come from homes in older neighborhoods, which could contribute to greater declines in enrollment than were originally predicted.

The report, presented to the school board this week, includes a breakdown of the number of children from six types of dwellings — single-family homes, apartments, condominium units, townhouses, quadplex homes and duplex homes.

The district has about 10,500 single family homes, 7,400 apartment units and 1,900 condominium units. There also are about 330 townhouses, 225 quadplex homes and 140 duplex homes.

SINGLE-FAMILY homes have a higher ratio of students per unit than the other types of housing. There are 1.34 students per single family home. Townhouses and duplex homes also have high ratios of students per unit with .98 students per townhouse and 1.18 students per duplex.

The report also shows schools in newer developments have higher ratios of students per unit in all categories. Arthur Perry, financial director, said the figures "suggest a tendency for 'empty-nesters' to remain in their homes after their children have left Dist. 59."

He said the figures might point to a greater decline in enrollment than originally predicted by the census because fewer young families are moving into the district.

The district predicted a 33 per cent drop in enrollment by the 1979-80 school year as indicated by census statistics. The district reached its peak enrollment in the 1971-72 school year when 11,629 students were enrolled. Enrollment dropped to 10,448 students this year, or a 10.2 per cent decline from the 1971-72 enrollment.

THE REPORT SHOWS the peak in junior high enrollment was reached during the 1973-74 school year when 4,106 students were in grades 6-8. The district expects junior high enrollment to drop by 22.7 per cent from the high point by the 1980-81 school year when 3,248 students are expected in the junior highs.

Perry said, "This loss, spread over five buildings, will be more apparent than the loss of elementary enrollment spread over sixteen buildings."

The report also shows that the number of births in the district also has dropped sharply during the past seven years. The peak in the number of births was reached in 1967 when 3,389 babies were born in the district. Last year's birth rate was 17.4 per cent less than the 1967 birth rate.

Perry said the decline in the number of births is "probably attributable both to the maturation of the area as well as the known decline in birth rate."

He said housing and enrollment figures will require the district to look at planning differently than it has in the past.

Free health tests for the elderly

The Des Plaines Health Dept. has begun a free health screening service for senior citizens, including blood pressure, vision and hearing tests.

The service is available to Des Plaines residents 65 years or older. The examinations will be made by a nurse at the Des Plaines Civic Center, 1420 Miner St.

Persons desiring the service should call the city health department, 297-1200, for an appointment.

A similar service also is available at Heinrich House for residents of that building. Heinrich House, Lee and Ashland streets, is a senior citizens' apartment complex.

Public information code drafted by Dist. 62 unit

A public records policy that determines what is public information and how to distribute it, was drafted by the Des Plaines Dist. 62 policy committee Wednesday.

The committee was directed by the school board to review district policies for releasing public information in response to criticism that officials recently refused to give out information about administrators' salaries.

The district did not have a specific policy on public records, but rather, followed the requirements set by the state and local records acts.

THE COMMITTEE wrote a policy specifying which records are public according to state acts and outlining methods for releasing the information to the public.

Copies of the proposed policy were not made available to the press at the meeting.

Ann Schillmoeller, chairman, said she wanted the definition of public records to be general and not limited to a single issue. The original draft specified financial matters and payroll records as public information.

She recommended that the definition be copied directly or paraphrased from the records act or that policy refer to these acts.

THE POLICY also included a definition of student records.

The proposed policy also would require a 24-hour, written notice from any individual requesting information. The district also would make every effort to protect the privacy of employees. "It is our intention and desire to protect the privacy of everyone. It's not just the law but the district's conviction," said Robert Birchfield, board member.

The district also would charge a fee for reproducing any records for individuals.

The records acts set a $1 fee for reproducing copies larger than the legal-sized sheet of paper and 35 cents for all other copies.

The written notice and fee would be waived for board meeting minutes.

The proposed policy will be presented at the Feb. 2 board meeting.

Officials to study forming fraud panel

Des Plaines officials will attend a meeting in Niles Feb. 11 to discuss the formation of a regional consumer fraud commission.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said the meeting will be conducted by Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase. Officials from about seven municipalities are expected to attend the meeting.

Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, who has proposed a consumer protection committee in Des Plaines, said he will attend.

Commissioners would investigate consumer complaints and supplement efforts by county, state and federal agencies, officials said.

Seek ways to reduce expenses

Dist. 63 debates personnel cuts

Cutting the number of social workers, and art, physical education and music teachers was discussed by the East Maine Dist. 63 Board of Education as possible options for reducing expenditures in the district next year.

The board Monday discussed reducing the number of social workers from 10 to 5 next year. Currently there is one social worker assigned to each of the nine elementary schools and one social worker who splits time between the two junior high schools. The proposed cut would assign the social workers to only schools where they are needed and save the district about $28,000.

Board member Barbara Kipnis said "assigning the social workers on a need basis is a good idea" because some schools need more of that help than others.

THE ADMINISTRATION also proposed saving about $30,000 by dropping art teachers at the elementary schools and keeping one art teacher who would act as a coordinator for the grade school's art program.

Board member Howard Lessin questioned why an art teacher should be kept as a consultant. "If we are going to reduce the number of art teachers, cut them all the way out," he said. Lessin said it might be cheaper to hire an art teacher for occasional workshops rather than keep an art teacher for this purpose.

Board member Larry Reiss said an art teacher as a consultant would help classroom teachers prepare effective art programs.

Cutting out the elementary school instrumental music program and reducing the number of vocal music teachers in the grade schools also was proposed. One instrumental music teacher would be kept for the junior high schools' band program under the proposal. The district estimates it would save about $39,000 by dropping three elementary instrumental music teachers.

BOARD MEMBER William Allen said the district should investigate offering instrumental lessons on a fee basis after school for elementary students. Other board members questioned how this cut would affect the junior high program because students wouldn't be offered instruction until the seventh grade.

Supt. G. Allen Gogo said about 500 students currently participate in the instrumental music program and a large number of elementary students drop from the program during the year.

He said offering lessons after school could be arranged but he was concerned it might be used to "drum up business" for private teachers.

The proposal also calls for the reduction of vocal music staff from nine teachers to seven for the elementary schools with a savings of about $18,700. Currently the district has a vocal teacher assigned to each of the elementary schools. The teachers would be assigned according to school enrollment under the proposal.

REISS QUESTIONED whether students would have the same amount of vocal music and whether vocal music class sizes would increase under this proposal.

Gogo said currently the class size varies depending upon the size of the school and regular classroom setup. He said some schools have one vocal teacher for 600 students and others have one for 300 students. He said the plan would have vocal music teachers responsible for about the same number of students.

Cutting the number of physical education teachers at the elementary schools from nine to seven also was discussed. Currently each elementary school has a physical education teacher. The proposal would keep seven physical education teachers who would be assigned to the grade schools according to school enrollment. This cutback would save the district about $18,300.

Board members said this should be considered if all schools would have comparable physical education programs. Gogo said this proposal might eliminate inequities that exist because of the difference in school enrollment.

Dropping the instructional material clerks at a savings of $24,000 also was proposed. Each elementary school now has a clerk who helps in the library. The administration suggested dropping the paid clerks and asking for parent volunteers to do the clerical work. Most schools already have parent volunteers working in the libraries.

THE BOARD has been discussing options for increasing revenue and cutting costs because of anticipated deficits in the education and building funds. A $81,000 deficit is expected in the building fund this year and a $570,000 deficit in the education fund is expected by the 1977-78 school year. A deficit of more than $5 million is expected in both funds by the 1979-80 school year.

Other options discussed at earlier meetings for cutting costs include:

- Cutting about 24 junior high teachers, saving $262,000.
- Dropping nurses and hiring nurses aides; saving $40,000.
- Reducing the number of speech teachers from seven to five, saving $10,500.

The board also directed the administration to cut out all equipment purchases and reduce the amount of money spent on student supplies to $27 for each elementary student and $37 for each junior high student next year.

Military group honored for band shell payment

The Des Plaines City Council has honored members of the Military Commemorative Committee for raising funds to build the Memorial Band Pavilion at Lake Opeka.

The committee, formed Dec. 6, 1967, recently completed paying for the $80,000 structure. Money for the project was raised through mail and street corner campaigns, a garage sale and bingo games.

The band pavilion, on Lee Street north of Touhy Avenue, was built "as a living memorial" to Des Plaines residents who gave their lives in military service to the United States.

The band pavilion was dedicated last June and used during the summer for concerts, dance shows and magic shows. It is operated and maintained by the Des Plaines Park District.

Members of the Military Commemorative Committee honored by the city council were; Walter Bally, Carl Ekx Jr., Robert Kunkel, Lydia Meack, Marshall McClure, Alvin Schalla, Raymond Slivka, Carol Stehl, Florence Tanka, Orville Kurtz and Donald Vance.

The city council also gave recognition to the following members posthumously: Ralph Spoo, John Lehnart, Lloyd McDonald and C. E. Greco.

City officials said there were many other persons not named in the council resolution who contributed their time to the band pavilion project.

City blocks donut shop construction

Des Plaines officials have denied a developer's request for a zoning change to allow construction of a donut shop at the southeast corner of Webster Lane and Oakton Street.

The city council voted unanimously to deny a zoning change from single-family to commercial use on the recommendation of its municipal development committee. The zoning change was opposed by about 40 residents in the area.

The developers, Kenneth Brooks and A. Aming, were planning to operate the donut shop 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The shop was to handle sit-down and carry-out customers.

The developers were planning to tear down two houses on the site to make way for the donut shop. The houses were built in 1940.

Although the city's plan commission recommended approval of the project, its zoning board recommended that the zoning change be denied.

Dist. 62 OKs custodians' contract

A 7.9 per cent salary increase and a two-year contract have been approved for custodian and maintenance workers by the Des Plaines Dist. 62 Board of Education.

The school board approved the two-year pact Monday which gives custodians raises this year of $900 to $950 and maintenance workers $900. The two supervisors will get a $950 raise. The contract covers about 40 custodians in the district.

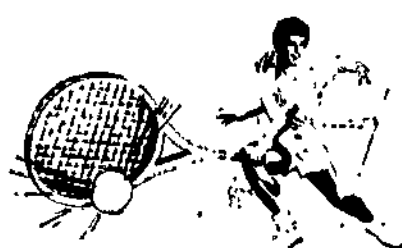

During the second year of the contract, custodians will receive salary increases between $750 and $800.

Maintenance workers and supervisors will get $50 raises.

The custodian contract also includes binding arbitration for grievance procedures and procedures for handling student and parent complaints against custodians.

Custodians also received three weeks of vacation after five years of employment with the district. Previously custodians received two weeks of vacations plus one day for each year they worked beyond five years. The maximum amount of vacation allowed under the old contract was three weeks.

Teacher wants more sun out of life

by PAM BIGFORD

George Swanson would like to see the sun shine until 9:30 at night.

Swanson thinks the country would be better off economically and socially if the sun rose later and set later. And he intends to do something about it.

Swanson, an earth science teacher at Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, has formulated a new daylight-savings plan which would keep the sun shining until about 9:30 p.m. in the peak of the summer, almost an hour later than usual.

THE DAYLIGHT-savings plan which has been in effect the past two years has provided an additional hour of daylight in the evening from March through October.

Swanson's plan calls for yet another hour of daylight from May through August. Instead of the sun setting at about 8:30 p.m. in July, it would not set until 9:30 p.m.

Swanson said that not only would most people enjoy an extra hour of daylight on summer evenings, but it would save money in energy use.

Electrical utility officials estimated a savings of nearly 1 per cent a month took place in 1974 when the present eight-month daylight-savings plan took effect, Swanson said. He predicts that under his proposal, annual electrical production would be reduced another 6 per cent, a savings of 18 million barrels of oil a year.

SWANSON SAID that government studies have shown that traffic accidents and crime were also reduced in 1974 and 1975 during extended daylight hours.

Two possible disadvantages of the plan are foreseen by Swanson. One is that clocks would have to be changed four times a year instead of twice, which may be confusing.

Another is that the current time zones across the U.S. would have to be revised so that some areas would not experience mid-morning darkness. Swanson said he believes present time zones are generally overextended to the West.

The idea for the daylight-extending plan began hatching in Swanson's mind when he realized how few people were able to take advantage of the extra daylight hours in the summer.

SWANSON IS promoting his plan by sending it to local congressmen. U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Illinois, who is on a Senate committee studying the advantages gained in 1974 and 1975 by extending the daylight savings time into March and April, has shown the most interest in the plan, Swanson said.

Swanson hopes his proposal will receive even more publicity Friday night when he appears on "Graftiti," a WLS-TV program hosted by weatherman John Coleman. The one-hour program begins at 11:40 p.m. and Swanson is scheduled to appear during the latter half.

Swanson, who has been teaching various sciences for the past 10 years, said people have been proposing daylight-savings plans ever since Benjamin Franklin came up with the first one.

Swanson doesn't think anybody has gotten it right yet. But he's out to prove that, when it comes to sunshine, he's at least one step ahead of Ben Franklin.

Anybody got the right time?

Nongraded classes help depressed students learn

Noncompetitive, nongraded instruction at Elk Grove High School is helping depressed students learn, says a school psychologist.

Between 200 and 300 students who are depressed because they are unsuccessful in the classroom are participating in a program of individualized education that emphasizes personal goals and progress rather than class rank.

Dick Bell, Elk Grove High School psychologist, said the young men and women in individualized instruction are not low-ability students. "Some students can do the work but won't," he explained.

FOR THESE students the realization of success in individual instruction can make the difference between completing their education and dropping out, he said.

"Today, the student who gets a C sees himself as a failure. Only students with A's and B's think of themselves as successes," Bell told a group of social service professionals during a meeting Tuesday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Some students in the Elk Grove High School program sign a mock contract spelling out their educational goals, quality of work and the grade they can receive. The contract "allows the student to monitor his own progress. The student takes responsibility for his own learning," Bell said.

Other students in the program, particularly those who are discipline problems, earn tokens for good behavior. The tokens are exchangeable for free time during which students are allowed to talk or play games.

Individualized instruction is frequently just one aspect of a student's curriculum at Elk Grove High School, and not all students need the special attention. But Bell said the philosophy of the program can be extended throughout the school.

"I want to emphasize noncompetitive education, and would like to see the grading system end. We have too many failures in the school system today," he said.

Parking meters All-American in Mount Prospect

by JOE SWICKARD

Oh, say can you see by the dawn's early light if there's any time left on the parking meter?

Commuters in Mount Prospect may be humming that jaunty tune as they feed the meters in the commuter parking lots. Chicagoans may stand straighter when they park on Clark Street, not to mention the visitors to Rapid City, S.D.

Why all the patriotic fervor when it comes to parking a car? Because the Duncan Parking Meter Co., Elk Grove Village, is selling a star-spangled version of their meter in honor of the Bicentennial.

RALPH B. ELSNER, Duncan's vice president of sales, said, "We developed the idea about a year ago. Last April we showed it around the sales meetings and it was pretty well accepted."

Locally, Mount Prospect chose the national motif when it came time to replace the plexiglass domes on the meters in the commuter parking lots along Northwest Highway.

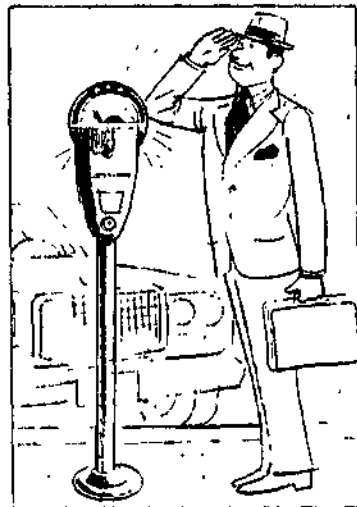

Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said the meters are in keeping with the town's Bicentennial observance which includes red, white and blue stripes for the police cars and the same colors on the water tower.

ACROSS THE nation, such diverse communities as New Orleans and Rapid City, S.D. — home of Reptile Gardens — have the meters, Elsner said.

"They're not garish at all. They're in good taste," Elsner said.

Duncan markets two versions to help celebrate the country's 200th birthday. One version is the complete meter "head," while the other is a replacement dome, such as Mount Prospect installed.

"They were just a few pennies more and we thought they were kind of nice," Eppley said of the decision to go for the Bicentennial meters rather than the standard gummel gray ones.

BECAUSE THE domes can be installed or removed in a matter of minutes with just the turn of a few screws, Elsner said some towns plan to use the colorful domes for future holidays after the Bicentennial.

For those citizens who really don't need a parking meter, Duncan sells lamps made from models municipalities have traded-in on newer ones.

The lamps, generally sold as specialty or novelty items, come with either a gold coat of paint or the red, white and blue version.

Elsner admits the gold version sells better because most people get a little tired of having a red, white and blue parking meter lamp.

To put some minds to rest, the American flag does not pop up when the time expires and Eppley said motorists do not have to stand at attention or salute when they put their nickel in the All-American meters.

A SNOW LINE unexpectedly moved through the Northwest suburbs Wednesday morning.

bringing four inches of new snow and traffic to a crawl as it drifted across highways.

Trudy and Judy ice skating again

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Trudy and Judy Casey, those petite twins on ice skates, can almost hear the applause again. They can feel the heat of show lights on their faces.

For seven years the identical twins from Wheeling never thought they'd skate together again. A promising career with the Shipstad and Johnson Ice Follies was cut short in 1969 when Trudy suffered an injury on the ice. That mishap put her in the hospital with a rare circulatory disease.

But now the sisters are about to sign a contract with the Spice on Ice Revue in Las Vegas and they could be performing with singer Bobby Vinton as well. Trudy and Judy plan to return from Las Vegas next month with a contract in hand and a comeback under way.

"WE HAVE BEEN praying for a miracle," Judy said. "We want so much to get back into the business. But we never dreamed that the offer would come so quickly."

Actually, it was just a matter of luck, the girls said.

Trudy, anxious to get the show on the road, wrote to several celebrities in an attempt to sell their comeback act. Singer Bobby Vinton was one of the celebrities who responded to her letter and invited Trudy to Las Vegas where he was performing.

CASEY IS ONLY the girls' stage name. Their real last name is Stryganek, "so, naturally, we have a Polish interest in it," Trudy said.

The girls will discuss performance possibilities with Vinton when he visits Chicago in March for several concerts.

A star spot in the ice revue and possible performances with Bobby Vinton would mean a return to the big time for the Casey twins, and a step toward regaining the glamorous life of show business they were forced to give up after Trudy's accident.

Since the accident Trudy has become a Chicago Fire Dept. paramedic and Judy is an instructor at the Glenview Ice Center. Both girls agree that things just haven't been the same.

LAST MONTH they announced their return to skating and have since received tentative offers from television producers and modeling agencies.

But the first thing they've had to do is practice their new routines on the ice.

"We're having so much fun getting it back together again with the music, the routines and costumes. We took new publicity shots the other day," Judy said.

The new effort is also a painful one for Trudy, who must learn, almost from start, how to gracefully move her injured legs again.

"This business is in our blood and we just can't give up. This is going to be just great. We can't wait to be out there again," Trudy said.

"It seems like we've waited too long already," she said.

NU's study of accidents due today

by GERRY KERN

Results of a study of Wheeling traffic accidents and their relation to law enforcement will be revealed today by the Northwestern University Traffic Institute.

Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher Wednesday said the study will be reviewed with departmental personnel at 10 a.m. at the police station, 255 W. Dundee Rd. Richard Stephens, an instructor at the institute, will interpret statistics.

The institute conducts studies of area police departments as a regular part of its program.

HORCHER SAID THE study was begun in November and details the volume of accidents in Wheeling and their causes. He said the study will show how increased enforcement of traffic laws can prevent accidents.

"I've been saying that policemen should work harder and the statistics could give some positive, scientific reasons for it," Horcher said.

Horcher has taken a hard line lately on the number of traffic tickets written by officers as a basis for judging their efficiency. He has been criticized for proposing to cut the salaries of officers "who aren't carrying their weight." The number of traffic tickets issued by officers in a given period of time is one yardstick of performance, Horcher has said.

"I don't know if any recommendations will be made by Stephens, but I hope so," said Horcher. "That would give us something to go on."

PAST TRAFFIC institute studies indicate policemen should write one ticket an hour. Horcher posted the results of those studies on the department bulletin board, touching off a controversy among police officers.

The police chief recommended denial of a normally automatic pay raise for Patrolman Frank Murphy in line with his new efficiency policy, charging the policeman had a "poor work record." The number of traffic tickets Murphy issued during the review period was called "a factor" in the decision.

Since then, Wheeling Policemen and the Combined Counties Police Assn. have met in response to Horcher's action. Horcher and police personnel plan to develop a new system of personnel evaluation as a result. Horcher is agreeable to overhauling the evaluation system because he said it is "too subjective" and places too much emphasis on appearance, promptness and attitude, rather than "hard facts and figures."

The police chief hopes results of the Northwestern study will give him the facts and figures he wants.

200 at meeting on incorporation

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A crowd of more than 200 Prospect Heights residents met Wednesday night to discuss the community's Jan. 31 incorporation referendum.

Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. officials, who have organized the incorporation vote, presented residents with facts on the costs of forming a city and answered questions at McArthur Junior High School, Schoenbeck and Palatine roads, Prospect Heights.

Many residents cast doubt on the association's proposed $538,685 budget for the new city and the sources of its anticipated $605,565 income the first year after incorporation.

"THE INCOME sources we expect, like personal property and motor fuel taxes, are what you already pay to the county," said

Beirut under storm as troops sweep foothills

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian forces stormed Beirut's Moslem suburbs Wednesday as two Palestinian army brigades from Syria cut across the country to the foothills of Mt. Lebanon.

The Palestinian armor and artillery columns, halted by the 10,000-foot-high mountain range, were ready to move toward the war-ravaged capital if last-ditch Syrian-mediated truce talks fail.

Christian forces launched a sweeping offensive Wednesday against the Moslem suburb of Naubeh in reprisal for the fall of two besieged Christian towns south of Beirut.

THE VOICE OF Lebanon, the pirate radio station of the right-wing Phalangist party, said Christian militias were uniting under one command to liberate "the entire Lebanese nation from its usurpers."

Pierce fighting raged across the capital and countryside as rival forces attacked and counterattacked in an apparent attempt to grab as much territory as possible before a new cease-fire.

Ford's $394.2 billion budget to Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday laid down a $394.2 billion budget carrying more money for defense and energy programs, a promise of new tax cuts for individuals and businesses, and a scaled-down social program emphasizing aid to the most needy.

Aside from military and energy spending, the emphasis was on reducing federal outlays for domestic needs by consolidation and reorganization of a variety of government programs.

Signing the budget before submitting it to Congress, where the ultimate decisions lie, the President said:

"This represents what we hope will be a very major turning point for the American people. But it does not hold out any promise that the federal government can or will solve every problem."

He said "it reflects on every page the common sense, the new realism" he invoked in his State of the Union speech Monday.

"We will give more money to those at or below the poverty line and cut off those above," Ford told reporters.

Having put his own stamp on the blueprint for fiscal 1977 (his previous budget was worked out largely under Richard Nixon), Ford dispatched top economic aides to Capitol Hill for daylong briefings of congressional leaders and committees to be involved with it.

Among those panels are the new Senate and House budget committees, created to sort out and ride herd on the complicated process of government spending. They could drastically alter the President's formula.

Predictably, most congressional Republicans praised the President while Democratic leaders attacked the effort to cut back on domestic programs.

However, Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and a major force in the budget's move through Congress, urged fellow Democrats not to push for budget increases in view of the "shockingly high" national debt.

Mahon acknowledged that there will be pressures to chop the proposed $3.3 billion increase in defense spending, and that "Congress may very probably fail to adopt" the President's plan for overhauling and reducing domestic programs.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill raised the issue of politics, saying:

"The President's budget priorities are 100 per cent wrong. Its full impact in slowing the economy would be felt in 1977, not in this election year. We have to worry about the future, not just about the election."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said it is "in the interest of the

Lake College annex hearing next month

A public hearing on the proposed annexation of High School Dist. 125 to the College of Lake County will be held Feb. 18 before the Illinois Community College Board.

The hearing was requested by residents in a petition to the state board earlier this month. Several residents of Lake County Buffalo Grove, which is the southern portion of Dist. 125, have opposed annexation to the College of Lake County in Grayslake, saying they prefer to join Harper College because it is closer.

Harper, in Palatine, plans to build a second campus in northern Arlington Heights.

The Dist. 125 board voted to join the College of Lake County last November. The district is not now a part of any community college district.

Annexation to a community college has several advantages for Dist. 125. Students would have less difficulty enrolling in a community college course if they reside in a college district. Dist. 125 would save thousands of dollars by annexing to a college because it would no longer have to pay out-of-district tuition for residents who wish to attend a community college.

Dist. 125 Supt. Harold Baner said the district may have to dip into education fund to pay the tuition by the middle of next year, which may curtail some of the district's regular high school programs. Until this year the district could levy a special tax for tuition, but the state has eliminated the special tax provision.

The state college board has scheduled a public hearing on the annexation for Feb. 18 at 7:30 p.m. at Stevenson High School, Ill. Rte. 22, Prairie View. The state board will provide a hearing officer to listen to testimony for and against annexation.

Grammar course at Stevenson

Juniors and seniors at Stevenson High School will be offered a new course in grammar during the second semester.

The board adopted the course after a recommendation by its education committee Monday. The elective course, especially designed for college-bound students, will cover grammar, usage, spelling, vocabulary and sentence composition.

Board duties topic of meeting

Board of education members and prospective board members in the High School Dist. 125 area are being invited to attend a special meeting on duties and responsibilities of board members at Stevenson High School next month.

The workshop will be conducted by representatives of the Illinois School Board Assn. and is open to all persons in the area, including those from local elementary schools.

The workshop will begin at 8 p.m. Feb. 4 at the high school, Ill. Rte. 22, Prairie View.

County agrees, Whipple garages violate codes

County officials have confirmed that attached, permanent garages in the Whipple Tree Village mobile home park are in violation of safety and building codes.

Wheeling Village Atty John Burke said Wednesday that Cook County Health Dept. officials, who have inspected the trailer park, pointed out the violations. Village officials plan to meet with residents of the trailer park, 525 N. McHenry Rd., Monday to try to resolve problems there.

"The county people, who are aware of the situation, said there must be a 10-foot space between the trailer and an enclosed garage," said Burke. "Enclosed garages are permitted only if they are detached, temporary and made of fire-resistant materials."

WHEELING OFFICIALS estimate there are as many as 50 garages which do not meet fire and other safety standards. Residents could be required to dismantle the garages or pay higher property taxes because the attached garages make the mobile homes "permanent" dwellings.

Burke said residents of the mobile home park who have canopies instead of enclosed garages are not in violation of the law.

Village officials are reluctant to order the removal of the garages because residents there believed they were acting within the law and past village administrations did nothing about the violations.

Wheeling Trustee Gilbert Monoson said residents of the mobile home park are "caught between the devil and the dark blue sea" because they didn't realize the garages put them into a higher tax bracket. He said village officials are trying to find a way out of the dilemma.

THE VIOLATIONS were discovered last fall when Building Comr. William Repholz visited Whipple Tree Village. He ordered four garages under construction at that time dismantled because they constituted fire and other safety hazards.

Ironically, the first stop work order Repholz issued was to Repholz' predecessor in the building commissioner post.

Village officials will meet with residents at 7 p.m. Monday at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Teacher pact talks begin in Dist. 214

Contract negotiations with teachers are under way in High School Dist. 214.

Negotiators for teachers and the board of education have met twice this month, and each side has submitted proposals, said Randall Knudsen, president of the Dist. 204 teachers union.

Both sides have agreed to a news blackout on negotiations, and information about the progress of talks is being released by mutual agreement.

Teachers are in the third year of a three-year contract which expires in August. The base salary is now $10,140, and beginning teachers earn 97 per cent of the base, or $9,836, until they are placed on tenure.

Instrumentalists are Denise Lee, piano; John Katsiroubas, drums; Tony LaSpina, lead guitar; and John Ambrose, base guitar.

Rita Kathrein, Wheeling High School student, was elected queen of High School Dist. 214's military ball held recently at Buffalo Grove High School. Other members of the court were Sue Albrecht, Buffalo Grove; Chris Dieball, Wheeling; Becky Linville, Hersey; Jean Tubbs, Wheeling; and Donna Wyeth, Buffalo Grove.

About 175 cadets, guests, parents, administrators, and student government leaders from the three schools having Naval Junior ROTC programs attended the ball with music provided by the Mariners, Navy dance band from Great Lakes Naval Training Center. The New Dawns, a pop music ensemble group from Wheeling High School, also performed.

General chairman of the dance was Cadet Lt. Comdr. John Maguire, senior officer at Wheeling High School and of the Dist. 214 unit. Others involved in the preparations were Cadet Chief Petty Officer Beck Linville, Hersey student; Cadet Ensign Tammie Wisdom and Cadet Chris Dieball, both Wheeling students.

A SNOW LINE unexpectedly moved through the Northwest suburbs Wednesday morning bringing four inches of new snow and traffic to a crawl as it drifted across highways.

Traffic on Ill. Rte. 53 was no exception.

Dist. 21 revenue dips; bleak finance report due

A "bleak" financial forecast, which may result in spending cutbacks for 1976-77, will be presented to board members in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 today, said Supt. Kenneth Gill.

Gill declined to release figures before the board meeting set for 8:15 p.m., but said administration studies show the district's revenue will be "substantially less" next school year.

"With (Gov. Daniel) Walker's veto this year, we're not getting near the money we expected," Gill said Wednesday, referring to the governor's veto on full state funding this fall. Gill said Dist. 21 lost $280,000 in expected state aid from the veto.

"With our enrollment leveling off or dropping back a bit, we'll experience a dropoff in state aid," Gill said.

"We're already committed to up to 10 per cent salary increases for teachers," Gill said, referring to the second year of the teachers' two-year contract.

THE CONTRACT calls for cost of living raises next year amounting to 1 per cent for every 1 per cent increase in the cost of living up to 3 per cent. Past that point, contract grants .5 per cent salary increases for every 1 per cent increase in the cost of living up to 6.5 per cent.

"We're going to have less income, and obligations for staff salaries are greater than last year," Gill said. "We're going to have cutbacks in the district, there's no question about that," he said, though refusing to indicate from where the cuts might come. Those decisions will be made by administration, staff and board members together, he said.

In other action, the district's focus on basics committee will report to the board after nearly a year of study. The 44 teachers, parents and administrators serving on the committee have drawn up a list of recommendations to carry out the district's theme for 1975-76, focus on basics. The theme emphasizes making students competent in the basic areas of reading, writing and arithmetic, and also on giving them basic self-esteem and self-motivation.

The board will meet at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Richard Wolf, PHIA president. Wolf assured residents there would be no increase in current taxes and that the city could operate with funds from federal revenue sharing, motor fuel taxes and municipal license fees without levying a municipal property tax.

"We already have park, sanitary, school and fire districts established. They tax for services that are adequate for this community," Wolf said.

"The city will not have any effect on these autonomous districts and their boundaries will not be changed after incorporation," he said in answer to other residents' questions.

STATE REP. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, briefly spoke during the meeting, endorsing the incorporation effort.

"You've got nothing to lose and everything to gain. Immediately you'll pick up a large amount of the tax money that now goes to the county. But you will have a direct voice in how that money is spent when it comes back to your city," he said.

Some residents questioned the reality of the association's tentative budget.

"The proposed budget seems small because it does not include the cost to support services that are provided by our neighboring municipalities, which have several million dollar budgets," Wolf said. "The cost for these services are not included in our budget, but in the budgets of our independent taxing districts for the library, park, and fire."

PHIA officials said Prospect Heights can "no longer remain unincorporated" because of pressures from the county and piecemeal annexation by adjacent municipalities.

Residents will be insured control over zoning and taxes and will receive improved police protection if they vote to incorporate Jan. 31, officials said.

It will take a majority of the people voting to approve the incorporation, which would become effective Feb. 1.

Teacher wants more sun out of life

by PAM BIGFORD

George Swanson would like to see the sun shine until 9:30 at night.

Swanson thinks the country would be better off economically and socially if the sun rose later and set later. And he intends to do something about it.

Swanson, an earth science teacher at Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, has formulated a new daylight-savings plan which would keep the sun shining until about 9:30 p.m. in the peak of the summer, almost an hour later than usual.

THE DAYLIGHT-savings plan which has been in effect the past two years has provided an additional hour of daylight in the evening from March through October.

Swanson's plan calls for yet another hour of daylight from May through August. Instead of the sun setting at about 8:30 p.m. in July, it would not set until 9:30 p.m.

Swanson said that not only would most people enjoy an extra hour of daylight on summer evenings, but it would save money in energy use.

Electrical utility officials estimated a savings of nearly 1 per cent a month took place in 1974 when the present eight-month daylight-savings plan took effect, Swanson said. He predicts that under his proposal, annual electrical production would be reduced another 6 per cent, a savings of 18 million barrels of oil a year.

SWANSON SAID that government studies have shown that traffic accidents and crime were also reduced in 1974 and 1975 during extended daylight hours.

Two possible disadvantages of the plan are foreseen by Swanson. One is that clocks would have to be changed four times a year instead of twice, which may be confusing.

Another is that the current time zones across the U.S. would have to be revised so that some areas would not experience mid-morning darkness. Swanson said he believes present time zones are generally overextended to the West.

The idea for the daylight-extending plan began hatching in Swanson's mind when he realized how few people were able to take advantage of the extra daylight hours in the summer.

SWANSON IS promoting his plan by sending it to local congressmen. U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Illinois, who is on a Senate committee studying the advantages gained in 1974 and 1975 by extending the daylight savings time into March and April, has shown the most interest in the plan, Swanson said.

Swanson hopes his proposal will receive even more publicity Friday night when he appears on "Grafitti," a WLS-TV program hosted by weatherman John Coleman. The one-hour program begins at 11:40 p.m. and Swanson is scheduled to appear during the latter half.

Swanson, who has been teaching various sciences for the past 10 years, said people have been proposing daylight-savings plans ever since Benjamin Franklin came up with the first one.

Swanson doesn't think anybody has gotten it right yet. But he's out to prove that, when it comes to sunshine, he's at least one step ahead of Ben Franklin.

Anybody got the right time?

Nongraded classes help depressed students learn

Noncompetitive, nongraded instruction at Elk Grove High School is helping depressed students learn, says a school psychologist.

Between 200 and 300 students who are depressed because they are unsuccessful in the classroom are participating in a program of individualized education that emphasizes personal goals and progress rather than class rank.

Dick Bell, Elk Grove High School psychologist, said the young men and women in individualized instruction are not low-ability students. "Some students can do the work but won't," he explained.

FOR THESE students the realization of success in individual instruction can make the difference between completing their education and dropping out, he said.

"Today, the student who gets a C sees himself as a failure. Only students with A's and B's think of themselves as successes," Bell told a group of social service professionals during a meeting Tuesday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Some students in the Elk Grove High School program sign a mock contract spelling out their educational goals, quality of work and the grade they can receive. The contract "allows the student to monitor his own progress. The student takes responsibility for his own learning," Bell said.

Other students in the program, particularly those who are discipline problems, earn tokens for good behavior. The tokens are exchangeable for free time during which students are allowed to talk or play games.

Individualized instruction is frequently just one aspect of a student's curriculum at Elk Grove High School, and not all students need the special attention. But Bell said the philosophy of the program can be extended throughout the school.

"I want to emphasize noncompetitive education, and would like to see the grading system end. We have too many failures in the school system today," he said.

Trudy and Judy, skating twins, start comeback

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Trudy and Judy Casey, those petite twins on ice skates, can almost hear the applause again. They can feel the heat of show lights on their faces.

For seven years the identical twins from Wheeling never thought they'd skate together again. A promising career with the Shipstad and Johnson Ice Follies was cut short in 1969 when Trudy suffered an injury on the ice. That mishap put her in the hospital with a rare circulatory disease.

But now the sisters are about to sign a contract with the Spice on Ice Revue in Las Vegas and they could be performing with singer Bobby Vinton as well. Trudy and Judy plan to return from Las Vegas next month with a contract in hand and a comeback under way.

"WE HAVE BEEN praying for a miracle," Judy said. "We want so much to get back into the business. But we never dreamed that the offer would come so quickly."

Actually, it was just a matter of luck, the girls said.

Trudy, anxious to get the show on the road, wrote to several celebrities in an attempt to sell their comeback act. Singer Bobby Vinton was one of the celebrities who responded to her letter and invited Trudy to Las Vegas where he was performing.

CASEY IS ONLY the girls' stage name. Their real last name is Strygank, "so, naturally, we have a Polish interest in it," Trudy said.

The girls will discuss performance possibilities with Vinton when he visits Chicago in March for several concerts.

A star spot in the ice revue and possible performances with Bobby Vinton would mean a return to the big time for the Casey twins, and a step toward regaining the glamorous life of show business they were forced to give up after Trudy's accident.

Since the accident Trudy has become a Chicago Fire Dept. paramedic and Judy is an instructor at the Glenview Ice Center. Both girls agree that things just haven't been the same.

LAST MONTH they announced their return to skating and have since received tentative offers from television producers and modeling agencies.

But the first thing they've had to do is practice their new routines on the ice.

"We're having so much fun getting it back together again with the music, the routines and costumes. We took new publicity shots the other day," Judy said.

But the new effort is also a painful one for Trudy, who must learn, almost from start, how to gracefully move her injured legs again.

"This business is in our blood and we just can't give up. This is going to be just great. We can't wait to be out there again," Trudy said.

"It seems like we've waited too long already," she said.

Single-family units up

Construction slips despite permit hike

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

The number of construction permits issued in Buffalo Grove last year was up from past years, but general village development is below projections.

Figures released this month by Village Mgr. Daniel Larson, show single-family home construction has increased from 141 permits in 1974 to 153 in 1975. Condominium and apartment construction, however, increased slightly with only Oak Creek Condominiums receiving permits in 1975. There were no multi-family unit permits issued in 1974.

The biggest jump in permits was a more than 220 per cent increase over last year in single family alterations — room additions, fireplaces and other improvements.

Larson said the increase from 47 improvement permits in 1974 to 152 this year was an indication many residents are adding a bedroom or family room rather than investing money in a new home.

FOR THOSE moving into a new home, single family units are by far outpacing condominiums, Larson said.

Only one permit was issued in 1975 for multiple family construction, with none issued the past two years. Larson said people are moving into single family homes because they "want the privacy a single family home offers. They are delaying purchasing a condominium until the children leave home."

A combination of spiraling construction costs, inability to get good financing and a growing awareness of energy conservation, prompting some people to live closer to Chicago, have combined to keep new construction down, Larson said.

Budget projections for the fiscal year ending April 30 indicate a revenue of $140,000 from construction permit fees, but revised estimates are $95,000, Larson said.

"Several large projects such as Chesterfield, Phoenix, Williamsburg on the Lake, and Hawthorne were approved for construction several years ago but have not started to build yet," Larson said. "Buffalo Grove has been one of the best areas to build in, but our situation is nothing to brag about."

Budget, grid league topic of meeting

The Buffalo Grove Boys' Football program's budget and proposed entry into the Northern Illinois Junior Football League will be discussed Friday night.

The organization will meet at 8 p.m. in the Emmerich Park building, 150 Raupp Blvd. The meeting is open to the public.

Planners delay move on restaurant

Buffalo Grove plan commissioners Wednesday night delayed action on a proposed restaurant with one member questioning whether it would turn Dundee Road into "franchise row."

Comr. Howard Mendenhall said if the proposed Poppin' Fresh Restaurant was constructed on part of a three-acre site at Elletts Drive and Dundee Road, "all we can do with the rest of the land is build another restaurant just like it. Frankly, we don't want a franchise row."

Other plan commissioners questioned the advisability of breaking up the property into two sections and whether there were too many restaurants already located on Dundee Road.

James Herbst, developer of the proposed restaurant, is seeking annexation to the village of a 150-foot by 300-foot piece of land that is part of the three-acre tract owned by the Bank of Buffalo Grove.

BANK PRES. George Miller said the bank had turned down "a lot of" franchise restaurants before making the agreement with Poppin' Fresh.

He said it was financially unfeasible to construct an office building on the site, but added there were "numerous" stores other than restaurants that could be built on the second section of land.

The proposed restaurant would serve soups, salads, sandwiches and pies. Total cost of the structure is estimated to be $325,000.

The plan commission will consider the proposal Feb. 4.

Beirut under storm as troops sweep foothills

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian forces stormed Beirut's Moslem suburbs Wednesday as two Palestinian army brigades from Syria cut across the country to the foothills of Mt. Lebanon.

The Palestinian armor and artillery columns, halted by the 10,000-foot-high mountain range, were ready to move toward the war-ravaged capital if last-ditch Syrian-mediated truce talks fail.

Christian forces launched a sweeping offensive Wednesday against the Moslem suburb of Naabeh in reprisal for the fall of two besieged Christian towns south of Beirut.

THE VOICE OF Lebanon, the pirate

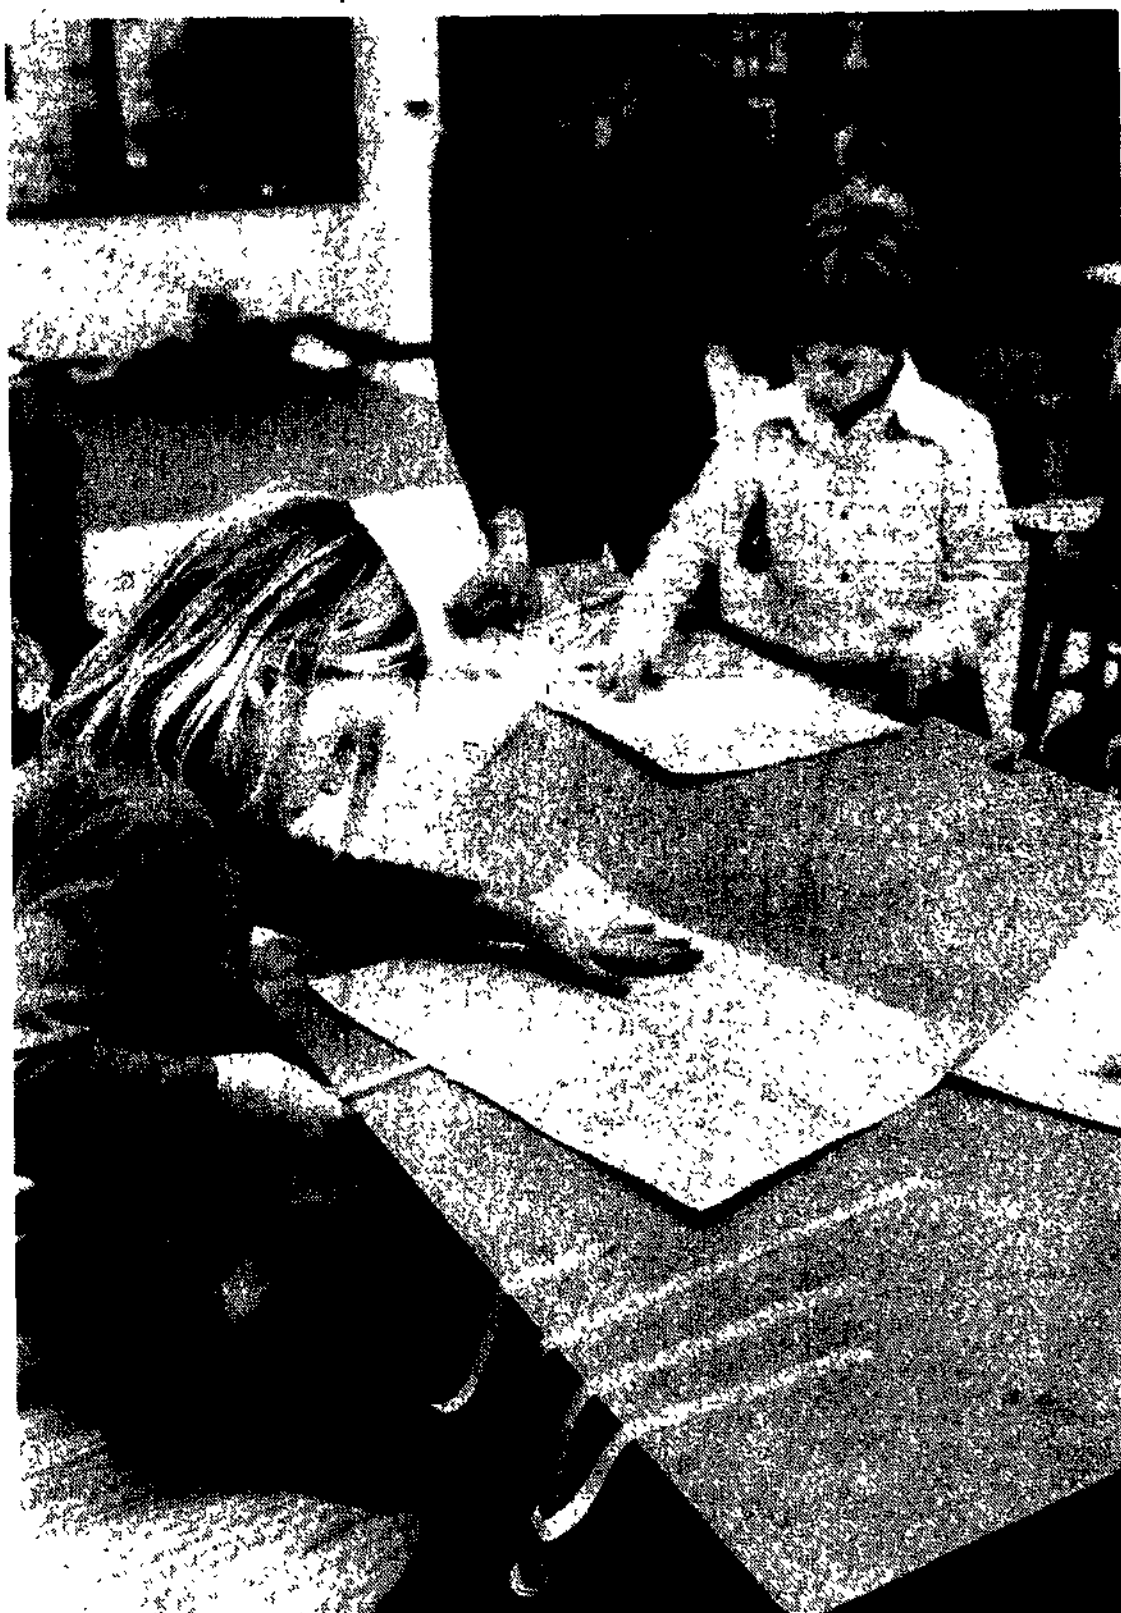

radio station of the right-wing Phalangist party, said Christian militias were uniting under one command to liberate "the entire Lebanese nation from its usurpers."

Fierce fighting raged across the capital and countryside as rival forces attacked and counterattacked in an apparent attempt to grab as much territory as possible before a new cease-fire.

Police estimated more than 200 persons were killed and 430 injured in a climactic 48 hours. The toll in nine months of war rose to nearly 9,600 dead and 20,100 wounded.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday laid down a $394.2 billion budget carrying more money for defense and energy programs, a promise of new tax cuts for individuals and businesses, and a scaled-down social program emphasizing aid to the most needy.

Aside from military and energy spending, the emphasis was on reducing federal outlays for domestic needs by consolidation and reorganization of a variety of government programs. Signing the budget before submitting it to Congress, where the ultimate decisions lie, the President said:

"This represents what we hope will be a very major turning point for the American people. But it does not hold out any promise that the federal government can or will solve every problem."

He said "it reflects on every page the common sense, the new realism" he invoked in his State of the Union speech Monday.

"We will give more money to those at or below the poverty line and cut off those above," Ford told reporters.

Having put his own stamp on the blueprint for fiscal 1977 (his previous budget was worked out largely under Richard Nixon), Ford dispatched top economic aides to Capitol Hill for daylong briefings of congressional leaders and committees to be involved with it.

Among those panels are the new Senate and House budget committees, created to sort out and ride herd on the complicated process of government spending. They could drastically alter the President's formula.

Predictably, most congressional Republicans praised the President while

Democratic leaders attacked the effort to cut back on domestic programs.

However, Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and a major force in the budget's move through Congress, urged fellow Democrats not to push for budget increases in view of the "shockingly high" national debt.

Mahon acknowledged that there will be pressures to chip the proposed $8.3 billion increase in defense spending, and that "Congress may very probably fail to adopt" the President's plan for overhauling and reducing domestic programs.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill raised the issue of politics, saying:

"The President's budget priorities are 100 per cent wrong. Its full impact in slowing the economy would be felt in 1977, not in this election year. We have to worry about the future, not just about the election."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said it is "in the interest of the (Continued on Page 3)

Village board wrapup

Housing plan vetoed for 2nd year in row

For the second consecutive year, Buffalo Grove officials have declined to participate in the U.S. Housing and Community Development program.

The board approved a resolution excluding Buffalo Grove's population from Lake and Cook counties. Under provisions of the act passed in 1974, Lake and Cook counties must each represent a population of at least 200,000 to be eligible for the federal funds available under the act. The counties must also submit a housing-assistance plan to qualify for the funds.

Village Pres. Edward Fabish said the board voted against joining the program because the move would mean a "loss of local control." Only municipalities with a population of 50,000 or more can apply for the federal funds on their own.

"If we joined this program we would be committing ourselves to funding over which we would have no control," Fabish said.

Fabish added that a village study is being prepared on the feasibility of low-cost housing in Buffalo Grove.

Payroll account opened at bank

The board has approved establishing a payroll account at the Buffalo Grove National Bank, 1300 W. Dundee Rd.

The village divides its accounts between the Buffalo Grove National Bank and the Bank of Buffalo Grove, 10 E. Dundee Rd.

Ice cream vendors' hours cut

The board formally approved two traffic ordinance amendments affecting unattended vehicles and ice cream trucks.

Residents are required to stop the engine, remove the ignition key and set the parking brake before leaving a vehicle. When an unattended vehicle is an obstruction to traffic, the vehicle will be moved to the nearest garage or place of safety, with the owner paying the cost.

The board also limited hours to from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. during which ice cream trucks can ring bells or use amplified music on residential streets.

County-RTA problem solving meeting urged

Lake County Board Chairman John Balen and Greater Lake County Mass Transit District Chairman Eleanor Wolf Jr. have called for another meeting with the Regional Transportation Authority to iron out problems.

In a letter to RTA chairman Milton Pikarsky, Balen and Mrs. Wolf say they have not been contacted on several RTA programs affecting Lake County. These include a senior citizens half-fare program, a visit from Pikarsky to Zion and RTA staff visits to Mundelein and Gurnee.

The letter also criticizes the appointment of Keith Ryan, formerly employed by a Waukegan radio station, as the RTA Lake County regional affairs officer.

"It appears that all the input we will have for Lake County will be by the appointment of an individual who to the best of our knowledge has no transportation experience," the letter says.

A transportation study done by the Lake County Regional Planning Commission at a cost of $132,000 possibly is being ignored when the RTA makes decisions affecting Lake County the letter says.

Balen and Mrs. Wolf requested notification of discussions concerning Lake County so they could "sit in and listen and also assure ourselves that the discussions and commitments are compatible with the transportation study."

The letter said that Lake County officials could oppose efforts to levy a gasoline tax to support the RTA if the RTA does not become more responsive to the suburban areas.

"We feel that a meeting is necessary to educate the staff that the people in the Greater Lake County Mass Transit District and the other suburban counties are a major part of the RTA and not just boondockers who can be taken for granted and will accept whatever few crumbs are left after the cake has been devoured by the CTA," the letter said.

A similar meeting of suburban counties and transportation districts held last fall at Mrs. Wolf's request failed to unite the suburban areas.

a dropoff in state aid," Gill said.

"We're already committed to up to 10 per cent salary increases for teachers," Gill said, referring to the second year of the teachers' two-year contract.

THE CONTRACT calls for cost of living raises next year amounting to 1 per cent for every 1 per cent increase in the cost of living up to 3 per cent. Past that point, contract grants .5 per cent salary increases for every 1 per cent increase in the cost of living up to 6.5 per cent.

"We're going to have less income, and obligations for staff salaries are greater than last year," Gill said. "We're going to have cutbacks in the district, there's no question about that," he said, though refusing to indicate from where the cuts might come. Those decisions will be made by administration, staff and board members together, he said.

In other action, the district's focus on basics committee will report to the board after nearly a year of study. The 44 teachers, parents and administrators serving on the committee have drawn up a list of recommendations to carry out the district's theme for 1975-76, focus on basics. The theme

Teacher pact talks begin in Dist. 214

Contract negotiations with teachers are under way in High School Dist. 214.

Negotiators for teachers and the board of education have met twice this month, and each side has submitted proposals, said Randall Knudsen, president of the Dist. 264 teachers union.

Both sides have agreed to a news blackout on negotiations, and information about the progress of talks is being released by mutual agreement.

Teachers are in the third year of a three-year contract which expires in August. The base salary is now $10,140, and beginning teachers earn 97 per cent of the base, or $9,836, until they are placed on tenure.

emphasizes making students competent in the basic areas of reading, writing and arithmetic, and also on giving them basic self-esteem and self-motivation.

The board will meet at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Wheeling traffic study due today

by GERRY KERN

Results of a study of Wheeling traffic accidents and their relation to law enforcement will be revealed today by the Northwestern University Traffic Institute.

Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher Wednesday said the study will be reviewed with departmental personnel at 10 a.m. at the police station, 255 W. Dundee Rd. Richard Stephens, an instructor at the institute, will interpret statistics.

The institute conducts studies of area police departments as a regular part of its program.

HORCHER SAID THE study was begun in November and details the volume of accidents in Wheeling and their causes. He said the study will show how increased enforcement of traffic laws can prevent accidents.

"I've been saying that policemen should work harder and the statistics could give some positive, scientific reasons for it," Horcher said.

Horchner has taken a hard line lately on the number of traffic tickets written by officers as a basis for judging their efficiency. He has been criticized for proposing to cut the salaries of officers "who aren't carrying their weight." The number of traffic tickets issued by officers in a given period of time is one yardstick of performance, Horcher has said.

"I don't know if any recommendations will be made by Stephens, but I hope so," said Horcher. "That would give us something to go on."

FAST TRAFFIC Institute studies indicate policemen should write one ticket an hour. Horcher posted the results of those studies on the department bulletin board, touching off a controversy among police officers.

The police chief recommended denial of a normally automatic pay raise for Patrolman Frank Murphy in line with his new efficiency policy, charging the policeman had a "poor work record." The number of traffic tickets Murphy issued during the review period was called "a factor" in the decision.

Since then, Wheeling Policemen and the Combined Counties Police Assn. have met in response to Horcher's action. Horcher and police personnel plan to develop a new system of personnel evaluation as a result. Horcher is agreeable to overhauling the evaluation system because he said it is "too subjective" and places too much emphasis on appearance, promptness and attitude, rather than "hard facts and figures."

The police chief hopes results of the Northwestern study will give him the facts and figures he wants.

Dist. 125 wrapup

Lake College annex hearing next month

A public hearing on the proposed annexation of High School Dist. 125 to the College of Lake County will be held Feb. 18 before the Illinois Community College Board.

The hearing was requested by residents in a petition to the state board earlier this month. Several residents of Lake County Buffalo Grove, which is the southern portion of Dist. 125, have opposed annexation to the College of Lake County in Grayslake, saying they prefer to join Harper College because it is closer.

Harper, in Palatine, plans to build a second campus in northern Arlington Heights.

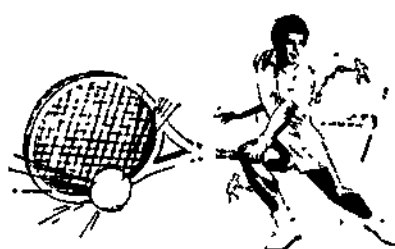

The Dist. 125 board voted to join the College of Lake County last November. The district is not now a part of any community college district.

Annexation to a community college has several advantages for Dist. 125. Students would have less difficulty enrolling in a community college course if they reside in a college district. Dist. 125 would save thousands of dollars by annexing to a college because it would no longer have to pay out-of-district tuition for residents who wish to attend a community college.

Dist. 125 Supt. Harold Banser said the district may have to dip into education fund to pay the tuition by the middle of next year, which may curtail some of the district's regular high school programs. Until this year the district could levy a special tax for tuition, but the state has eliminated the special tax provision.

The state college board has scheduled a public hearing on the annexation for Feb. 18 at 7:30 p.m. at Stevenson High School, Ill. Rte. 22, Prairie View. The state board will provide a hearing officer to listen to testimony for and against annexation.

Health plan opposed by two trustees

A proposed Elk Grove health screening program for village residents is being opposed by several trustees who believe the program might cause legal problems.

The board of health has asked the health department to begin blood pressure, diabetes, hearing and pap smear screenings for early disease detection. It tentatively plans one of each of the screenings this year, beginning with the blood pressure testing in June.

But Trustees Ronald Chernick and Michael A. Tosto said they are reluctant to support the programs because of legal problems that could arise.

"I think people have to go to doctors," Chernick said, adding he did not think it was the board's job to act as a "catchall." He said he was afraid people would go to the screening, pass and come out with "a false sense of security."

PATRICIA BOURKE, of the board of health, told trustees that screenings for blood pressure and diabetes problems among senior citizens last year show the value of the programs.

"Most screenings yield only a few persons with problems but it is well worth it," she said, adding that one of the senior screenings found only one person with a blood problem out of more than 70 tested.

Nancy Yiannias, health coordinator, said, "None of the screenings are diagnostic." A person is told whether they fall within the generally acceptable range and if they do not, they are urged to see a doctor, she said.

Chernick said, however, he doubted that everyone who attended a screening would understand that. He added some persons might put off seeing their doctor because they passed a screening.

He also questioned whether the village would be liable if a screening test had been misread.

TOSTO'S ARGUMENTS against the village's involvement in health screening programs were similar to Chernick's. Both Chernick and Tosto joined Trustees Edward W. Kenna Jr. and Theodore J. Staddler last week in voting against a request that the village paramedics provide free blood pressure testing at the village fire stations.

Alan Antonik, board of health member, said most of the proposed $4,200 costs of the testing would be for promotion. "There are ways to get the testing free," he said. Volunteers also are used to administer the tests.

The proposed testing program will be submitted soon as part of the health department's budget request and the village board will consider the program during its budget deliberations.

The four health areas chosen for screening programs were selected on the results of last year's mini-screenings and the family interview surveys conducted last fall. In the survey, the largest number of respondents said they would participate in blood pressure screening. Screening for cholesterol, hearing, diabetes, glaucoma, vision, and tuberculosis also were requested by respondents.

Beirut under storm as troops sweep foothills

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian forces stormed Beirut's Moslem suburbs Wednesday as two Palestinian army brigades from Syria cut across the country to the foothills of Mt. Lebanon.

The Palestinian armor and artillery columns, halted by the 10,000-foot-high mountain range, were ready to move toward the war-ravaged capital if last-ditch Syrian-mediated truce talks fail.

Christian forces launched a sweeping offensive Wednesday against the Moslem suburb of Naabeh in reprisal for the fall of two besieged Christian towns south of Beirut.

THE VOICE OF Lebanon, the pirate radio station of the right-wing Phalangist party, said Christian militias were uniting under one command to liberate "the entire Lebanese nation from its usurpers."

Fierce fighting raged across the capital and countryside as rival forces attacked and counterattacked in an apparent attempt to grab as much territory as possible before a new cease-fire.

Police estimated more than 200 persons were killed and 430 injured in a climactic 48 hours. The toll in nine months of war rose to nearly 9,000 dead and 20,100 wounded.

Full-time sanitarian urged

Village health priorities detailed

by TOM VON MALDER

Elk Grove Village must hire a full-time sanitarian if a comprehensive list of health goals are to be reached, according to the board of health.

Currently the sanitarian is only hired on a part-time basis at an annual cost of $5,500. A full-time salary would increase to about $14,000.

The board of health in a report to village officials said the additional hours from the sanitarian are needed to help enforce public health ordinances. The proposal will be submitted soon as part of the health department's budget request for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

THE BOARD OF health has developed its list of priority programs based on the 1972 comprehensive health survey and last year's family interview surveys.

Among the list of top priority items are passage of stricter animal and nuisance ordinances, continuation of support of the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District's efforts within the village and continued enforcement of the stagnant water ordinance.

In the areas of personal health, the top priorities are completion of the third section of the family interview surveys, continuation of the Community Blood Program, a mini-survey on senior citizen health needs, disease detection screening programs and continued correspondence with state and regional health planning agencies and their activities.

Top priorities in the educational area are development of an adult health program covering such areas as diabetes, hypertension and nutrition; encouragement of participation in voluntary agencies' educational programs on specific diseases; and development of other educational programs, such as animal control, accidental injuries, hospital emergency room use, drugs and alcohol, cancer detection, first aid, garbage and litter, and the Community Blood Program.

MIDDLE-RANGE goals include regular inspections of beauty shops if state laws will permit such inspections; and microwave oven inspections for residents who request them.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday laid down a $394.2 billion budget carrying more money for defense and energy programs, a promise of new tax cuts for individuals and businesses, and a scaled-down social program emphasizing aid to the most needy.

Aside from military and energy spending, the emphasis was on reducing federal outlays for domestic needs by consolidation and reorganization of a variety of government programs.

Signing the budget before submitting it to Congress, where the ultimate decisions lie, the President said:

"This represents what we hope will be a very major turning point for the American people. But it does not hold out any promise that the federal government can or will solve every problem."

He said "it reflects on every page the common sense, the new realism" he invoked in his State of the Union speech Monday.

"We will give more money to those at or below the poverty line and cut off those above," Ford told reporters. Having put his own stamp on the blueprint for fiscal 1977 (his previous budget was worked out largely under Richard Nixon), Ford dispatched top economic aides to Capitol Hill for daylong briefings of congressional leaders and committees to be involved with it.

Among those panels are the new Senate and House budget committees, created to sort out and ride herd on the complicated process of government spending. They could drastically alter the President's formula.

Predictably, most congressional Republicans praised the President while

Democratic leaders attacked the effort to cut back on domestic programs.

However, Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and a major force in the budget's move through Congress, urged fellow Democrats not to push for budget increases in view of the "shockingly high" national debt.

Mahon acknowledged that there will be pressures to chop the proposed $8.3 billion increase in defense spending, and that "Congress may very probably fail to adopt" the President's plan for overhauling and reducing domestic programs.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill raised the issue of politics, saying:

"The President's budget priorities are 100 per cent wrong. Its full impact in slowing the economy would be felt in 1977, not in this election year. We have to worry about the future, not just about the election."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said it is "in the interest of the

'Polluter' firms vow cooperation

Sewer oil level cleanup predicted

An Elk Grove Township official said Tuesday she believes the dumping of dangerous grease and oil levels into the Oakton Industrial Park sanitary sewer system by six firms will be corrected by March.

"Most of the six firms have to just plain change their housekeeping routine," said Nita A. Stamm, township environmental officer. She said better handling of the potentially dangerous grease and oil should prevent their entering the sewer system.

Mrs. Stamm and township officials met Monday and Tuesday with five of the six firms, which are accused of dumping the grease and oil. Representatives from DeBruyne Enterprises, 2420 E. Oakton St., did not attend.

THE OTHER firms, which the township named as polluters after testing the sewer system are: Cumberland Servicer, 2375 Oakton St.; Donlon Engineering Co., 125 Elizabeth Dr.; Nolden Steel Fabricators Inc., 105 Weiler Rd.; Ronnie Kaplan Engineering Co., 115 Elizabeth Dr.; and National Industrial Trucking, 2225 E. Oakton St.

"Everybody was more than willing to be cooperative," Mrs. Stamm said. "We're going to test again the first part of March. I really don't anticipate any more problems come March."

Two of the firms recently were re-tested. National Industrial Trucking was found to have improved substantially, Mrs. Stamm said. The other, Donlon Engineering Co., remained high in pollutants, she said.

She said the firm that tested the highest on the grease and oil levels is working the hardest to correct the problem.

"CUMBERLAND (Servicer) who was the high violator, has hired an outside consultant to test its whole system," Mrs. Stamm said.

The township's testing program was part of an effort to prevent costly sewer system pump maintenance and a recurrence of an accident last year in which an employee of a sewer inspection firm was severely injured in a sewer explosion.

The township last August passed an ordinance authorizing fines up to $100 a day for sewer polluters. It also can bring legal action against polluters and curtail sewer services.

Data sought on security alarm units

The Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce is polling its members on use of security alarm systems.

The questionnaire is designed to help set up the agenda for a March 4 seminar on plant security. Association officials said they hope the seminar will help alleviate the problem of high false burglary alarm rates within the village.

The firms are being asked what type, if any, security system they are using and if they feel the police department is providing adequate protection. They also are asked whether they would be willing to pay $3 a month to add more nighttime police protection.

E. Stanley Klyber, association executive vice-president, said the seminar agenda would be decided by the desires of the association membership but added he felt sure the false alarm problem would come up.

"WE WOULD certainly hope so," he said, when asked if the seminar might help reduce the number of false alarms. "It is mostly mechanical and human error" that causes the false alarms, he said.

The police department responded to 3,162 false calls from burglary alarm systems during 1974 and 3,369 false burglary calls last year.

Since August, the village board has considered an ordinance calling for fines or fees based on the number of false alarms from any one location.

The current version of the proposed ordinance calls for no additional charges for the first six false alarms, but would charge $25 each for the next four false alarms and $50 each for every false alarm thereafter.

Village officials have said it costs

$15.32 per hour for two patrolmen sent to check false alarms.

Klyber last month asked the village to delay enactment of the proposed ordinance for 90 days asking association members to actively try to reduce their false alarms during that time.

"If the problem does not ease during this trial period, then, of course, you have no alternative but to pass the ordinance," Klyber wrote the village board.

The questionnaire results are to be tabulated in early February.

Teacher pact talks begin in Dist. 214

Contract negotiations with teachers are under way in High School Dist. 214.

Negotiators for teachers and the board of education have met twice this month, and each side has submitted proposals, said Randall Knudsen, president of the Dist. 214 teachers union.

Both sides have agreed to a news blackout on negotiations, and information about the progress of talks is being released by mutual agreement.

Teachers are in the third year of a three-year contract which expires in August. The base salary is now $10,140, and beginning teachers earn 97 per cent of the base, or $9,836, until they are placed on tenure.

Park at Stevenson topic of meeting

Preliminary discussion of the Stevenson School park site development is scheduled at a meeting at 8 p.m. today of the Elk Grove Park Board.

The board is to meet with a landscape architect to go over preliminary concepts for the 5-acre site at the Volkamer Trail school.

The park board still has not accepted title to the land because it is awaiting Centex Homes Corp. to complete regrading at the site. Schaumburg Township School Dist. 34 will give the property to the park district.

Also scheduled for the meeting is the opening of bids for backstops, progress reports on the Disney Park gazebo project and the historical society, and an executive session on land acquisition.

The meeting will be at 499 Blesterfield Rd.

Daylight at 9:30 p.m.!

Teacher wants to put more sun in your life

by PAM BIGFORD

George Swanson would like to see the sun shine until 9:30 at night.

Swanson thinks the country would be better off economically and socially if the sun rose later and set later. And he intends to do something about it.

Swanson, an earth science teacher at Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, has formulated a new daylight-savings plan which would keep the sun shining until about 9:30 p.m. in the peak of the summer, almost an hour later than usual.

THE DAYLIGHT-savings plan which has been in effect the past two years has provided an additional hour of daylight in the evening from March through October.

Swanson's plan calls for yet another hour of daylight from May through August. Instead of the sun setting at about 8:30 p.m. in July, it would not set until 9:30 p.m.

Swanson said that not only would most people enjoy an extra hour of daylight on summer evenings, but it would save money in energy use.

Electrical utility officials estimated a savings of nearly 1 per cent a month took place in 1974 when the present eight-month daylight-savings plan took effect, Swanson said. He predicts that under his proposal, annual electrical production would be reduced another 6 per cent, a savings of 16 million barrels of oil a year.

SWANSON SAID that government studies have shown that traffic accidents and crime were also reduced in 1974 and 1975 during extended daylight hours.

Two possible disadvantages of the plan are foreseen by Swanson. One is that clocks would have to be changed four times a year instead of twice, which may be confusing.

Another is that the current time zones across the U.S. would have to be revised so that some areas would not experience mid-morning darkness. Swanson said he believes present time zones are generally over extended to the West.

The idea for the daylight-extending plan began hatching in Swanson's mind when he realized how few people were able to take advantage of the extra daylight hours in the summer.

SWANSON IS promoting his plan by sending it to local congressmen. U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Illinois, who is on a Senate committee studying the advantages gained in 1974 and 1975 by extending the daylight savings time into March and April, has shown the most interest in the plan, Swanson said.

Swanson hopes his proposal will receive even more publicity Friday night when he appears on "Graft," a WLS-TV program hosted by weatherman John Coleman. The one-hour program begins at 11:40 p.m. and Swanson is scheduled to appear during the latter half.

Swanson, who has been teaching various sciences for the past 10 years, said people have been proposing daylight-savings plans ever since Benjamin Franklin came up with the first one.

Swanson doesn't think anybody has gotten it right yet. But he's out to prove that, when it comes to sunshine, he's at least one step ahead of Ben Franklin.

Nongraded classes help poor students

Noncompetitive, nongraded instruction at Elk Grove High School is helping depressed students learn, says a school psychologist.

Between 200 and 300 students who are depressed because they are unsuccessful in the classroom are participating in a program of individualized education that emphasizes personal goals and progress rather than class rank.

Dick Bell, Elk Grove High School psychologist, said the young men and women in individualized instruction are not low-ability students. "Some students can do the work but won't," he explained.

FOR THESE students the realization of success in individual instruction can make the difference between completing their education and dropping out, he said.

"Today, the student who gets a C sees himself as a failure. Only students with A's and B's think of themselves as successes," Bell told a group of social service professionals during a meeting Tuesday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Some students in the Elk Grove High School program sign a mock contract spelling out their educational goals, quality of work and the grade they can receive. The contract "allows the student to monitor his own progress. The student takes responsibility for his own learning," Bell said.

Other students in the program, particularly those who are discipline problems, earn tokens for good behavior. The tokens are exchangeable for free time during which students are allowed to talk or play games.

Individualized instruction is frequently just one aspect of a student's curriculum at Elk Grove High School, and not all students need the special attention. But Bell said the philosophy of the program can be extended throughout the school.

"I want to emphasize noncompetitive education, and would like to see the grading system end. We have too many failures in the school system today," he said.

Bicentennial touch added to parking meters

by JOE SWICKARD

Oh, say can you see by the dawn's early light, if there's any time left on the parking meter?

Commuters in Mount Prospect may be humming that jaunty tune as they feed the meters in the commuter parking lots. Chicagoans may stand straighter when they park on Clark Street, not to mention the visitors to Rapid City, S.D.

Why all the patriotic fervor when it comes to parking a car? Because the Duncan Parking Meter Co., Elk Grove Village, is selling a star-spangled version of their meter in honor of the Bicentennial.

RALPH B. ELSNER, Duncan's vice president of sales, said, "We developed the idea about a year ago. Last April we showed it around the sales meetings and it was pretty well accepted."

Locally, Mount Prospect chose the national motif when it came time to replace the plexiglass domes on the meters in the commuter parking lots along Northwest Highway.

Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said the meters are in keeping with the town's Bicentennial observance which includes red, white and blue stripes for the police cars and the same colors on the water tower.

ACROSS THE nation, such diverse communities as New Orleans and Rapid City, S.D. — home of Reptile Gardens — have the meters, Elsner said.

"They're not garish at all. They're in good taste," Elsner said.

Duncan markets two versions to help celebrate the country's 200th birthday. One version is the complete meter "head," while the other is a replacement dome, such as Mount Prospect installed.

"They were just a few pennies more and we thought they were kind of nice," Eppley said of the decision to go for the Bicentennial meters rather than the standard, gunmetal gray ones.

BECAUSE THE domes can be installed or removed in a matter of minutes with just the turn of a few screws, Elsner said some towns plan to use the colorful domes for future holidays after the Bicentennial.

For those citizens who really don't need a parking meter, Duncan sells lamps made from models municipalities have traded-in on newer ones.

The lamps, generally sold as specialty or novelty items, come with either a gold coat of paint or the red, white and blue version.

Elsner admits the gold version sells better because most people get a little tired of having a red, white and blue parking meter lamp.

To put some minds to rest, the American flag does not pop up when the time expires and Eppley said motorists do not have to stand at attention or salute when they put their nickel in the All-American meters.

Ice skating twins start comeback

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Trudy and Judy Casey, those petite twins on ice skates, can almost hear the applause again. They can feel the heat of show lights on their faces.

For seven years the identical twins from Wheeling never thought they'd skate together again. A promising career with the Shipstad and Johnson Ice Follies was cut short in 1969 when Trudy suffered an injury on the ice. That mishap put her in the hospital with a rare circulatory disease.

But now the sisters are about to sign a contract with the Spice on Ice Revue in Las Vegas and they could be performing with singer Bobby Vinton as well. Trudy and Judy plan to return from Las Vegas next month with a contract in hand and a comeback under way.

"WE HAVE BEEN praying for a miracle," Judy said. "We want so much to get back into the business. But we never dreamed that the offer would come so quickly."

Actually, it was just a matter of luck, the girls said.

Trudy, anxious to get the show on the road, wrote to several celebrities in an attempt to sell their comeback act. Singer Bobby Vinton was one of the celebrities who responded to her letter and invited Trudy to Las Vegas where he was performing.

CASEY IS ONLY the girls' stage name. Their real last name is Strygank. "So, naturally, we have a Polish interest in it," Trudy said.

The girls will discuss performance possibilities with Vinton when he visits Chicago in March for several concerts.

A star spot in the ice revue and possible performances with Bobby Vinton would mean a return to the big time for the Casey twins, and a step toward regaining the glamorous life of show business they were forced to give up after Trudy's accident.

Since the accident Trudy has become a Chicago Fire Dept. paramedic and Judy is an instructor at the Glenview Ice Center. Both girls agree that things just haven't been the same.

LAST MONTH they announced their return to skating and have since received tentative offers from television producers and modeling agencies.

But the first thing they've had to do is practice their new routines on the ice.

"We're having so much fun getting it back together again with the music, the routines and costumes. We took new publicity shots the other day," Judy said.

But the new effort is also a painful one for Trudy, who must learn, almost from start, how to gracefully move her injured legs again.

"This business is in our blood and we just can't give up. This is going to be just great. We can't wait to be out there again," Trudy said.

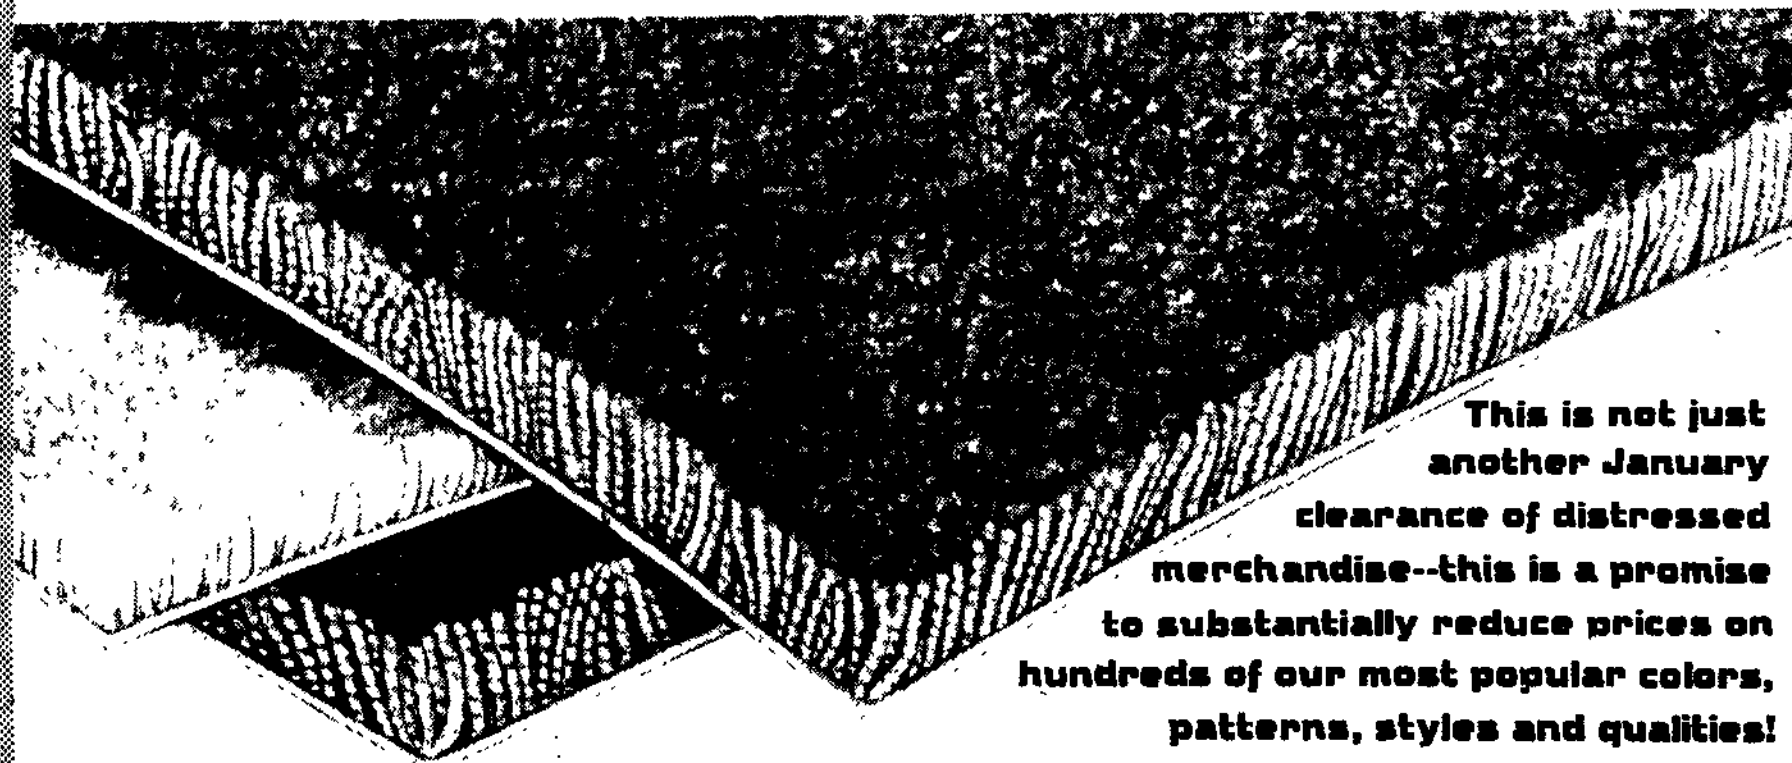

"It seems like we've waited too long already," she said.

Library plans to open branch facility March 13

Opening of the Schaumburg Township Public Branch Library in Hoffman Estates is tentatively scheduled for March 13. Library director Michael Madden said Wednesday.

"I talked to our architect this week and we're working toward a tentative grand opening date," Madden said.

Details of the opening will be discussed by the library board Feb. 4, he said.

"It probably won't be anything big," Madden said of the opening events to be planned. "We'll probably just serve refreshments. There won't be any speakers, but we'll probably have some Hoffman Estates village officials in attendance."

MADDEN SAID THE grand opening would mark the first business day for the library, which is being converted from a Hoffman Estates fire station at 469 Hassell Rd.

The Schaumburg library purchased the building from Hoffman Estates for $124,002.50 last year.

"Our total for the renovation of the fire station, everything included such as the architect's fee, electrical work and so on, came to $57,000," Madden said.

Of the total, $43,000 is being paid for by federal revenue sharing money with the remaining $14,000 coming from a surplus fund left over from the construction of the main library in Schaumburg, he said.

The Schaumburg Township Public Library, 32 W. Library Ln., opened in 1972 at a total cost of some $1.2 million.

Madden said the total money earmarked for the building was some $1.3 million, with the difference put aside in a reserve account.

Money from the account has principally been used for the purchase of books and library materials, but about $24,000 remains, Madden said.

Beirut under siege as troops hit hills

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian forces stormed Beirut's Moslem suburbs Wednesday as two Palestinian army brigades from Syria cut across the country to the foothills of Mt. Lebanon.

The Palestinian armor and artillery columns, halted by the 10,000-foot-high mountain range, were ready to move toward the war-ravaged capital if last-ditch Syrian-mediated truce talks fail.

Christian forces launched a sweeping offensive Wednesday against the Moslem suburb of Naabeh in reprisal for the fall of two besieged Christian towns south of Beirut.

THE VOICE OF Lebanon, the pirate radio station of the right-wing Phalangist party, said Christian militias were uniting under one command to liberate "the entire Lebanese nation from its usurpers."

Fierce fighting raged across the capital and countryside as rival forces attacked and counterattacked in an apparent attempt to grab as much territory as possible before a new cease-fire.

Police estimated more than 200 persons were killed and 430 injured in a climactic 48 hours. The toll in nine months of war rose to nearly 9,600 dead and 20,100 wounded.

Teacher wants more sun in life

by PAM BIGFORD

George Swanson would like to see the sun shine until 9:30 at night.

Swanson thinks the country would be better off economically and socially if the sun rose later and set later. And he intends to do something about it.

Swanson, an earth science teacher at Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, has formulated a new daylight-savings plan which would keep the sun shining until about 9:30 p.m. in the peak of the summer, almost an hour later than usual.

THE DAYLIGHT-savings plan which has been in effect the past two years has provided an additional hour of daylight in the evening from March through October.

Swanson's plan calls for yet another hour of daylight from May through August. Instead of the sun setting at about 8:30 p.m. in July, it would not set until 9:30 p.m.

Swanson said that not only would most people enjoy an extra hour of daylight on summer evenings, but it would save money in energy use.

Electrical utility officials estimated a savings of nearly 1 per cent a month took place in 1974 when the present eight-month daylight-savings plan took effect, Swanson said. He predicts that under his proposal, annual electrical production would be reduced another 6 per cent, a savings of 18 million barrels of oil a year.

SWANSON SAID that government studies have shown that traffic accidents and crime were also reduced in 1974 and 1975 during extended daylight hours.

Two possible disadvantages of the plan are foreseen by Swanson. One is that clocks would have to be changed four times a year instead of twice, which may be confusing.

Another is that the current time zones across the U.S. would have to be revised so that some areas would not experience mid-morning darkness. Swanson said he believes present time zones are generally overextended to the West.

The idea for the daylight-extending plan began hatching in Swanson's mind when he realized how few people were able to take advantage of the extra daylight hours in the summer.

SWANSON IS promoting his plan by sending it to local congressmen. U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Illinois, who is on a Senate committee studying the advantages gained in 1974 and 1975 by extending the daylight savings time into March and April, has shown the most interest in the plan, Swanson said.

Swanson hopes his proposal will receive even more publicity Friday night when he appears on "Grafitti," a WLS-TV program hosted by weatherman John Coleman. The one-hour program begins at 11:40 p.m. and Swanson is scheduled to appear during the latter half.

Swanson, who has been teaching various sciences for the past 10 years, said people have been proposing daylight-savings plans ever since Benjamin Franklin came up with the first one.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday laid down a $394.2 billion budget carrying more money for defense and energy programs, a promise of new tax cuts for individuals and businesses, and a scaled-down social program emphasizing aid to the most needy.

Aside from military and energy spending, the emphasis was on reducing federal outlays for domestic needs by consolidation and reorganization of a variety of government programs.

Signing the budget before submitting it to Congress, where the ultimate decisions lie, the President said: "This represents what we hope will be a very major turning point for the American people. But it does not hold out any promise that the federal government can or will solve every problem."

He said "it reflects on every page the common sense, the new realism" he invoked in his State of the Union speech Monday.

"We will give more money to those at or below the poverty line and cut off those above," Ford told reporters.

Having put his own stamp on the blueprint for fiscal 1977 (his previous budget was worked out largely under Richard Nixon), Ford dispatched top economic aides to Capitol Hill for daylong briefings of congressional leaders and committees to be involved with it.

Among those panels are the new Senate and House budget committees, created to sort out and ride herd on the complicated process of government spending. They could drastically alter the President's formula.

Predictably, most congressional Republicans praised the President while

Democratic leaders attacked the effort to cut back on domestic programs.

However, Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and a major force in the budget's move through Congress, urged fellow Democrats not to push for budget increases in view of the "shockingly high" national debt.

Mahon acknowledged that there will be pressures to chop the proposed $8.3 billion increase in defense spending, and that "Congress may very probably fail to adopt" the President's plan for overhauling and reducing domestic programs.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill raised the issue of politics, saying: "The President's budget priorities are 100 per cent wrong. Its full impact in slowing the economy would be felt in 1977, not in this election year. We have to worry about the future, not just about the election."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said it is "in the interest of the

Grid number plan faces further study

Plans to institute a grid street numbering system in Hoffman Estates have been sent to Village Planner Gerald Estes for further study.

The grid system is a street address numbering system in which addresses are charted according to distance from a starting intersection. Village officials have tentatively selected Golf and Roselle roads as the starting intersection.

Officials have discussed conversion to the grid system for several years. The grid plan is used in Chicago, where streets are numbered according to their distance from State Street and Madison Street.

The village board Monday approved up to $17,500 to finance the transition to the grid system.

Sticker deadline Feb. 15

Residents who purchase vehicle stickers for their cars after Feb. 15 will be subject to a police citation and an additional $5 late fee.

The village board unanimously passed the late fee as an enticement to urge residents to purchase the stickers before the deadline.

The board recently extended the original Jan. 1 sticker deadline to coincide with that of the state for display of license plates.

Pistol range budgeted

A pistol range for use by the village police department has been placed in the budget for next year.

Village Mgr. George Longmeyer said the estimated cost of the range would fall "between $53,000 and $54,500."

He suggested that some of the $75,000 acquired in the out-of-court settlement of the Kaufman and Broad lawsuit and revenue-sharing funds could be used to defray the cost of the pistol range.

Village policemen now use pistol ranges for target-shooting at neighboring communities, Longmeyer said.

Fire department praised

The village fire department was lauded by Village Mgr. George Longmeyer for its efforts Saturday at the Dennis Schroeder home, 227 Northview Ln.

Three firemen were injured in the blaze, which caused an estimated $40,000 damage.

Longmeyer said 21-year-old fireman Ronald Antor will be off the job "four to six weeks as a result of severe burns" sustained while fighting the fire.

Youth group names Finfer

Joel Finfer of 971 Spring Mill Dr. has been appointed to the youth commission.

A graduate of Northern Illinois University, Finfer also attended John Marshall Law School and DePaul University.

Open house Sunday at new museum site

The Poplar Creek Historical Society will sponsor an open house Sunday at the Sunderlage farm house, the site of a planned historical museum.

The open house will be from 2 to 4 p.m. The farm house is located on Vista Lane off Vold Drive in the Moon Lake Village complex, Hoffman Estates.

Well fails 2nd time; suit threatened

One of Schaumburg's two deep wells which supply the major source of village water is inoperative for the second time in less than a year.

Schaumburg officials have authorized Village Mgr. John E. Coste to hire a firm to repair the well if Wehling Well Works, Waterman, Ill., from whom the equipment was purchased, does not respond to service requests.

"We have no present water problem," Coste said, adding he is anxious to get the facility "back into operation before the need for water increases next summer."

THE WELL IS in Del Lago Villas subdivision near Higgins and Plum Grove roads. Coste said the facility is still under guarantee.

Coste said he contacted Wehling Well Works last month and a representative examined the well, advising that sand had entered the system and that sand elimination is not covered in the company's contract with the village.

Coste said the firm has not responded to a letter of Jan. 9 concerning the inoperative well and suggested "we sue them if they do nothing." The village also had problems getting the firm to repair the well last summer during a critical water shortage.

Trustee James Rogers said he is "inclined" to go along with Coste's recommendation provided the village give Wehling Well Works "another week or so" to begin repairs.

In addition to the two deep wells, Schaumburg's water system includes 16 shallow wells. A third deep well, nearing completion in Schaumburg-Centex Industrial Park, is expected to be ready this year and village officials expect to award contracts this month for a fourth deep well.

Burglary suspect charged while friend flees on foot

Hoffman Estates police arrested a burglary suspect Tuesday night at the Barrington Lakes apartment complex, and a second suspect escaped by running across the Northwest Tollway during a snowstorm, police said.

Michael Semon, 20, of 1922 N. Sayre, Chicago, was arrested by Det. Robert Syre and Patrolman Charles Fricke, who responded to a report of a burglary in progress at 2270 Hassell Rd. about 8:30 p.m., police reported.

The policemen stopped a car in the apartment parking lot, and one of two men fled on foot from the vehicle authorities said. After Syre arrested Semon, Fricke chased the fleeing suspect about 200 yards in the snow, but lost sight of the suspect after he jumped a fence and ran across the six-lane tollway, police said.

Police recovered about $1,500 worth of camera and stereo equipment taken from the John Kostyal apartment, police said. Also found in the car was miscellaneous musical equipment, believed stolen, authorities said.

Ordinance would raise taxi fares

Cab law change review in May

A revised taxi cab ordinance for Hoffman Estates is expected to come before the village board in May, Assistant Village Mgr. John Dixon has said.

Dixon said the ordinance revision, which provides for increased fares and new safety standards, is "better than before, but there are still areas that need changing."

The cab ordinance is being revised to attract cab companies to operate in the village. There is no licensed cab service in Hoffman Estates because carriers say maximum rates set by the village are too low.

THE REVISED ORDINANCE will hike cab fares from the 35 cents for the first one-third mile to 70 cents for the first one-seventh mile.

Subsequent fare rates would also change from 10 cents for each additional one-third mile to 10 cents for each additional one-seventh mile in the new proposal.

The proposed rates are in line with those charged in surrounding communities, Dixon said.

The ordinance would also outline new inspection standards to ensure the safety of locally licensed cab services.

Discussion last week at the judiciary committee meeting centered around whether cab licenses should be required on a calendar or fiscal year.

Trustee Jeanne Pavey said she felt the licenses should be required on the same date as the Illinois license plates and village vehicle stickers.

The $15 license fee for cabs is considered by some trustees to be too low. A higher fee of $25 was recommended to Dixon.

Committee chairman Melvin Timmons told Dixon to "look into these items" in order to bring back further information to the committee.

Test results, summer school Dist. 54 topics

Year-round schools, summer school 1976 and the results of math and reading tests will be subjects of discussion at the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education committee-of-the-whole meeting tonight.

The meeting, which begins at 8 p.m., will be held at Link School, 900 S.W. Glenn Tr., Elk Grove Village. The public is invited to attend.

Barbara Fanchier, a Dist. 54 resident, and two administrators from Valley View Unit School Dist. 365 in Romeoville which runs on a year-round basis, will present an informational report to the board on the pros and cons of year-round schools.

Carlos Seltzer, assistant superintendent for curriculum, will present the board the results of math and reading tests taken by Dist. 54 children in the past year.

The administration will also inform the board about the summer school program, including the courses that will be offered and the schools which will be open.

Village votes to apply for housing cash

The Hoffman Estates Village Board has voted to include the village population with that of Cook County in an application for Housing and Community Development Act funds.

The action reversed an earlier stand against applying for the funds.

The block grant, established under the federal 1974 Housing and Community Development Act, can be used for local public improvements in county municipalities applying for money.

Assistant Village Mgr. John Dixon said the village will prepare a proposal on how the grant would be spent. The proposal will then be judged by a group of 28 area officials, including 21 local mayors.

The panel will judge the programs and assign priorities on which municipalities will be awarded money.

"The money is there," Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said. "It's been predetermined it will be somewhere across the land."

She said the "mechanism is there" for possibly obtaining funds from the program.

Earlier this month, the village board drafted a resolution that population figures not be included in the county total. The same position had been taken last year.

But the board voted against the resolution Monday night, legally insuring village participation in the grant program.

Twinbrook sets plans for hiring camp staffers

Plans for hiring the 1976 Twinbrook YMCA Camp staff have been announced by Richard Dates, program director.

Twinbrook YMCA operates day and residence camps for area boys and girls.

YMCA day camps operate from a 16-acre Wise Road site near Robert Frost Junior High School. The camps offer a program of games, crafts, swimming, cookouts and trips for first through third graders.

The residence camp offers a complete program, using the facilities of YMCA camps in Iowa and Wisconsin. Fourth through sixth-grade campers participate in sports, swimming, archery, riflery, horseback riding, crafts and other activities.

A volunteer camp staff training program is offered to students entering their sophomore or junior year in high school. The volunteer leaders-in-training participate in training sessions and also act as assistant leaders at the YMCA day and residence camps.

High school and college students are hired as day camp group leaders, who work with small groups of youngsters in activities. Day camp leaders are expected to serve for one week on a voluntary basis at a residence camp.

Staff interviews will begin in February.

Persons wishing more information or an interview are asked to call Twinbrook YMCA, 1001 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates, 882-7250.

Hoffman park wrapup*Duck explosion?
Count is planned

The Hoffman Estates Park District building and grounds committee has decided against taking action on placing "No Feeding of Ducks" signs on Hassell Road near Twin Lakes.

The committee will, however, launch a "duck count" to determine whether there is a "duck population explosion."

The signs had been suggested last month by Health Director James Demos, who asked the park district to place "Ducks Crossing" signs to warn motorists of a potential danger.

Demos said the ducks pose a hazard when motorists brake on icy roads to avoid hitting crossing birds.

The building and grounds committee approved allowing park district Director Allen Binder to work with Village Mgr. George Longmeyer on the possible thinning of the duck population.

Use of fields poses problem

The park district board will discuss the use of the Union 76 playing fields at Meacham and Golf roads in Hoffman Estates following a dispute between two groups who want the fields this spring.

Representatives of the Hoffman Estates Athletic Assn Tuesday night requested consideration as the prime user of the Union fields.

The representatives said they wanted the fields for their Sunday soccer games held from April 25 through June 27. The group has used the fields for the past three years.

But Andy McPherson, of the Hoffman Estates Park District Soccer Club, said that club already has formally requested the location and has received permission to use the fields this year.

Representatives from both ball clubs said the fields could not be shared effectively.

Board Pres George Rush has requested that each club send spokesmen to a park board meeting Tuesday to discuss usage of the fields.

Perch for Evergreen Lake?

Hoffman Estates resident Ralph Allen, a park district volunteer worker, recommended placing 500 perch, at a cost of 50 to 70 cents each, into Evergreen Lake as part of the fish stocking program.

The board asked Allen to prepare a report on past stocking procedures and make recommendations on a two-year stocking program.

The stocking program will be placed on the recreation committee's Feb. 10 agenda.

Explorer post seeks adults

Organizers of a Boy Scout Explorer aviation post being formed at Schaumburg Airport are seeking five adult leaders for the group.

Volunteers need not have an aviation background since the desire to work with young adults is considered more important, said Kenneth B. Wolmer, airport vice president and general manager.

Area residents interested in working with the new explorer post are asked to contact Wolmer, 529-7321.

Persons wishing to nominate a friend or neighbor are asked to contact Erma Rogers, chairman, 894-1425.

Parks offer sewing class

Schaumburg Park District will offer sewing classes for adults and boys and girls 12 through 16 years of age.

Women 17 years of age and older are eligible for the program to be held at Jane Addams Junior High School, 700 S. Springmeadow Rd., from Jan. 28 through March 31. Classes will be held from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. each Wednesday.

Sewing programs for youths 12 through 16 will be held at Jane Addams from Jan. 27 through March 30. Classes will be held each Tuesday from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The limit is 14 persons for the sewing classes. The fee is $15 per person or $18 for non-residents.

Students will be asked to bring their own supplies for both programs. The class will be taught to read pattern markings, laying out and cutting of patterns, transfer of markings to fabric, darts, facings, zippers and hems.

Registration for the courses is now being taken at Menke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way.

Dist. 15 appoints panel to set goals, priorities

Parents, principals and teachers have been appointed to a Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 steering committee to determine goals and priority projects for the district.

The steering committee will be updating and revising the district's Program Improvement Plan, a state-required list of goals and projects first drawn up in 1972.

The state requires that the district continuously update the document, said Loretta Langley, administrative member of the committee. The committee will start meeting in February, Mrs. Langley said.

Before the full board approved the steering committee members, board member Walter Kendall asked that letters be written to district organizations soliciting their help in naming persons to the new panel.

SEVERAL BOARD members objected, saying a district-wide search might result in too large a committee to be workable.

Kendall said his personal letterwriting campaign to find candidates to fill a board seat vacated by Robert Bliss this fall resulted in nine applicants. Board member Everett Charlier, however, said none of the applicants, except present member Irene Sjostedt, have shown any interest in board affairs since their bid for the seat.

The recommended list of committee members was solicited through PTA presidents and informational meetings after the board directed a committee search in November. "We looked for people with a demonstrated interest in the schools," said Mrs. Langley.

Kendall's request died for lack of a second at last week's meeting, and the 24 proposed committee members were accepted by the board. Board members did say, however, that no one who wanted to work on the PIP project would be turned away.

The steering committee members are:

MAUREEN BROWN, 820 E. Carpenter Dr., Palatine; Judy Chelius, 2307 St. James St., Rolling Meadows; Margaret Freel, 628 Monterey Rd., Palatine; Dolores Galkowski, 939 W. ## Police recover stolen credit cards

Schaumburg police recovered numerous stolen credit cards late Monday after the arrest of a Carpentersville woman on various charges at the Woodfield Shopping Center, police said.

Monica M. DeBartolo, 22, was charged with possession of stolen property, possession of controlled substances and violation of the Illinois Credit Card Act.

She was detained by Sears, Roebuck and Co. security personnel after she attempted to purchase about $120 in women's clothing with a stolen credit card, police said.

Police said they found a quantity of drugs thought to be amphetamines in the possession of Ms. DeBartolo. Also found in her purse were identification papers of another woman, and stolen credit cards were discovered in Ms. Bartolo's car, police reported.

She was released after posting $5,000 in bonds pending an appearance Feb. 18 in the Schaumburg branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Despite attendance drop Arena finds secret of income success

Some are making it, some aren't

The Franklin Park Park District's ice arena is losing money, while Northbrook's three ice arenas are making money for that park district.

Both communities run public skating facilities similar to the Rolling Meadows Park District.

At the Franklin Park arena, a spokesman said the indoor rink, in its second year of operation, has been a financial drain and is getting worse.

Residents will be asked later this year to approve an increased tax rate so the district can continue to operate the ice rink.

STEVE LEVANE, recreation superintendent at the Northbrook Park District, said one of the district's three rinks is operating at a loss, but the loss is being absorbed by the two other rinks.

Levane said the district's newest and largest indoor rink "is not making money only because it opened nine months later than expected."

Northbrook ice rinks, like Rolling Meadows and Franklin Park, make most of their money from ice rental and programs.

The Northbrook district rents ice to the Northbrook Hockey League an average of 48 hours a week. The Northbrook Figure Skating Club, with 1,400 persons involved in lessons, is another good customer, according to Levane.

"At $60 an hour for ice time, the programs not only keep our doors open but help us stay out of the red," he added.

FRANKLIN PARK blames a bad start for its inability to run the arena on its revenue.

A spokesman for the district said "we didn't know how to build an arena, and as a result, we made costly mistakes that had to be corrected."

The Franklin Park arena is open from 6 a.m. to midnight daily and weekends and is open for public skating from 4 p.m. to midnight every day of the week.

"Although the arena is booked solid for league play and other ice rentals during those hours when there is no public skating, the revenue is still not enough," the spokesman said.

"Although all three communities have different philosophies of how to operate an indoor rink and different ideas about the importance of various programs, they agree that hockey leagues and programs, not public skating, generate revenue."

THE RINK, part of the $900,000 sports complex at 3900 Owl Dr., was approved by voters in 1969 and opened in 1971. Attendance at public skating, the reason the district chose to build the arena, was high that first year but steadily decreased thereafter.

"In those first years we felt we had to keep the rink open year round and for as many hours as possible. We've learned since then that the people don't use the arena that way," Nelson said.

Residents still do not attend the public skating sessions in great numbers but attendance is increasing at programs and special events.

IN 1971 AS MANY as 550 persons could be found skating at the complex on a Friday evening. "Today the average attendance has dropped to 150 on a Friday night and as low as 40 skaters on a Saturday afternoon," Nelson said.

The rink now offers open skating on Friday, Saturday and Sunday for a total of 8 hours, a substantial drop from the 38½ hours of open skating time in 1972.

"We rent the ice the rest of the time to hockey teams and private parties. When the ice isn't rented and we don't

Beirut under storm as troops sweep foothills

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian forces stormed Beirut's Muslim suburbs Wednesday as two Palestinian army brigades from Syria cut across the country to the foothills of Mt. Lebanon.

The Palestinian armor and artillery columns, halted by the 10,000-foot-high mountain range, were ready to move toward the war-ravaged capital if last-ditch Syrian-mediated truce talks fail.

Christian forces launched a sweeping offensive Wednesday against the Muslim suburb of Naubeh in reprisal for the fall of two besieged Christian towns south of Beirut.

THE VOICE OF Lebanon, the pirate radio station of the right-wing Phalangist party, said Christian militias were uniting under one command to liberate "the entire Lebanese nation from its usurpers."

Fierce fighting raged across the capital and countryside as rival forces attacked and counterattacked in an apparent attempt to grab as much territory as possible before a new cease-fire.

Police estimated more than 200 persons were killed and 430 injured in a climactic 48 hours. The toll in nine months of war rose to nearly 9,600 dead and 20,100 wounded.

THE ILLINOIS REPLICA of the Liberty Bell made a stop at Rolling Meadows High School Tuesday on its tour across the state. Those observing the bell were invited to sign a sheet of paper which will be placed in a time capsule with other mementos. The capsule will be buried beneath the bell when it is permanently mounted at the Capitol in Springfield and will be opened when the nation observes its 300th birthday. In front of the 2,000-pound replica of the bell are Rolling Meadows High School students from left, Eleanor Vela, Nancy Miller and Tammy Slove.

Review of fire department study tonight

Rolling Meadows officials tonight will review a five-month study of the city fire department.

The study, prepared by the National Loss Control Service Corp. of Long Grove, includes recommendations on long-range needs.

Five aldermen on the license, police, health and fire committee, will review the report at an 8 p.m. committee meeting at the city hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd.

Although the study was completed in mid-December, officials have declined to comment on its findings. The study is expected to include an analysis of future manpower needs, as well as the possible need for another fire station.

The inside story      Ford's $394.2 billion budget to Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday laid down a $394.2 billion budget carrying more money for defense and energy programs, a promise of new tax cuts for individuals and businesses, and a scaled-down social program emphasizing aid to the most needy.

Aside from military and energy spending, the emphasis was on reducing federal outlays for domestic needs by consolidation and reorganization of a variety of government programs.

Signing the budget before submitting it to Congress, where the ultimate decisions lie, the President said:

"This represents what we hope will be a very major turning point for the American people. But it does not hold out any promise that the federal government can or will solve every problem."

He said "it reflects on every page the common sense, the new realism" he invoked in his State of the Union speech Monday.

"We will give more money to those at or below the poverty line and cut off those above," Ford told reporters.

Having put his own stamp on the blueprint for fiscal 1977 (his previous budget was worked out largely under Richard Nixon), Ford dispatched top economic aides to Capitol Hill for daylong briefings of congressional leaders and committees to be involved with it.

Among those panels are the new Senate and House budget committees, created to sort out and ride herd on the complicated process of government spending. They could drastically alter the President's formula.

Predictably, most congressional Republicans praised the President while Democratic leaders attacked the effort to cut back on domestic programs.

However, Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and a major force in the budget's move through Congress, urged fellow Democrats not to push for budget increases in view of the "shockingly high" national debt.

Mahon acknowledged that there will be pressures to chop the proposed $8.3 billion increase in defense spending, and that "Congress may very probably fail to adopt" the President's plan for overhauling and reducing domestic programs.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill raised the issue of politics, saying:

"The President's budget priorities are 100 per cent wrong. Its full impact in slowing the economy would be felt in 1977, not in this election year. We have to worry about the future, not just about the election."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said it is "in the interest of the

Ice arena finds income gain secret

have a program, we close the arena," Nelson said.

"By cutting back on staff and keeping the arena closed unless registration warrants use of the rink, we've saved money on utilities and salary," he added.

"THIS TOOK a bit of courage because we'd look at the arena and feel that because it was there, we had to keep the doors open and the ice maintained even when there were only a handful of people and sometimes no one on the ice," Nelson said.

With fewer hours tied up in public skating, more time has been available for hockey schools, team play and private parties. These bring in $65 an hour for prime time with reduced rates for other hours.

Ice rental and the district's own hockey league are the most financially successful programs.

The rink, despite making its operational expenses from these programs, still continues to "woo" the public skater. Rink manager Kenneth Smith has planned a series of special skating events aimed to increase attendance at the weekend public skating sessions.

SO FAR, however, the "specials" have not been successful. At a recent family day session parents could get in free if their children paid the admission price. Only three families took advantage of the offer.

Nelson said the district is attempting to offer a balance of public skating, special programs and ice or facility rental opportunity.

"We are continually trying to give the resident what he wants, keep an eye on attendance and program demands and attempt to at least break even," Nelson said.

Broker denies he misled clients

John Olson, vice president of Vacation Sites Inc., Hoffman Estates, testified before the Illinois Real Estate Examining Committee that he always identified himself as a representative of the company when calling on potential customers.

"I presented them my business card and said I was a former employee of American Central Corp.," Olson said.

OLSON, HIS WIFE, Loretta, and Clifford Kortas, also of Palatine, all officials of the firm, have been charged with deception by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education.

The charges stem from cases in which the three allegedly told customers they could trade recreational and vacation property they owned in Illinois as a down payment for land in Wisconsin.

If convicted, the three face revocation of their real estate licenses.

Five persons who agreed to the trades testified before the committee last month that they still remain responsible for payments on their Illinois property as well as the Wisconsin land even after the trades.

But Olson, in a four-hour hearing Wednesday, said he made payments on the Illinois property of which he assumed ownership and was unaware of delinquent payment notices being sent to the former owners.

OLSON SAID American Central Corp., which owned many of the Illinois sites traded, has failed to recognize his ownership on 16 of about 90 pieces of property and has failed to accept his mortgage payment on them.

All other monthly payments on properties he owns are paid up through last month, Olson said.

He said he spent $66,000 last year in mortgage payments on properties he accepted as trade.

Olson told the committee he received the names of property owners from lists which were presented to him when he was employed by American Central Corp., developers of Lake Thunderbird near Peoria and Lake Carroll in western Illinois. He said he also received a list of land owners from Candlewick Lake, where he was also formerly employed.

OLSON SAID he approached property owners asking them if they were satisfied with their investments at the developments and if they would be interested in trading their land for property in Hayward, Wis.

The customers were told the deals had to be completed the same day because if they liked the arrangements, they should accept it on the spot, he testified.

Paul Shandling, attorney for the department, asked Olson if he was aware of the three-day cancellation clause which the Illinois Consumer Fraud Act requires for unsolicited sales. Olson said his attorney, Sydney Schiller, and a finance company told him the clause was not applicable.

Olson also testified he offered each customer the chance to tear up their contracts the same day they were signed if there were any misgivings about the arrangement.

AFTER FIVE DAYS, however, he said he believed the contracts were binding.

Committee member Marie Score asked Olson if he ever offered to take potential buyers to the Wisconsin site before they agreed to buy the property. Olson said he did not, but showed each person pictures and a map of the area.

Harry M. Gottlieb, also a panel member, asked Olson if he ever tried to "dispel the notion" among customers that he represented American Central Corp. Olson said he gave his Vacation Sites Inc. business card, telling customers American Central Corp. was no longer selling property at either Lake Thunderbird or Lake

Carroll.

The committee agreed to drop three lesser charges against Olson, his wife and Kortas, saying the department failed to present relevant evidence.

The dropped charges included failure to submit required change-of-address forms to the state, failure to present clients with copies of their contracts and combining money of others with their own.

The hearing will continue at 10 a.m. today. The committee will make a recommendation to department officials before a final decision is reached.

Stakeout pays off, burglary suspect seized

Arlington Heights police arrested a man Wednesday in connection with two burglaries at stores in the 900 block of W. Rand Road.

Charged was Frank E. Turner, 43, of 1801 E. Algonquin Rd., Elk Grove Township.

Police said before a patrolman discovered burglaries at the White Hen Pantry and Norgetown Rand Cleaners, he saw a man lurking in the parking lot of the nearby Greenbrier apartment complex about 12:45 a.m.

Police said cash had been taken from the cleaners, 927 W. Rand Rd., and someone had attempted to open the safe at the White Hen Pantry, 921 W. Rand Rd. Entry to the buildings had been made by prying open rear doors, police reported.

The patrolman traced footprints in the snow from the stores to the apartment parking lot, but he could not find the man he saw there. Also found were fresh footprints indicating the man had fled after seeing the police officer, police said.

Turner was released on his own recognizance pending an appearance Friday in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Cash, jewelry taken in apartment theft

Arlington Heights police are investigating an apartment burglary in which a large quantity of jewelry was reported stolen Tuesday night from the Norman Mark residence, 2411 S. Goebbert Rd.

Taken were three pearl necklaces, a pearl bracelet, two gold bracelets, a watch, two garnet pins, a diamond pin, two metal cash boxes and about $7 in cash, police were told.

Police said entry to the apartment was gained by prying open the door.

Teacher pact talks begin in Dist. 214

Contract negotiations with teachers are under way in High School Dist. 214.

Negotiators for teachers and the board of education have met twice this month, and each side has submitted proposals, said Randall Knudsen, president of the Dist. 204 teachers union.

Both sides have agreed to a news blackout on negotiations, and information about the progress of talks is being released by mutual agreement.

Teachers are in the third year of a three-year contract which expires in August. The base salary is now $10,140, and beginning teachers earn 97 per cent of the base, or $9,836, until they are placed on tenure.

Daylight at 9:30 p.m.!*More sun in your future?

by PAM BIGFORD

George Swanson would like to see the sun shine until 9:30 at night.

Swanson thinks the country would be better off economically and socially if the sun rose later and set later. And he intends to do something about it.

Swanson, an earth science teacher at Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, has formulated a new daylight-savings plan which would keep the sun shining until about 9:30 p.m. in the peak of the summer, almost an hour later than usual.

THE DAYLIGHT-savings plan which has been in effect the past two years has provided an additional hour of daylight in the evening from March through October.

Swanson's plan calls for yet another hour of daylight from May through August. Instead of the sun setting at about 8:30 p.m. in July, it would not set until 9:30 p.m.

Swanson said that not only would most people enjoy an extra hour of daylight on summer evenings, but it would save money in energy use.

Electrical utility officials estimated a savings of nearly 1 per cent a month took place in 1974 when the present eight-month daylight-savings plan took effect, Swanson said. He predicts that under his proposal, annual electrical production would be reduced another 6 per cent, a savings of 18 million barrels of oil a year.

SWANSON SAID that government studies have shown that traffic accidents and crime were also reduced in 1974 and 1975 during extended daylight hours.

Two possible disadvantages of the plan are foreseen by Swanson. One is that clocks would have to be changed four times a year instead of twice, which may be confusing.

Another is that the current time zones across the U.S. would have to be revised so that some areas would not experience mid-morning darkness. Swanson said he believes present time zones are generally overextended to the West.

The idea for the daylight-extending plan began hatching in Swanson's mind when he realized how few people were able to take advantage of the extra daylight hours in the summer.

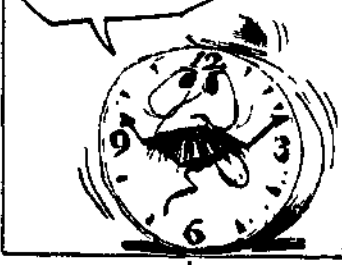

SWANSON IS promoting his plan by sending it to local congressmen. U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Illinois, who is on a Senate committee studying the advantages gained in 1974 and 1975 by extending the daylight savings time into March and April, has shown the most interest in the plan, Swanson said.

Swanson hopes his proposal will receive even more publicity Friday night when he appears on "Grafitti," a WLS-TV program hosted by weatherman John Coleman. The one-hour program begins at 11:40 p.m. and Swanson is scheduled to appear during the latter half.

Swanson, who has been teaching various sciences for the past 10 years, said people have been proposing daylight-savings plans ever since Benjamin Franklin came up with the first one.

Swanson doesn't think anybody has gotten it right yet. But he's out to prove that, when it comes to sunshine, he's at least one step ahead of Ben Franklin.

Anybody got the right time?

Noncompetitive, nongraded instruction at Elk Grove High School is helping depressed students learn, says a school psychologist.

Between 200 and 300 students who are depressed because they are unsuccessful in the classroom are participating in a program of individualized education that emphasizes personal goals and progress rather than class rank.

Dick Bell, Elk Grove High School psychologist, said the young men and women in individualized instruction are not low-ability students. "Some students can do the work but won't," he explained.

FOR THESE students the realization of success in individual instruction can make the difference between completing their education and dropping out, he said.

"Today, the student who gets a C sees himself as a failure. Only students with A's and B's think of themselves as successes," Bell told a group of social service professionals during a meeting Tuesday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Some students in the Elk Grove High School program sign a mock contract spelling out their educational goals, quality of work and the grade they can receive. The contract "allows the student to monitor his own progress. The student takes responsibility for his own learning," Bell said.

Other students in the program, particularly those who are discipline problems, earn tokens for good behavior. The tokens are exchangeable for free time during which students are allowed to talk or play games.

Individualized instruction is frequently just one aspect of a student's curriculum at Elk Grove High School, and not all students need the special attention. But Bell said the philosophy of the program can be extended throughout the school.

"I want to emphasize noncompetitive education, and would like to see the grading system end. We have too many failures in the school system today," he said.

Bicentennial touch added to parking meters

by JOE SWICKARD

Oh, say can you see by the dawn's early light if there's any time left on the parking meter?

Commuters in Mount Prospect may be humming that jaunty tune as they feed the meters in the commuter parking lots. Chicagoans may stand straighter when they park on Clark Street, not to mention the visitors to Rapid City, S.D.

Why all the patriotic fervor when it comes to parking a car? Because the Duncan Parking Meter Co., Elk Grove Village, is selling a star-spangled version of their meter in honor of the Bicentennial.

RALPH B. ELSNER, Duncan's vice president of sales, said, "We developed the idea about a year ago. Last April we showed it around the sales meetings and it was pretty well accepted."

Locally, Mount Prospect chose the national motif when it came time to replace the plexiglass domes on the meters in the commuter parking lots along Northwest Highway.

Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said the meters are in keeping with the town's Bicentennial observance which includes red, white and blue stripes for the police cars and the same colors on the water tower.

ACROSS THE nation, such diverse communities as New Orleans and Rapid City, S.D. — home of Reptile Gardens — have the meters, Elsner said.

"They're not garish at all. They're in good taste," Elsner said.

Duncan markets two versions to help celebrate the country's 200th birthday. One version is the complete meter "head," while the other is a replacement dome, such as Mount Prospect installed.

"They were just a few pennies more and we thought they were kind of nice," Eppley said of the decision to go for the Bicentennial meters rather than the standard gummetal gray ones.

BECAUSE THE domes can be installed or removed in a matter of minutes with just the turn of a few screws, Elsner said some towns plan to use the colorful domes for future holidays after the Bicentennial.

For those citizens who really don't need a parking meter, Duncan sells lamps made from models municipalities have traded-in on newer ones.

The lamps, generally sold as specialty or novelty items, come with either a gold coat of paint or the red, white and blue version.

Elsner admits the gold version sells better because most people get a little tired of having a red, white and blue parking meter lamp.

To put some minds to rest, the American flag does not pop up when the time expires and Eppley said motorists do not have to stand at attention or salute when they put their nickel in the All-American meters.

Ice skating twins start comeback

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Trudy and Judy Casey, those petite twins on ice skates, can almost hear the applause again. They can feel the heat of show lights on their faces.

For seven years the identical twins from Wheeling never thought they'd skate together again. A promising career with the Shipstad and Johnson Ice Follies was cut short in 1969 when Trudy suffered an injury on the ice. That mishap put her in the hospital with a rare circulatory disease.

But now the sisters are about to sign a contract with the Spice on Ice Revue in Las Vegas and they could be performing with singer Bobby Vinton as well. Trudy and Judy plan to return from Las Vegas next month with a contract in hand and a comeback under way.

"WE HAVE BEEN praying for a miracle," Judy said. "We want so much to get back into the business. But we never dreamed that the offer would come so quickly."

Actually, it was just a matter of luck, the girls said.

Trudy, anxious to get the show on the road, wrote to several celebrities in an attempt to sell their comeback act. Singer Bobby Vinton was one of the celebrities who responded to her letter and invited Trudy to Las Vegas where he was performing.

CASEY IS ONLY the girls' stage name. Their real last name is Stryganiek. "So, naturally, we have a Polish interest in it," Trudy said.

The girls will discuss performance possibilities with Vinton when he visits Chicago in March for several concerts.

A star spot in the ice revue and possible performances with Bobby Vinton would mean a return to the big time for the Casey twins, and a step toward regaining the glamorous life of show business they were forced to give up after Trudy's accident.

Since the accident Trudy has become a Chicago Fire Dept. paramedic and Judy is an instructor at the Glenview Ice Center. Both girls agree that things just haven't been the same.

LAST MONTH they announced their return to skating and have since received tentative offers from television producers and modeling agencies.

But the first thing they've had to do is practice their new routines on the ice.

"We're having so much fun getting it back together again with the music, the routines and costumes. We took new publicity shots the other day," Judy said.

But the new effort is also a painful one for Trudy, who must learn, almost from start, how to gracefully move her injured legs again.

"This business is in our blood and we just can't give up. This is going to be just great. We can't wait to be out there again," Trudy said.

"It seems like we've waited too long already," she said.

Broker denies he misled his customers

A Palatine real estate salesman, charged with fraud in connection with a land trade promotion, Wednesday denied he misrepresented himself to customers.

John Olson, vice president of Vacation Sites Inc., Hoffman Estates, testified before the Illinois Real Estate Examining Committee that he always identified himself as a representative of the company when calling on potential customers.

"I presented them my business card and said I was a former employee of American Central Corp.," Olson said.

OLSON, HIS WIFE, Loretta, and Clifford Kostas, also of Palatine, all officials of the firm, have been charged with deception by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education.

The charges stem from cases in which the three allegedly told customers they could trade recreational and vacation property they owned in Illinois as a down payment for land in Wisconsin.

If convicted, the three face revocation of their real estate licenses.

Five persons who agreed to the trades testified before the committee last month that they still remain responsible for payments on their Illinois property as well as the Wisconsin land even after the trades.

But Olson, in a four-hour hearing Wednesday, said he made payments on the Illinois property of which he assumed ownership and was unaware of delinquent payment notices being sent to the former owners.

OLSON SAID American Central Corp., which owned many of the Illinois sites traded, has failed to recognize his ownership on 16 of about 90 pieces of property and has failed to accept his mortgage payment on them.

All other monthly payments on properties he owns are paid up through last month, Olson said.

He said he spent $86,000 last year in mortgage payments on properties he accepted as trade.

Olson told the committee he received the names of property owners from lists which were presented to him when he was employed by American Central Corp., developers of Lake Thunderbird near Peoria and Lake Carroll in western Illinois. He said he also received a list of land owners from Candlewick Lake, where he was also formerly employed.

OLSON SAID he approached property owners asking them if they were satisfied with their investments at the developments and if they would be interested in trading their land for property in Hayward, Wis.

The customers were told the deals had to be completed the same day because if they liked the arrangements, they should accept it on the spot, he testified.

Paul Shandling, attorney for the department, asked Olson if he was aware of the three-day cancellation clause which the Illinois Consumer Fraud Act requires for unsolicited sales. Olson said his attorney, Sydney Schiller, and a finance company told him the clause was not applicable.

Olson also testified he offered each customer the chance to tear up their contracts the same day they were signed if there were any misgivings about the arrangement.

AFTER FIVE DAYS, however, he said he believed the contracts were binding.

Committee member Marie Scora asked Olson if he ever offered to take

Beirut under storm as troops sweep foothills

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian forces stormed Beirut's Moslem suburbs Wednesday as two Palestinian army brigades from Syria cut across the country to the foothills of Mt. Lebanon.

The Palestinian armor and artillery columns, halted by the 10,000-foot-high mountain range, were ready to move toward the war-ravaged capital if last-ditch Syrian-mediated truce talks fail.

Christian forces launched a sweeping offensive Wednesday against the Moslem suburb of Naabeh in reprisal for the fall of two besieged Christian towns south of Beirut.

THE VOICE OF Lebanon, the pirate radio station of the right-wing Phalangist party, said Christian militias were uniting under one command to liberate "the entire Lebanese nation from its usurpers."

Fierce fighting raged across the capital and countryside as rival forces attacked and counterattacked in an apparent attempt to grab as much territory as possible before a new cease-fire.

Police estimated more than 200 persons were killed and 430 injured in a climactic 48 hours. The toll in nine months of war rose to nearly 9,500 dead and 20,100 wounded.

Downtown survey shows

Parking No. 1 shopper concern

Insufficient parking, traffic congestion and lack of a variety of stores are the main problems of the village's central business district, a survey of shoppers in downtown Palatine has revealed.

The survey, conducted during the Christmas holiday, generated responses from 116 persons, including 91 village residents and persons from nearby suburbs.

Parking-related problems were the No. 1 concern of shoppers polled in the survey, with 63 per cent citing insufficient downtown parking as the greatest commercial deficiency.

Traffic congestion in the downtown area was cited by 46 per cent of those surveyed as the second greatest problem. Parking meters and a lack of a variety of stores were cited by 38 per cent of those polled.

TWENTY-NINE per cent of those surveyed said the railroad tracks that cut through the downtown area add to shopping problems because they create a barrier in the middle of town. Other problems cited included unattractive environment, lack of parks, lack of a focal point, inconvenient store hours and stores located too far apart.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said he believes a solution to the parking problem in downtown Palatine could mean the solution to promoting business in that area.

Jones suggested more off-street parking as a possible answer, including the possibility of building a parking deck garage.

"I think a parking garage in Palatine could be profitable because we could pay for it with revenue bonds which are paid off with money generated from operation of the garage," Jones said. "We have to start looking up to solve some of these problems because the price of land is too expensive."

The City of Des Plaines, which, with Palatine, is participating in the central business district project to study ways of improving downtown business, has approved a $1.2 million contract to construct a parking deck for about 400 cars in its downtown area.

SUGGESTIONS from shoppers on improving the parking situation included providing more and free parking and providing more employee parking.

Suggestions for improving circulation in the downtown area included making the area a mall, eliminating autos from downtown, widening Palatine Road, fixing the tracks on Brockway Street and Palatine Road and eliminating the one-way street system.

The survey revealed that most downtown shoppers frequent the area once or more a week. Eighty-three per cent of those surveyed said they also shop at the Woodfield Shopping Center, 69 per cent shop at the Palatine Mall, 62 per cent shop at the Palatine Plaza and 61 per cent shop at the Randhurst Shopping Center.

The survey information will be included with a market study of the downtown area to determine the potential for new development in Palatine's Central business district.

The project is sponsored by the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs. It is funded through June with $15,000 in federal monies plus $3,500 each from Palatine and Des Plaines.

Ford's $394.2 billion budget to Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday laid down a $394.2 billion budget carrying more money for defense and energy programs, a promise of new tax cuts for individuals and businesses, and a scaled-down social program emphasizing aid to the most needy.

Aside from military and energy spending, the emphasis was on reducing federal outlays for domestic needs by consolidation and reorganization of a variety of government programs.

Signing the budget before submitting it to Congress, where the ultimate decisions lie, the President said: "This represents what we hope will be a very major turning point for the American people. But it does not hold out any promise that the federal government can or will solve every problem."

He said "it reflects on every page the common sense, the new realism" he invoked in his State of the Union speech Monday.

"We will give more money to those at or below the poverty line and cut off those above," Ford told reporters. Having put his own stamp on the blueprint for fiscal 1977 (his previous budget was worked out largely under Richard Nixon), Ford dispatched top economic aides to Capitol Hill for daylong briefings of congressional leaders and committees to be involved with it.

Among those panels are the new Senate and House budget committees, created to sort out and ride herd on the complicated process of government spending. They could drastically alter the President's formula.

Predictably, most congressional Republicans praised the President while

Democratic leaders attacked the effort to cut back on domestic programs.

However, Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and a major force in the budget's move through Congress, urged fellow Democrats not to push for budget increases in view of the "shockingly high" national debt.

Mahon acknowledged that there will be pressures to chop the proposed $8.3 billion increase in defense spending, and that "Congress may very probably fail to adopt" the President's plan for overhauling and reducing domestic programs.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill raised the issue of politics, saying:

"The President's budget priorities are 100 per cent wrong. Its full impact in slowing the economy would be felt in 1977, not in this election year. We have to worry about the future, not just about the election."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said it is "in the interest of the potential buyers to the Wisconsin site before they agreed to buy the property. Olson said he did not, but showed each person pictures and a map of the area.

Harry M. Gottlieb, also a panel member, asked Olson if he ever tried to "dispel the notion" among customers that he represented American Central Corp. Olson said he gave his Vacation Sites Inc. business card, telling customers American Central Corp. was no longer selling property at either Lake Thunderbird or Lake Carroll.

The committee agreed to drop three lesser charges against Olson, his wife and Kortas, saying the department failed to present relevant evidence.

The dropped charges included failure to submit required change-of-address forms to the state, failure to present clients with copies of their contracts and combining money of others with their own.

The hearing will continue at 10 a.m. today. The committee will make a recommendation to department officials before a final decision is reached.

Minorities moving, but not in houses

by JOE FRANZ

Minorities have made some progress in finding jobs in the suburbs, but they have had little luck in finding housing because of its cost.

Clyde H. Brooks, president of the Minority Information Referral Center, 694 Lee St., Des Plaines, said the organization has had "some success" in placing blacks and other minorities in suburban jobs in the last three years.

But the pay for many of the jobs, he said, is not high enough to enable the minorities to buy or rent suburban housing.

"IN MY JUDGMENT, finding housing is much more difficult than finding jobs," Brooks said. "The problem isn't that there's a lack of housing, but that there's a lack of adequately-priced housing."

Suburban housing often is not affordable, Brooks said, because minorities traditionally have been offered only low-paying jobs by suburban companies.

"That's why we ask companies to make their top jobs as well as other jobs available to minorities," he said. "Otherwise the jobs are incompatible with housing."

Jolyn Chiero, the center's housing administrator, said another problem is that discrimination is more common in housing than in the job market.

"To a lot of people a black person on the job is a lot less of a threat than a black person on their block," she said.

BARBARA KLAYUM, the center's employment administrator, said she believes housing discrimination is more common than that in employment because of differences in laws.

"The laws regarding housing have less teeth and means of enforcement than those for employment," she said. "Employers are much more hard pressed to hire minorities."

The center, an arm of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, was established in March 1973 to promote economic opportunity for minorities in the suburban Cook, Lake, Kane and DuPage counties. Finding jobs and housing for minorities are two of its primary services.

Brooks said despite the problems, he believes the center has made great strides in helping minorities since its early days when it operated out of a trailer at Maryville Academy. The center has grown from an annual budget of $800 to one of nearly $200,000, he said.

SINCE THE CENTER was opened, Brooks said, it has helped hundreds of persons find employment and housing in the suburbs.

From January through September of last year, the center received 1,500 employment applications and was able to place 276 of the applicants in jobs. The center found housing for 36 of 124 applicants during the same period.

"I'm not saying we've won any battles that others have lost, but we have accomplished a lot in the short time we've been here," he said. "I think the work of the center has brought a lot of problems to light and helped a lot of people."

Brooks readily admits, however, that there is much more that can be done and that the greatest challenges for the center lie in the years ahead.

"WHILE SOME BLACKS have made it to suburbia and to high positions in white collar jobs, it's worth pointing out that it's just a few," he said. "The masses of black people remain locked out of suburban areas and employment due to a lack of public transportation, sexism and racism."

Brooks said the center works closely with about 40 suburban companies in placing minorities in jobs. It also attempts to work with real estate agents and housing management firms in finding housing for minorities.

"The center seeks to work with suburban industry and government and anyone else who is concerned about helping black or poor people," he said.

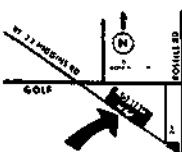

The center now employs a dozen full-time workers and counselors as well as a number of volunteers. Brooks said although most of the staff's time is spent in trying to find jobs for minorities, there are an increasing number of applicants for housing. He estimates that minorities make up about 4 to 5 per cent of the suburban population.

Daylight at 9:30 p.m.!

More sun in your future?

by PAM BIGFORD

George Swanson would like to see the sun shine until 9:30 at night.

Swanson thinks the country would be better off economically and socially if the sun rose later and set later. And he intends to do something about it.

Swanson, an earth science teacher at Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, has formulated a new daylight-savings plan which would keep the sun shining until about 9:30 p.m. in the peak of the summer, almost an hour later than usual.

THE DAYLIGHT-savings plan which has been in effect the past two years has provided an additional hour of daylight in the evening from March through October.

Swanson's plan calls for yet another hour of daylight from May through August. Instead of the sun setting at about 8:30 p.m. in July, it would not set until 9:30 p.m.

Swanson said that not only would most people enjoy an extra hour of daylight on summer evenings, but it would save money in energy use.

Electrical utility officials estimated a savings of nearly 1 per cent a month took place in 1974 when the present eight-month daylight-savings plan took effect, Swanson said. He predicts that under his proposal, annual electrical production would be reduced another 6 per cent, a savings of 18 million barrels of oil a year.

SWANSON SAID that government studies have shown that traffic accidents and crime were also reduced in 1974 and 1975 during extended daylight hours.

Two possible disadvantages of the plan are foreseen by Swanson. One is that clocks would have to be changed four times a year instead of twice, which may be confusing.

Another is that the current time zones across the U.S. would have to be revised so that some areas would not experience mid-morning darkness. Swanson said he believes present time zones are generally overextended to the West.

The idea for the daylight-extending plan began hatching in Swanson's mind when he realized how few people were able to take advantage of the extra daylight hours in the summer.

SWANSON IS promoting his plan by sending it to local congressmen U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Illinois, who is on a Senate committee studying the advantages gained in 1974 and 1975 by extending the daylight savings time into March and April, has shown the most interest in the plan, Swanson said.

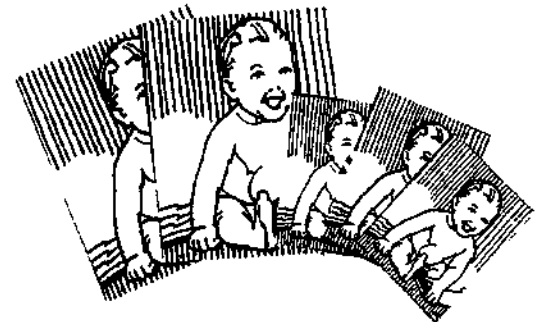

Swanson hopes his proposal will receive even more publicity Friday night when he appears on "Grafitti," a WLS-TV program hosted by weatherman John Coleman. The one-hour program begins at 11:40 p.m. and Swanson is scheduled to appear during the latter half.

Swanson, who has been teaching various sciences for the past 10 years, said people have been proposing daylight-savings plans ever since Benjamin Franklin came up with the first one.

Swanson doesn't think anybody has gotten it right yet. But he's out to prove that, when it comes to sunshine, he's at least one step ahead of Ben Franklin.

Nongraded classes help depressed students learn

Noncompetitive, nongraded instruction at Elk Grove High School is helping depressed students learn, says a school psychologist.

Between 200 and 300 students who are depressed because they are unsuccessful in the classroom are participating in a program of individualized education that emphasizes personal goals and progress rather than class rank.

Dick Bell, Elk Grove High School psychologist, said the young men and women in individualized instruction are not low-ability students. "Some students can do the work but won't," he explained.

FOR THESE students the realization of success in individual instruction can make the difference between completing their education and dropping out, he said.

"Today, the student who gets a C sees himself as a failure. Only students with A's and B's think of themselves as successes," Bell told a group of social service professionals during a meeting Tuesday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Some students in the Elk Grove High School program sign a mock contract spelling out their educational goals, quality of work and the grade they can receive. The contract "allows the student to monitor his own progress. The student takes responsibility for his own learning," Bell said.

Other students in the program, particularly those who are discipline problems, earn tokens for good behavior. The tokens are exchangeable for free time during which students are allowed to talk or play games.

Individualized instruction is frequently just one aspect of a student's curriculum at Elk Grove High School, and not all students need the special attention. But Bell said the philosophy of the program can be extended throughout the school.

"I want to emphasize noncompetitive education, and would like to see the grading system end. We have too many failures in the school system today," he said.

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, urges support for incorporation.

200 at meeting on incorporation

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A crowd of more than 200 Prospect Heights residents met Wednesday night to discuss the community's Jan. 31 incorporation referendum.

Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. officials, who have organized the incorporation vote, presented residents with facts on the costs of forming a city and answered questions at McArthur Junior High School, Schoenbeck and

Palatine roads, Prospect Heights

Many residents cast doubt on the association's proposed $338,685 budget for the new city and the sources of its anticipated $605,306 income the first year after incorporation.

"THE INCOME sources we expect, like personal property and motor fuel taxes, are what you already pay to the county," said

Trustee hits higher water rate charges

Mount Prospect Trustee Leo Floras says he wants the minimum water charge in the village lowered, and calls the new higher charge an "unjustified."

The minimum charge was increased from $6 to $9 by the village board two weeks ago and affects about 500 customers who use less than 10,000 gallons a quarter. Customers who fall into this category pay a flat charge, while other customers pay a graduated rate for water used.

Floras said the new charge, which constitutes a 50 per cent increase, "may have been a mistake." He has recommended lowering it to $7.50.

THE INCREASE in the minimum water charge was part of a restructuring of water rates designed to encourage water conservation and raise needed revenue.

The rates, scheduled to take effect with the April billing, will increase most residents' bills 20 per cent. This affects some 8,600 customers who use less than 50,000 gallons per quarter. Their rate will increase from 75 cents to 90 cents per thousand gallons.

Customers who use more water will be charged higher rates. The rates range up to $1.30 per thousand gallons for those who use more than 500,000 gallons per quarter.

Richard L. Jesse, finance director, said Wednesday the $9 figure was chosen because it is an easy figure to work with. He said it also was halfway between the minimum amount charged most village residents and the minimum charged customers in the southern portion of the village.

A SEPARATE WATER rate has been in effect for those living in the southern portion since the village purchased a small utility company serving that area. A $12 minimum is charged of those residents, with decreasing rates for increased water usage.

Trustee E. F. Richardson said the reduction in the minimum charge would not drastically affect village revenues. "It's not a lot of dollars," he said.

Caucus panel mulls school candidates

Candidates for the Mount Prospect Dist. 57 Board of Education who are seeking the endorsement of the district's General Caucus should contact the caucus nominating committee.

The committee met to interview candidates Sunday and will interview again on Jan. 25 and Feb. 1. The committee will recommend candidates to the caucus for endorsement in February.

Appointments for interviews may be made through committee chairman Marlene Fasick, 239-2885, or co-chairman George Michael, 394-0458.

Three seats on the Dist. 57 board will be on the ballot in school elections April 10.

Beirut under storm as troops sweep foothills

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian forces stormed Beirut's Moslem suburbs Wednesday as two Palestinian army brigades from Syria cut across the country to the foothills of Mt. Lebanon.

The Palestinian armor and artillery columns, halted by the 10,000-foot-high mountain range, were ready to move toward the war-ravaged capital if last-ditch Syrian-mediated truce talks fail.

Christian forces launched a sweeping offensive Wednesday against the Moslem suburb of Nabeh in reprisal for the fall of two besieged Christian towns south of Beirut.

THE VOICE OF Lebanon, the pirate

radio station of the right-wing Phalangist party, said Christian militias were uniting under one command to liberate "the entire Lebanese nation from its usurpers."

Fierce fighting raged across the capital and countryside as rival forces attacked and counterattacked in an apparent attempt to grab as much territory as possible before a new cease-fire.

Police estimated more than 200 persons were killed and 430 injured in a climactic 48 hours. The toll in nine months of war rose to nearly 3,600 dead and 20,100 wounded.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday laid down a $394.2 billion budget carrying more money for defense and energy programs, a promise of new tax cuts for individuals and businesses, and a scaled-down social program emphasizing aid to the most needy.

Aside from military and energy spending, the emphasis was on reducing federal outlays for domestic needs by consolidation and reorganization of a variety of government programs.

Signing the budget before submitting it to Congress, where the ultimate decisions lie, the President said

"This represents what we hope will be a very major turning point for the American people. But it does not hold out any promise that the federal government can or will solve every problem."

He said "it reflects on every page the common sense, the new realism" he invoked in his State of the Union speech Monday.

"We will give more money to those at or below the poverty line and cut off those above," Ford told reporters. Having put his own stamp on the blueprint for fiscal 1977 (his previous budget was worked out largely under Richard Nixon), Ford dispatched top economic aides to Capitol Hill for daylong briefings of congressional leaders and committees to be involved with it.

Among those panels are the new Senate and House budget committees, created to sort out and ride herd on the complicated process of government spending. They could drastically alter the President's formula.

Predictably, most congressional Republicans praised the President while

Democratic leaders attacked the effort to cut back on domestic programs.

However, Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and a major force in the budget's move through Congress, urged fellow Democrats not to push for budget increases in view of the "shockingly high" national debt.

Mahon acknowledged that there will be pressures to chop the proposed $8.3 billion increase in defense spending, and that "Congress may very probably fail to adopt" the President's plan for overhauling and reducing domestic programs.

House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill raised the issue of politics, saying

"The President's budget priorities are 100 per cent wrong. Its full impact in slowing the economy would be felt in 1977, not in this election year. We have to worry about the future, not just about the election."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said it is "in the interest of the (Continued on Page 3)

Parking meters go All-American

by JOE SWICKARD
Oh, say can you see by the dawn's early light if there's any time left on the parking meter?

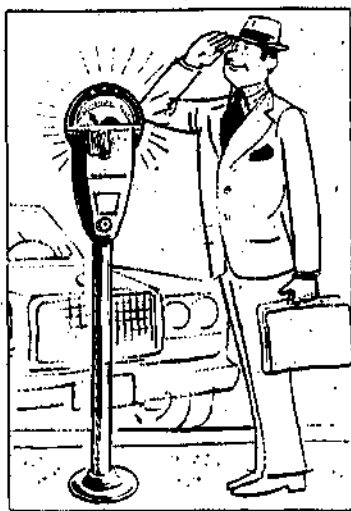

Commuters in Mount Prospect may be humming that jaunty tune as they feed the meters in the commuter parking lots. Chicagoans may stand straighter when they park on Clark Street, not to mention the visitors to Rapid City, S.D.

Why all the patriotic fervor when it comes to parking a car? Because the Duncan Parking Meter Co., Elk Grove Village, is selling a star-spangled version of their meter in honor of the Bicentennial.

RALPH B. ELSNER, Duncan's vice president of sales, said, "We developed the idea about a year ago. Last April we showed it around the sales meetings and it was pretty well accepted."

Locally, Mount Prospect chose the national motif when it came time to replace the plexiglass domes on the meters in the commuter parking lots along Northwest Highway.

Village Mgr. Robert Eppley said the meters are in keeping with the town's Bicentennial observance which includes red, white and blue stripes for the police cars and the same colors on the water tower.

ACROSS THE nation, such diverse communities as New Orleans and Rapid City, S.D. — home of Reptile Gardens — have the meters, Elsner said.

"They're not garish at all. They're in good taste," Elsner said. Duncan markets two versions to help celebrate the country's 200th birthday. One version is the complete meter "head," while the other is a replacement dome, such as Mount Prospect installed.

"They were just a few pennies more and we thought they were kind of nice," Eppley said of the decision to go for the Bicentennial meters rather than the standard gunmetal gray ones.

BECAUSE THE domes can be installed or removed in a matter of minutes with just the turn of a few screws, Elsner said some towns plan to use the colorful domes for future holidays after the Bicentennial.

For those citizens who really don't need a parking meter, Duncan sells lamps made from models municipalities have traded in on newer ones. The lamps, generally sold as specialty or novelty items, come with either a gold coat of paint or the red, white and blue version.

Elsner admits the gold version sells better because most people get a little tired of having a red, white and blue parking meter lamp.

To put some minds to rest, the American flag does not pop up when the time expires and Eppley said motorists do not have to stand at attention or salute when they put their nickel in the All-American meters.

Village disaster center proposed

Fire Chief Lawrence A. Pairitz is asking the Mount Prospect Village Board for $5,000 to establish an emergency operating center in case of a village disaster.

"The Village of Mount Prospect at present has no suitable emergency operating center, a location where all departments can establish communications and function together during an emergency," Pairitz said in his budget requests to the board.

Pairitz said such centers can cost anywhere from $25,000 to $200,000, but the proposed center would cost only $5,000 because "we're going to do our own labor."

PAIRITZ ALSO IS asking for an additional $4,000 to purchase two used generators and repair a third generator. The units currently are available through a federal surplus program, and would provide emergency power to the village hall, public safety building and public works building.

The chief said the emergency operating center would be located in the village hall, 100 S. Emerson St., and would provide a central communication network in the event of a tornado or train crash.

The proposed center, designed by communications officer Paul Watkins, would provide backup to the communications system for the fire, police and public works departments as well as the Civil Defense unit.

Pairitz said the building has been inspected by federal engineers in hopes of obtaining 50 per cent federal funding.

Funds for the emergency operating center were proposed in last year's budget, but cut before the budget was approved. The matter has been under study for the past year and a half.

"At no time is government going to be as important as it is in an emergency, Pairitz said, stressing the need for such a center.

The village board will consider Pairitz's request at an upcoming budget meeting Jan. 27.

Dist. 26 finance probe to get started Tuesday

The River Trails Dist. 26 citizens' financial committee will begin work Tuesday on an in-depth study of the school's current budget.

Thirty-four district residents, including former board members Harold Haney, Marsha Lupton, Michael Sheyker, Clark Robinson, Hugh Stubbs, Ray Johnston and Charles Morey, attended Tuesday night's board of education meeting to organize the citizens' panel temporarily headed by Idyll Nipper.

Haney was elected to lead the group in future meetings.

Charged by Board Pres. Leora Rosen to find "solutions to our problems," the group plans to have administrators tell them why the district faces bankruptcy by 1977-78 before it begins studying solutions to the district's financial plight.

BOARD MEMBERS learned in December the district would reach its $900,000 limit of legal indebtedness in two years unless state and local taxes increase.

Enrollments have declined in the last six years and are expected to continue to drop until 1980, causing a decrease in state aid. At the same time, teacher and staff salaries are rising, eating up rapidly decreasing revenue.

"We know we can look to an increased tax rate, class sizes, or consider consolidation or curtail services," Mrs. Rosen said.

"We do not have any preconceived notion at this time. Whatever we end up pursuing must be a total community project," she said.

In a two-hour brainstorming session, members of the citizens' committee expressed interest in studying the pros and cons of:

- Raising local taxes through a referendum.
- Consolidating Dist. 26 with another elementary school district or with a high school district.
- Cutting teachers and administrative staff.

Meters' merits to be reviewed

A proposal to install parking meters in downtown Mount Prospect will be reviewed tonight after village trustees voiced some opposition to the plan Tuesday.

The village board's finance committee, chaired by Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr., will discuss the proposal to install about 200 parking meters along major streets in the central business district. Currently parking meters are in commuter lots only.

Several trustees, including Rhea, were reluctant to support the plan at Tuesday's board meeting, saying it required more information. The Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce has opposed the plan, fearing it will hurt downtown merchants.

"IT IS MY intention based on the information I have right now that we do not recommend parking meters at this time," Rhea said, adding, however, the downtown redevelopment commission is expected to present its viewpoint on the matter at tonight's meeting.

Rhea said he wanted "to cover all the bases" before any recommendation on parking meters is presented to the board.

The proposal has aroused the ire of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce, which Tuesday presented petitions signed by nearly 2,000 people opposing the meters.

Former trustee George B. Anderson, speaking for the chamber, said parking meter installation was one of several recent proposals that would seriously hurt the business community. "Believe me there are many businesses that are in the position of nearly closing," he said.

THE CHAMBER is also opposed to proposed increases in business license fees, which also are scheduled for discussion at tonight's finance committee meeting.

The committee last month called on the administration to develop a schedule based on the current cost of inspecting and regulating business. Rhea estimated it now costs the village about $102,000 a year to inspect and regulate business, while only $37,408 is collected from business license fees.

Rhea said if Mount Prospect doubled license fees, the village would still be short $20,000 for the cost of inspections.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the village hall, 100 S. Emerson St.

Meeting on incorporation attracts 200 residents

Richard Wolf, PHIA president. Wolf assured residents, there would be no increase in current taxes and that the city could operate with funds from federal revenue sharing, motor fuel taxes and municipal license fees without levying a municipal property tax.

"We already have park, sanitary, school and fire districts established. They tax for services that are adequate for this community," Wolf said.

"The city will not have any effect on these autonomous districts and their boundaries will not be changed after incorporation," he said in answer to other residents' questions.

STATE REP. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, briefly spoke during the meeting, endorsing the incorporation effort.

"You've got nothing to lose and everything to gain. Immediately you'll pick up a large amount of the tax money that now goes to the county. But you will have a direct voice in how that money is spent when it comes back to your city," he said.

Some residents questioned the reality of the association's tentative budget.

"The proposed budget seems small because it does not include the cost to support services that are provided by our neighboring municipalities, which have several million dollar budgets," Wolf said. "The cost for these services are not included in our budget, but in the budgets of our independent taxing districts for the library, park, and fire."

PHIA officials said Prospect Heights can "no longer remain unincorporated" because of pressures from the county and piecemeal annexation by adjacent municipalities.

Residents will be insured control over zoning and taxes and will receive improved police protection if they vote to incorporate Jan. 31, officials said.

It will take a majority of the people voting to approve the incorporation, which would become effective Feb. 1.

Dist. 26 staff panel works on funds problem

A small group of teachers and administrators in River Trails Dist. 26 have been working quietly since October on ways to ease the district's financial problems, long before the current citizens' committee was formed.

Formed as a response to this year's teacher contract negotiations, the seven-member committee "is doing exactly what the citizens' committee is doing," said Supt. John Fridlund, a member of the teachers' committee.

Nancy Miller, one of the teacher members, said the group has met about four times since October but has not met since early December.

Peggy Golden, Dist. 26 board member who also is on the committee, said the group wanted to look at ideas such as school closings, moving school attendance boundaries and increasing class sizes, ideas the current citizens panel intends to investigate.

Mrs. Golden said the last thing the committee did was commission a pre-school census of the district by the local PTA groups. That information, due March 1, should help the district know specifically how many children it can expect in the next five years, Mrs. Golden said.

Teacher wants more sun out of life

by PAM BIGFORD

George Swanson would like to see the sun shine until 9:30 at night.

Swanson thinks the country would be better off economically and socially if the sun rose later and set later. And he intends to do something about it.

Swanson, an earth science teacher at Conant High School, 700 E. Cougar Tr., Hoffman Estates, has formulated a new daylight-savings plan which would keep the sun shining until about 9:30 p.m. in the peak of the summer, almost an hour later than usual.

THE DAYLIGHT-savings plan which has been in effect the past two years has provided an additional hour of daylight in the evening from March through October.

Swanson's plan calls for yet another hour of daylight from May through August. Instead of the sun setting at about 8:30 p.m. in July, it would not set until 9:30 p.m.

Swanson said that not only would most people enjoy an extra hour of daylight on summer evenings, but it would save money in energy use.

Electrical utility officials estimated a savings of nearly 1 per cent a month took place in 1974 when the present eight-month daylight-savings plan took effect, Swanson said. He predicts that under his proposal, annual electrical production would be reduced another 6 per cent, a savings of 18 million barrels of oil a year.

SWANSON SAID that government studies have shown that traffic accidents and crime were also reduced in 1974 and 1975 during extended daylight hours.

Two possible disadvantages of the plan are foreseen by Swanson. One is that clocks would have to be changed four times a year instead of twice, which may be confusing.

Another is that the current time zones across the U.S. would have to be revised so that some areas would not experience mid-morning darkness. Swanson said he believes present time zones are generally overextended to the West.

The idea for the daylight-extending plan began hatching in Swanson's mind when he realized how few people were able to take advantage of the extra daylight hours in the summer.

SWANSON IS promoting his plan by sending it to local congressmen. U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Illinois, who is on a Senate committee studying the advantages gained in 1974 and 1975 by extending the daylight savings time into March and April, has shown the most interest in the plan, Swanson said.

Swanson hopes his proposal will receive even more publicity Friday night when he appears on "Grafitti," a WLS-TV program hosted by weatherman John Coleman. The one-hour program begins at 11:40 p.m. and Swanson is scheduled to appear during the latter half.

Swanson, who has been teaching various sciences for the past 10 years, said people have been proposing daylight-savings plans ever since Benjamin Franklin came up with the first one.

Nongraded classes help depressed students learn

Noncompetitive, nongraded instruction at Elk Grove High School is helping depressed students learn, says a school psychologist.

Between 200 and 300 students who are depressed because they are unsuccessful in the classroom are participating in a program of individualized education that emphasizes personal goals and progress rather than class rank.

Dick Bell, Elk Grove High School psychologist, said the young men and women in individualized instruction are not low-ability students. "Some students can do the work but won't," he explained.

FOR THESE students the realization of success in individual instruction can make the difference between completing their education and dropping out, he said.

"Today, the student who gets a C sees himself as a failure. Only students with A's and B's think of themselves as successes," Bell told a group of social service professionals during a meeting Tuesday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

Some students in the Elk Grove High School program sign a mock contract spelling out their educational goals, quality of work and the grade they can receive. The contract allows the student to monitor his own progress. The student takes responsibility for his own learning," Bell said.

Other students in the program, particularly those who are discipline problems, earn tokens for good behavior. The tokens are exchangeable for free time during which students are allowed to talk or play games.

Individualized instruction is frequently just one aspect of a student's curriculum at Elk Grove High School, and not all students need the special attention. But Bell said the philosophy of the program can be extended throughout the school.

"I want to emphasize noncompetitive education, and would like to see the grading system end. We have too many failures in the school system today," he said.

Trudy and Judy, skating twins, start comeback

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Trudy and Judy Casey, those petite twins on ice skates, can almost hear the applause again. They can feel the heat of show lights on their faces.

For seven years the identical twins from Wheeling never thought they'd skate together again. A promising career with the Shipstad and Johnson Ice Follies was cut short in 1969 when Trudy suffered an injury on the ice. That mishap put her in the hospital with a rare circulatory disease.

But now the sisters are about to sign a contract with the Spice on Ice Revue in Las Vegas and they could be performing with singer Bobby Vinton as well. Trudy and Judy plan to return from Las Vegas next month with a contract in hand and a comeback under way.

"WE HAVE BEEN praying for a miracle," Judy said. "We want so much to get back into the business. But we never dreamed that the offer would come so quickly."

Actually, it was just a matter of luck, the girls said.

Trudy, anxious to get the show on the road, wrote to several celebrities in an attempt to sell their comeback act. Singer Bobby Vinton was one of the celebrities who responded to her letter and invited Trudy to Las Vegas where he was performing.

"Vinton has really made a comeback as the Polish king," Trudy said. "We also want to make a return to show business and have suggested that we perform some of his music as his Polish princesses."

CASEY IS ONLY the girls' stage name. Their real last name is Strygank. "So, naturally, we have a Polish interest in it," Trudy said.

The girls will discuss performance possibilities with Vinton when he visits Chicago in March for several concerts.

A star spot in the ice revue and possible performances with Bobby Vinton would mean a return to the big time for the Casey twins, and a step toward regaining the glamorous life of show business they were forced to give up after Trudy's accident.

Since the accident Trudy has become a Chicago Fire Dept. paramedic and Judy is an instructor at the Glenview Ice Center. Both girls agree that things just haven't been the same.

LAST MONTH they announced their return to skating and have since received tentative offers from television producers and modeling agencies.

But the first thing they've had to do is practice their new routines on the ice.

"We're having so much fun getting it back together again with the music, the routines and costumes. We took new publicity shots the other day," Judy said.

But the new effort is also a painful one for Trudy, who must learn, almost from start, how to gracefully move her injured legs again.

"This business is in our blood and we just can't give up. This is going to be just great. We can't wait to be out there again," Trudy said.

"It seems like we've waited too long already," she said.
